25,000 Peace Demonstrators Marching Toward Pentagon

Military Units Set If Violence Occurs

COMBINED AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — More than 25,000 Vietnam war protesters—warmed up by a college type pep rally—streamed toward the Pentagon today where a showdown with alerted military forces and police was in prospect.

The throng—which included a mixed bag of hippies, youthful college students, veteran pacifists and militants from the radical left—started their procession from the Lincoln Memorial to the Pentagon grounds after a round of preliminary protest speeches.

Military police, federal marshals and border patrolmen awaited them with paratroopers and National Guardsmen in reserve if violence should erupt.

A short time in advance of the protesters' arrival, a force of 200 military police marched in smart military cadence to line up in front of the Pentagon's entrance.

A spokesman said they were there to enforce the "perimeter line" restricting demonstrators to a 29-acre parking area until 4 p.m. Barbed wire and chain link fences were thrown up yesterday as extra measures.

At that hour, an undetermined number were promised admittance to the "mall triangle" immediately in front of the entrance.

NAZIS ARRESTED

The initial ceremonies at the Memorial were marred by only one minor incident. Three members of the American Nazi party were arrested when they broke through police lines and jostled a speaker at the pre-Pentagon rally.

The outpouring of antiwar and antidraft demonstrators, in a carnival atmosphere, was entertained by folk singing and a puppet show showing the evils of war at the outset.

Then speaker after speaker began sounding the theme of opposition to President Johnson's war policies and the chant began going up: "Hell no, we won't go" —the refrain of draft objectors.

BLACK POWER

John Wilson, a Black Power leader from New York, told the crowd: "Let the honkie know that we are people who will resist and resist and resist."

He then called for a moment of silence in tribute to slain Ernesto "Che" Guevara, long a top lieutenant of Cuba's Communist leader, Fidel Castro, and the demonstrators responded. Not far away, another group held forth beneath a North Vietnamese flag.

Courthouse Sale Speedup Urged

The old courthouse square in downtown San Rafael should be sold now, even if the county has to erect this sign on the lawn: "For sale or lease. May subdivide to suit tenants or buyers."

This plea for immediate action comes from Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen, who says, he is "concerned with the apathy and lack of progress on the sale."

In a letter addressed to his fellow supervisors, Kettenhofen asserts the county should "actively offer it for sale, and failing this, we should explore again my suggestion of offering a long-term lease, even with the possibility of subdividing to suit a solid tenant."

He urges mail promotion, listing the property with all real estate brokers, and "even put a sign on the courthouse lawn."

Immediate action is urgent, says Kettenhofen, because "we are now threatened with a buyer's market" instead of the desirable position of a seller's market.

When the county rejected his proposal to sell to developer Harry Heifetz, it means an additional 7.5 cents on the tax roll, Kettenhofen points out. "I suggest it is our responsibility to leave no stone unturned to reduce the tax bill as soon as possible."

After the Heifetz plan was rejected, the supervisors offered the building for sale this spring, but received no public bids.

St. Raphael's Mystery Told At Luncheon

Dr. Marshall Dill, history professor at Dominican College in San Rafael, conceded yesterday little is known about the patron saint of the 150-year-old Mission San Rafael Archangel.

The City of San Rafael is conducting a five-day sesquicentennial for the mission.

Dill, speaking to 200 civic leaders at a luncheon at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant, said the Archangel Raphael, a champion of good health and marriage, is mentioned only once in the Bible — in the book of Tobit in the Old Testament Apocryphc.

He said the saint gained his reputation by effecting a miraculous cure and for aiding young Tobias to marry a reluctant woman.

Guests at the luncheon, which had been arranged by San Rafael service clubs, were entertained by student musical groups

Soviet Nuclear Test Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission said the United States had detected seismic signals indicating an explosion today in the Soviet Union's atomic testing area. The signals were described as equivalent to those from a nuclear blast of intermediate strength.

AEC said the signals came from the testing range in the region of Novaya Zemlya, an Arctic island.

Intermediate strength means a blast equivalent to the explosion of between 200,000 and 1 million tons of TNT. The AEC said the signals were in the lower end of that range.

The seismologic institution at Uppsala, Sweden, said the blast apparently was underground.

$11,000 Fire In Woodacre Called Arson

A fire which caused $11,000 damage to a Woodacre home last night was deliberately set, according to Marin Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom.

A neighbor discovered the blaze at 53 Elm Avenue at 11:26 p.m. Bloom said it had been burning about an hour and a half when firemen arrived. Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Hartness of Petaluma own the home, but had moved out of it last September, leaving the house fully furnished and with many of their personal belongings there, Bloom said.

Bloom said the firt was started in a utility room and on the back porch. Firemen found a can of lighter fluid on the floor of the utility room.

Bloom said a back window of the house had been broken, the house had been ransacked, and the bed looked as if someone had slept in it. Empty beer cans were found on the floor in the kitchen.

Three convicts who sawed their way out of San Quentin Prison were back behind bars today after 14 hours of freedom.

They were recaptured without resistance near the Greenbrae interchange of Highway 101 last night after a 13-year-old girl, Debbi Galli, spotted one of them in the yard of her home at 93 Corte Placido Street. The location is about a mile west of the prison.

The escapees were unarmed, still wearing their prison uniforms, and were grimy from a day spent hiding in ditches and along the railroad right of way, said prison officials.

They were Scott A. Perfect, a 26-year-old Los Angeles County burglar serving a five-year-to-life term; Ronald L. Kane, 29, a Fresno car thief, and Siegfried Dino Porte, 24, a native of Yugoslavia who was serving a five-

1,932 AFFIDAVITS FOR MARIJUANA

Court Tells Petitioners They Must Go To Legislature For Change In Penalty

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A San Francisco judge, hearing an appeal yesterday by a Mill Valley mechanic convicted of selling marijuana, rebuffed all arguments that he should declare marijuana laws unconstitutional.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh postponed decision to Nov. 16 in the case of Melkon Melkonian, but said, "I don't believe I can hold this unconstitutional. Judges shouldn't go against the law — I'm not supposed to do that when the legislature has spoken."

Karesh said he was "profoundly impressed" with presentation of 1,932 affidavits, many by persons who said they smoke marijuana, and all arguing stiff jail sentences were "cruel." He suggested, however, that "your forum must be the legislature."

Asst. Dist. Atty. Walter Giubbini objected the affidavits were "irrelevant," but introduced one signed by Matthew O'Connor, supervising agent of the state Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement in San Francisco. O'Connor declared that marijuana was "a harmful narcotic substance."

Melkonian's attorney, Molly H. Minudri, termed O'Connor's "iddy biddy affidavit all opinion, not fact. He has to keep his nice, cozy $20,000-a-year job," she added.

The judge received Melkonian's consent to an examination by the court psychiatrist, Dr. Arthur B. Carfagni of San Francisco.

"There's something about his appearance that concerns me," Karesh said of Melkonian. "He just sits completely unmoved.

WHO IS MOLLY?

Woman Attorney Is Underdog Defender

A little woman lawyer with deep red hair is the mastermind of the constitutional challenge to marijuana laws which has its headquarters in Marin County.

She is Molly Minudri, a former public defender in San Francisco. She told about the crusade in her small, cluttered office on Market Street there.

The campaign reached an anti-climax yesterday when its Marin County leaders submitted nearly 2,000 defiant affidavits from smokers and supporters of marijuana at a court hearing for Melkon Melkonian, 33, Mill Valley mechanic twice convicted of marijuana violations.

The thread in Molly's life that led the little lawyer, in her sixties, to become the confidante and legal defender of prostitutes, addicts, homosexuals and transvestites is elusive, but tangible.

She is the daughter of a Shasta County gold miner named Halter, who came to California in 1904. She was always a scrapper growing up in Shasta County, and always very robust.

She came to San Francisco in 1922, and worked for a dozen years as a clerk in the recorder's office. She attended all the union meetings and became an expert on civil service regulations. In 1946, at the age of 42, she went to law school at the University of San Francisco, and in 1950, as a grandmother, passed the California Bar.

In 1954, appointed public

Ford, Union Said Near Record Pact

DETROIT (UPI)—Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto workers went back to the bargaining table today to fashion the final points of a contract that reportedly calls for record $1 an hour gains; but it appeared the 45-day-old strike would not be formally settled until sometime next week.

Bargainers for both sides sat back down at 11:15 a.m. EDT, just 17 hours after a 31-hour session that ended last night. The marathon session brought the talks to the brink of settlement.

The 31-hour ordeal, it was revealed today, was finally ended because two company negotiators collapsed at the table from exhaustion. They were treated at a hospital and released. The bargainers were mentally and physically unable to go any further, it was reported.

Three Battles Cost Enemy 318 Dead; Boat Nest Raided

SAIGON (UPI — U.S. and government troops killed 318 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese soldiers in three battles that spoiled Communist plans to disrupt South Vietnam's congressional elections tomorrow, military spokesmen said today.

South Vietnamese troops and American bombers killed 197 Communists trapped on an ancient burial ground in the largest of yesterday's battles, U.S. spokesmen said.

U.S. Army troops killed 75 more Communists nearby in the jungles south of the North-South Vietnam border. South Vietnamese forces below Saigon in the Mekong Delta caught and killed 46 Viet Cong.

In other action, spokesman reported Typhoon Carla reduced the number of U.S. raids against North Vietnam yesterday to the lowest number in six months. But they said Navy pilots early today sank four North Vietnamese PT boats in one of the greatest blows against the Communist Navy since U.S. air attacks against North Vietnam began Aug. 4, 1964 when PT havens were the targets.

Steel Haulers Expected To Vote Truce

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Leaders of striking steel haulers said today they would know by early Monday the outcome of a secret-ballot membership vote on a strike-settlement proposal adopted by 150 trucking companies.

William Kusley, Gary, Ind., chairman of the Steel Haulers Protest Committee, said a news conference would be held at the Gary strike headquarters Monday morning to announce the vote.

The first balloting was held in Cleveland last night. Striking drivers in that area "overwhelmingly" accepted the proposal, strike leaders said.

Most local units scheduled vote meetings today and tomorrow.

The settlement proposal, worked out by an interstate mediation panel, would increase the drivers' share of hauling charges from the present 73 per cent to 79 per cent and would give them pay of $13.70 an hour for time spent in excess of four hours waiting for rigs to be loaded and unloaded.

Oakland Returns To Normal After Messy Anti-Draft Demonstrations

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Two thousand police from nine counties quelled more than twice that many demonstrators Friday in the most bitter clash in a week of intermittent violence outside the Oakland induction center.

Vietnam protesters apparently planned no major action today, although there was some talk of picketing at Port Chicago, a nearby area where ammunition for Vietnam is shipped and stored.

The demonstrators yesterday surged through downtown Oakland jerring at police, throwing up barricades at street corners and bringing traffic to a standstill. No draftees entered the center for three hours.

Twenty-three persons were hurt, including six policemen, and 21 arrested, raising the week's total to 273 arrested and 45 hurt.

Police finally got traffic flowing and began moving inductees into the center after they cordoned off an area of more than 10 square blocks surrounding the station. Before police got the situation under control, cars were overturned, buildings defaced with paint, tires slashed, and trees uprooted.

Some estimates placed the number of demonstrators participating as high as 8,000, although that included many peaceful antiwar pickets and onlookers.

But scores had come prepared to do battle with police. They wore football helmets or hard hats, shoulder pads, goggles, and vaseline to counteract police billy clubs and tear gas. A few used garbage can lids as shields.

The tactics of vandalism distressed many of the protest leaders. A bearded youth shouted at others who dragged and pushed a car into the street "For God's sake, stop it. Don't you understand you're defeating the whole movement. You're going to kill us with the public."

The others paid no attention to him.

U.S. Attorney Cecil Poole commented as he surveyed the littered area that "legitimate protest gets obscured when you foul it up with illegitimate action."

"Today's demonstrations were bad conduct and they are going to inflame a lot of the American public."

The tactics of vandalism distressed many of the protest leaders. A bearded youth shouted at others who dragged and pushed a car into the street "For God's sake, stop it. Don't you understand you're defeating the whole movement. You're going to kill us with the public."

The others paid no attention to him.

U.S. Attorney Cecil Poole commented as he surveyed the littered area that "legitimate protest gets obscured when you foul it up with illegitimate action."

"Today's demonstrations were bad conduct and they are going to inflame a lot of the American public."

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Greeks Convicted

ATHENS (AP) — A special military court today convicted 27 of the 38 persons accused in a mass trial of trying by violent means to overthrow Greece's military regime. The court acquitted the other 11.

The prosecution accused the entire group, made up of students, printers and workers, with being part of an underground movement directed by the outlawed Greek Communist party.

They were charged with setting off bombs that rocked parts of Athens in the past three months and with printing and distributing antiregime leaflets.

Disaster Recalled

ABERFAN, Wales (AP) — The survivors of the Aberfan disaster prayed in their churches and chapels today on the first anniversary of the avalanche of coal mine waste which killed 144 of their neighbors and relatives.

Jet Safety Order

LONDON (AP) — Because of the crash of a British Comet 4 jetliner last week off the Turkish coast, the plane's manufacturer has warned airlines not to fly it above 27,000 feet as "an interim precautionary measure."

The Comet 4 that crashed, killing 66 persons, had been flying at 29,000 feet and its operators, British European Airways, already have ordered the height restriction for their 12 Comets.

Invite To Jackie

MANIL A (AP) — President Ferdinand Marcos said today he is going to invite Mrs. John F. Kennedy to visit the Philippines on her way home from Cambodia.

Mrs. Kennedy is going to Cambodia next month to dedicate a memorial to her husband.

Span Dedicated

SAN MATEO (AP)—The new San Mateo-Hayward bridge was dedicated with tradiational ceremony yesterday. But it will not be opened to traffic until the end of the month because the pavement needs more time for hardening.

The six-lane, seven-mile-long span cost $70 million. The toll will be 35 cents. The bridge, begun in 1961 and having a center span 138 feet above the water, replaces a two-lane lift span.

Voyage Near End

REDONDO BEACH (AP)—A 23-year-old state lifeguard expected to end an almost 600-mile surfing journey at his home in Newport Beach today.

Blond, muscular Larry Capune pulled into Redondo Beach yesterday, 16 days after he left San Francisco on a surfboard. He made the trip in 18 days in 1964.

Capune figured he'd be able to make the final 47 miles today and break his record by one day. He has been averaging about 36 miles per day, at 40 to 60 strokes per minute, he said.

Oona Chaplin Breaks Her Exile

Oona

Mrs. O'Neill

POINT PLEASANT, N.J. (UPI) — Oona Chaplin, wife of Charlie Chaplin and daughter of the late playwright Eugene O'Neill, left for Switzerland today after two days at the bedside of her ailing mother.

It was the first time in 15 years that Mrs. Chaplin had been in the United States.

She flew here from Switzerland Thursday when she was notified that her 76-year-old mother, Agnes Bolton Kaufman, had been found alone and nearly dead of malnutrition in a farmhouse where she and O'Neill lived in the 1930's.

The 42-year-old Oona took her mother to Point Pleasant Hospital, under the name of Mrs. Eugene O'Neill, and stayed at her bedside for most of two days.

Mrs. Chaplin relinquished her U.S. citizenship when she was 18 to marry Chaplin.

Godfrey

Daly

Winchell

NEW YORK (AP) — Radio and television star Arthur Godfrey resigned yesterday as president of the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund in an apparent squabble with columnist Walter Winchell, its founder.

John Daly, director of Voice of America, followed Godfrey and announced his resignation as a member and director of the fund.

Godfrey quit after Winchell demanded a new board of directors for the fund. He claimed Winchell "made a rare appearance" at the annual meeting of the fund armed with proxy votes for a new board.

Winchell said Godfrey "is now leading my long list of ingrates." The columnist claimed he gave Godfrey his first break in television.

The performer said his resignation "is by no means an indictment of the organization.

Outlook Bleak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Home construction funds may dry up next year if the income tax measure proposed by the President is not adopted, a savings and loan industry meeting was told here yesterday.

Rex G. Baker Jr., of Houston, Tex., told the National League of Insured Savings Associations, which he heads, that there is the prospect of another credit squeeze similar to the one which resulted in a depressed housing market in 1966.

Candidate Loses

SAIGON (UPI)—A Vietnamese appeals court confirmed "peace candidate" Truong Dinh Dzu's conviction on illegal currency transaction charges yesterday and sentenced him to jail for nine months.

Dzu, the runner-up in last month's presidential elections, has 10 days in which to file a new appeal at a higher court.

Korea Shooting

SEOUL (UPI)—North Korean gunners fired across the border at a South Korean position, killing two soldiers and wounding four others, the United Nations command announced Friday.

Pope Due Surgery

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul VI definitely is being prepared for surgery following the end of the Synod of Bishops meeting here Oct. 29, informed Vatican sources said today.

The sources said the Pope's physicians had expressed "concern" that the 70-year-old pontiff was working too hard and implied he was endangering his health prior to an operation for an enlarged prostate gland.

Dove Endorsed

SAN MATEO, (UPI) — Ret. Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin has endorsed Paul N. McCloskey Jr. in the special election next month for the Congressional seat of the late J. Arthur Younger.

Both favor de-escalation of the Vietnam war.

Among other GOP candidates for the job is Mrs. Shirley Temple Black, the ex movie star and a hawk on the war issue.

Net Strike Drags

NEW YORK (UPI)—Union negotiators have rejected a new offer from the American Broadcasting Co. (ABC), dimming hope for early settlement of the month-old technicians' strike against the network.

LBJ A Loser In Governors' Sea Battles?

FREDERIKSTAD, V.I. (AP) —The Democrats lost the final naval battle to the Republicans but contended they won the political campaign as the nation's governors wound up the business of their seaborne conference without acting on a Vietnam resolution.

Although some dissident Democrats joined GOP state executives in knocking down a proposal to support the tax increase President Johnson has recommended to combat inflation, the Democrats stood solidly together in a test vote on the Vietnam issue. Prevented by Gov. George Romney's veto from getting executive committee approval of a strong war-supporting resolution, the Democrats tried to bring a watered down version before the last conference general session yesterday.

'STAND UNITED'

It would have committed the conference to saying that "beyond any question of approval or disapproval of the strategic and tactical decisions which are not our responsibility, we stand united in our fight for the freedom and self-government of the people of South Vietnam." Eighteen GOP votes blocked its consideration.

Gov. John A. Volpe of Massachusetts, elected new chairman of the national conference, supplied clear indication of Republican political uneasiness when he told a news conference he thinks several of his party members may issue statements to clarify their position.

Texas Gov. John Connally accused the Republicans of sidestepping the Vietnam issue. He likened some of them, without naming any one, to the Tories and Copperheads of previous wars. He associated them with rioters and draft card burners. He wound up by saying that there was "nothing partisan" about the resolution.

Romney spoke up during the ensuing rollcall to say that the conference was no place for foreign policy decisions. He said that past resolutions had been misused by the President as indications of strong support by the governors for the course he was taking in Vietnam.

REAGAN ON TAX

On the issue of government spending and taxation, California Gov. Ronald Reagan won a victory by moving to strike out of a pending resolution language he said would endorse Johnson's proposal for an income tax surtax.

The California governor said that cuts in nondefense spending must come before any tax increase. Romney joined him in this position and GOP Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland got the resolution killed by an 18-10 show of hands.

State Funeral

TOKYO (UPI)—The government today announced a state funeral will be held for former Japanese prime minister Shigeru Yoshida Oct. 31.

It will be the first state funeral in Japan since World War II. He died Friday at the age of 89.

REGENTS HUDDLE — California Lt. Gov. Robert Finch (right) confers with fellow University of California regents William Coblentz of San Francisco (left) and Edward Carter of Los Angeles. Regents Reaffirm Free Speech Rule, Ask Injunction Lifted

DAVIS (AP) — The University of California regents have restated the substance of their three-year-old rules upholding law and order and preserving free speech on UC campuses.

The regents' unanimous action yesterday included no criticism or special instructions involving the antidraft rallies this week on the Berkeley campus, which a judge had ruled illegal.

But Gov. Ronald Reagan says yesterday's resolutions mean more than repetition of old rules and apparent restatement of the policy allowing chancellors leeway in handling campus problems.

The governor's office called the resolutions "precedent-setting" in a statement issued in Sacramento one hour and a half after the regents' action. Reagan currently is attending the National Governors Conference in the Virgin Islands.

"This new statement by the regents clearly sets forth — for the first time — a specific policy regarding the unlawful use of university facilities," Reagan said.

A 1964 resolution mentioned general law and order on campuses. The regents first approved a resolution yesterday against "organizing or carrying out unlawful activity."

Then the regents quickly approved a second resolution saying that "the advocacy and content of speech at universities cannot and shall not be restricted beyond the purview of the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution."

"The two actions of the regents today reaffirm their past policy and the policy which we followed in connection with the proposed teach-in," Berkeley Chancellor Roger Heyns said at a news conference late yesterday.

Heyns was asked if the regents privately set down stricter guidelines. "No, I don't think so," he replied. "There hasn't been any prescription of specific orders."

The regents' voice votes on policy followed a longer discussion of a 1968-69 proposed university budget of $309.5 million, which the board approved.

The voice votes and lack of debate indicated unanimity among regents, who had met in some closed sessions Thursday and yesterday. The action also raised speculation over the regents' apparent full support of Heyns.

The chancellor made it clear to the board he felt that an Alameda County Superior Court order against an antidraft, antiwar teach-in at Berkeley Monday night made his job more difficult. He said the teach-in "would not have been an harangue, but a program of considerable educational merit. It could have turned out to be an alternative to law breaking."

"Our 'keep cool' strategy was simply overtaken by events," Heyns said later. Instead of the teach-in scheduled indoors, demonstrators moved outside for rallies which Heyns said were clearly illegal. He said some 100 students were cited on the campus for breaking university rules.

Wallace Aims At California

SANTA MONICA (AP) — The American Independent Party, headed by former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, is setting up shop this weekend in California, sponsors say.

Press secretary Bill Jones said yesterday at a news conference that "Wallace for President" headquarters was seeking to register the 66,059 Californians needed to qualify the party.

Jones added that "if one of the so-called major parties does not give American citizens this choice then Gov. Wallace will be a candidate. . ."

The first Wallace headquarters is being set up in Los Angeles, Jones said.

Wallace is expected in Los Angeles Oct. 29. His itinerary calls for stops in Costa Mesa, Long Beach, San Francisco, Sacramento, Fresno, Bakersfield, Santa Barbara and San Diego.

Reagan's Wire Disclosure Hit As Unlawful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Did California Gov. Ronald Reagan break a law by disclosing the contents of a secret White House radiogram which strayed into his hands during the floating Governors' conference?

Rep. John Monagan, D-Conn., thinks so. Monagan told the house yesterday a section of the U.S. criminal code makes it a crime for anyone "not an agent" of the sender" to divulge a telegram message without authorization.

"Clearly the Reagan divulgence comes within the terms of the statute and therefore is subject to prosecution under the criminal law of the United States," Monagan said

The telegram incident took place Thursday aboard the SS Independence en route to the Virgin Islands, and that may give Reagan an out. An exemption from this law is provided for "ships in distress,"

Judge Blasts Comments On 'Dynamite'

MERIDIAN, Miss. (UPI)—Federal judge Harold Cox's angry words fell like measured thuds of a heavy hammer on two Ku Klux Klansmen:

"No one on this earth can frighten this court."

Cox's federal district court and a white jury had just written a new page yesterday in Mississippi justice. The jury convicted seven klansmen of conspiracy in the 1964 slaying of three young civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss.

Suddenly, Cox accused two of the convicted men, one a deputy sheriff and the other a burly former nightclub bouncer, of "loose talk" about "dynamite" intimidation.

"I'm not going to let any wild man loose on civilized society," Cox told Neshoba County (Philadelphia) deputy sheriff Cecil Price, 29, and Alton Wayne Roberts, 28, of Meridian.

PAIR JAILED

Cox ordered them jailed without bond in Jackson. The five other men convicted, including Ku Klux Klan imperial wizard Samuel H. Bowers, were released on $5,000 bonds.

The jury of seven women and five men acquitted eight of 18 men brought to trial 13 days ago. They said they could not reach a decision in the three other cases.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said the jury's decision "represents a first step in a thousand-mile journey toward the goal of equal administration of justice in Mississippi."

MURDER CHARGES?

State prosecutor William H. Johnson Jr. said evidence presented in the federal case will be studied and a state grand jury may be asked to consider murder indictments in connection with the Philadelphia slayings. "We've never refused to bring charges," Johnson said.

The three civil rights workers slain June 21, 1964 were Michael Schwerner, 24, and Andrew Goodman, 20, both white New Yorkers, and James Chaney, 22, a Negro from Meridian. Goodman had been in the state only one day as a volunteer to the "Mississippi summer project."

Price appeared as cocky during the trial. He waved at prosecution witnesses who identified him.

Yesterday, he and Roberts were ashen-faced as they stood before the judge.

Cox, shaking with anger, roared that word reached him that Roberts had said: "Judge Cox just gave the jury the dynamite charge. We've got some dynamite for him ourselves."

Cox said Roberts and Price had been party to other such statements around the corridors of the courtroom.

"I'm annoyed at the stupidity of a person who would have the audacity to do this," the judge said.

Then the regents quickly approved a second resolution saying that "the advocacy and content of speech at universities cannot and shall not be restricted beyond the purview of the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution."

"The two actions of the regents today reaffirm their past policy and the policy which we followed in connection with the proposed teach-in," Berkeley Chancellor Roger Heyns said at a news conference late yesterday.

Heyns was asked if the regents privately set down stricter guidelines. "No, I don't think so," he replied. "There hasn't been any prescription of specific orders."

The regents' voice votes on policy followed a longer discussion of a 1968-69 proposed university budget of $309.5 million, which the board approved.

The voice votes and lack of debate indicated unanimity among regents, who had met in some closed sessions Thursday and yesterday. The action also raised speculation over the regents' apparent full support of Heyns.

The chancellor made it clear to the board he felt that an Alameda County Superior Court order against an antidraft, antiwar teach-in at Berkeley Monday night made his job more difficult. He said the teach-in "would not have been an harangue, but a program of considerable educational merit. It could have turned out to be an alternative to law breaking."

"Our 'keep cool' strategy was simply overtaken by events," Heyns said later. Instead of the teach-in scheduled indoors, demonstrators moved outside for rallies which Heyns said were clearly illegal. He said some 100 students were cited on the campus for breaking university rules.

Wallace Aims At California

SANTA MONICA (AP) — The American Independent Party, headed by former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, is setting up shop this weekend in California, sponsors say.

Press secretary Bill Jones said yesterday at a news conference that "Wallace for President" headquarters was seeking to register the 66,059 Californians needed to qualify the party.

Jones added that "if one of the so-called major parties does not give American citizens this choice then Gov. Wallace will be a candidate. . ."

The first Wallace headquarters is being set up in Los Angeles, Jones said.

Wallace is expected in Los Angeles Oct. 29. His itinerary calls for stops in Costa Mesa, Long Beach, San Francisco, Sacramento, Fresno, Bakersfield, Santa Barbara and San Diego.

Reagan's Wire Disclosure Hit As Unlawful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Did California Gov. Ronald Reagan break a law by disclosing the contents of a secret White House radiogram which strayed into his hands during the floating Governors' conference?

Rep. John Monagan, D-Conn., thinks so. Monagan told the house yesterday a section of the U.S. criminal code makes it a crime for anyone "not an agent" of the sender" to divulge a telegram message without authorization.

"Clearly the Reagan divulgence comes within the terms of the statute and therefore is subject to prosecution under the criminal law of the United States," Monagan said.

The telegram incident took place Thursday aboard the SS Independence en route to the Virgin Islands, and that may give Reagan an out. An exemption from this law is provided for "ships in distress."

Judge Blasts Comments On 'Dynamite'

MERIDIAN, Miss. (UPI)—Federal judge Harold Cox's angry words fell like measured thuds of a heavy hammer on two Ku Klux Klansmen:

"No one on this earth can frighten this court."

Cox's federal district court and a white jury had just written a new page yesterday in Mississippi justice. The jury convicted seven klansmen of conspiracy in the 1964 slaying of three young civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss.

Suddenly, Cox accused two of the convicted men, one a deputy sheriff and the other a burly former nightclub bouncer, of "loose talk" about "dynamite" intimidation.

"I'm not going to let any wild man loose on civilized society," Cox told Neshoba County (Philadelphia) deputy sheriff Cecil Price, 29, and Alton Wayne Roberts, 28, of Meridian.

PAIR JAILED

Cox ordered them jailed without bond in Jackson. The five other men convicted, including Ku Klux Klan imperial wizard Samuel H. Bowers, were released on $5,000 bonds.

The jury of seven women and five men acquitted eight of 18 men brought to trial 13 days ago. They said they could not reach a decision in the three other cases.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said the jury's decision "represents a first step in a thousand-mile journey toward the goal of equal administration of justice in Mississippi."

MURDER CHARGES?

State prosecutor William H. Johnson Jr. said evidence presented in the federal case will be studied and a state grand jury may be asked to consider murder indictments in connection with the Philadelphia slayings. "We've never refused to bring charges," Johnson said.

The three civil rights workers slain June 21, 1964 were Michael Schwerner, 24, and Andrew Goodman, 20, both white New Yorkers, and James Chaney, 22, a Negro from Meridian. Goodman had been in the state only one day as a volunteer to the "Mississippi summer project."

Price appeared as cocky during the trial. He waved at prosecution witnesses who identified him.

Yesterday, he and Roberts were ashen-faced as they stood before the judge.

Cox, shaking with anger, roared that word reached him that Roberts had said: "Judge Cox just gave the jury the dynamite charge. We've got some dynamite for him ourselves."

Cox said Roberts and Price had been party to other such statements around the corridors of the courtroom.

"I'm annoyed at the stupidity of a person who would have the audacity to do this," the judge said.

Has marijuana affected him in some way?"

"His processes seem to be dulled," the judge persisted, "not his thinking — it's something deeper."

Asked by Karesh whether Melkonian might use marijuana during his appeal, Mrs. Minurdi said "he's not that foolish."

Throughout the two-hour hearing, Mrs. Minurdi hammered away at state marijuana laws as "mislabeling" of a substance as a narcotic, "misuse of police power," "unequal protection of the laws" and "cruel and unusual punishment." "There isn't one iota of evidence that marijuana is dangerous," she declared.

"Everyone who has said it is dangerous stand so without any evidence," she said. "The people have been spoon-fed the 'marijuana myth.' "

Alcoholism kills 1,500 Californians annually, she said, but no deaths have been caused by marijuana. And the state, she argued, spends over $4 million a year to keep 1,539 men and women in prison for marijuana violations.

"This is cruel and unusual punishment to the taxpayers," she said.

Use of marijuana is "widespread," Mrs. Minurdi insisted, "and it is readily available in all junior high schools in the Bay Area because the children know the law is wrong and foolish. You can't go against human nature."

Pointing to the four stacks of manilla envelopes bursting with affidavits, Mrs. Minurdi said they were signed in a "spontaneous uprising" by persons "in all walks of life," including teachers, doctors, ministers, lawyers and psychiatrists — "all honorable middle-class people who work and play in the Bay Area.

"These are productive persons in the community, not dropouuts from society," she noted.

She also cited recent statements that marijuana is not harmful by Thomas S. Murphy, a deputy director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and by Dr. James Goddard, administrator of the Food and Drug administration.

Mrs. Minurdi said she asked "many persons" not to sign affidavits "because of their positions in the community."

"The only evil in smoking marijuana is the neurosis of fear of arrest," she declared.

The signatures were collected in two weeks by the Ad Hoc Committee for the Legalization of Marijuana. About a dozen committee members worked through Thursday night to assemble the affidavits at their command post in the home of Hugh A. Hinchliffe at 255 Greene Street, Tamalpais Valley.

Signers of the affidavits included 90 law students from the University of California's Boalt Hall, said Mrs. Minurdi.

Typical of the affidavits was one by Carol L. Marsh, an Independent-Journal reporter. She said she has smoked marijuana for six months, and found it "increases my sensory awareness."

The affect on society of her smoking marijuana, she said, "is comparable to the affect on society of my eating a cream puff."

Marijuana laws, said an affidavit by Darcy Shouldice of Sausalito, who admitted smoking "pot," are "making it just a little harder to be honest."

Lowell B. Asheley of Larkspur said he had been smoking it for 15 years, and said users "are much warmer, aware and alive . . . I am convinced that life would be much better if everybody turned on together."

About 30 supporters of Melkonian's appeal were in the courtroom, including business-types, hippies, and Mrs. Garnet E. Brennan, Nicasio school teacher who was fired after she admitted smoking marijuana for 18 years.

Melkonian, 33, was convicted last week in Marin of possession of marijuana, and was sentenced to one year in the county jail and three years of probation. He was allowed to remain free for yesterday's hearing in San Francisco, but is to begin serving his sentence Monday.

Cleric Sought For Helping Runaways

San Francisco police have issued an arrest warrant for Rev. E. Larry Beggs of 336 Ridgewood Avenue, Mill Valley, charging him with contributing to the delinquency of a minor for his association with a Haight-Ashbury haven for runaways.

Mrs. Beggs said from her home today that her husband planned to turn himself in to police.

Two other staff members of Huckleberry House, both from San Francisco, were arrested last night on the same charge, and nine juveniles were taken to the Youth Guidance Center in San Francisco.

Police said parents had complained that their runaway children were sheltered at the church supported home and that the children refused to come home.

Beggs had said recently that young hippies come to the house when they are ready to leave the Haight-Ashbury.

"We work out their problems with them and their family, or we try to find another home for them," Beggs said. The house operates on grants from the San Francisco Foundation and the Glide Memorial Foundation and receives help from the United Church of Christ.

year-to-life term for robbery in Los Angeles County.

They had hack-sawed the bars on their cells in the prisons "B" segregation block, reserved for troublemakers, and fled before yesterday morning's dawn bed-check. They left behind a denim-stuffed dummy.

They occupied adjacent cells in the B section. After escaping from their cells, they climbed up pipes to a gun rail, sawed their way through a window and swung down the main prison wall.

Perfect escaped from the Vacaville Medical Facility two years ago, and Kane and Porte have been disciplined at the prison for possessing knives.

Officers from the prison, sheriff's deputies and police patrols from San Anselmo, Corte Madera and Larkspur converged on the Greenbrae area after the telephone tip from the Galli residence. Perfect, hiding under a porch, was re-captured first. An officer, spotting the other two, fired a shot in the air and they surrendered.

A prison spokesman said the three had apparently committed no crimes before their capture. They were held in isolation cells in the prison and would volunteer no information about the escape. The hacksaw they used is a prison tool.

Bad Check Hearing Slated For Novatan

Preliminary hearing for William Michael Roach, 31, who faces four charges of passing bad checks, was scheduled in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for 9:30 a.m. Nov. 20.

Roach, of 16 Truman Drive, Novato, allegedly passed checks totaling $4,161 in Novato and Mill Valley from Aug. 1 to Aug. 18. He was arrested by Novato police Oct. 13.

defender, she found the people she wanted to fight for. "I was assigned to the women's court at seven o'clock every afternoon," said Molly, puffing a cigarette and bouncing slightly in her chair. "I represented the prostitutes, the homosexuals, the transvestites.

"I had never seen a prostitute. After a while," she said. "I could about tell what district they were from and what they charged. I always insisted they be treated like ladies."

The crusade against the marijuana laws began in the corridor outside the courtroom of Judge Joseph Karesh, of Superior Court, where Molly was representing Melkonian. He is a bachelor, a vegetarian, who neither drinks nor smokes regular cigarettes.

Giving motherly advice to her clients from San Francisco's half underworld, Molly had become convinced of the injustice of the marijuana laws. Possession is a felony.

She said, "I have clients who, for no other reason than possession of a matchbox of this non-addictive substance, are simply rotting away in San Quentin."

Molly, herself, never touches the stuff. "Heavens, I don't smoke maahr-a-whana — nothing that would affect my mind."

"I lead a very conservative life. I have my swim in the morning and then all my little wild birds come to have breakfast with me, the little red breasted finches, and the little mourning doves, which they passed an ordinance against feeding in the park, which I think is a dastardly deprival of a simple pleasure.

"I guess I'm an odd-ball. I like people, and I love the battle of the courtroom. I've always been very aggressive, and I've never had a frustration in my life.

"A criminal lawyer has a duty. The right of counsel is a very serious right. It is my duty to present every defense." Reflectively, she added, "Oh, I've learned a lot about the world. I try to give them a little motherly advice. I give them my time. I love what I'm doing. For me, there isn't anything else."

Peace Party Launched By Doctor Trio

Three Marin doctors are leading a movement in Marin to get a place on the ballot in November, 1968, for a new "Peace Freedom" party.

Drs. John B. Harris of Larkspur, Warren E. Levinson of Mill Valley and Thomas Pringle of San Anselmo plan an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Dr. Harris' home, 5 Monte Vista Avenue, Mill Valley.

Harris said the new party movement grow out of the Conference on New Politics, and organizers hope to collect the 67,000 registrations needed in California to get the party on the ballot. The doctors hope to get 1,000 registrations in Marin.

The party platform supports "Black Power in the positive sense and supports equality and self-determination for minority peoples" Harris said. The platform calls for expanded programs to aid the poor calls for the United States to get out of Vietnam opposes the "use of violence by national and local public officials to solve problems" and opposes "technological dehumanization" Harris said.

Harris said the party hopes to have its own convention and choose a presidential candidate for 1968.

Halloween Parade Set In Mill Valley

The Annual Mill Valley Halloween parade and costume contest will start at 7 p.m. Oct. 31 at the Greyhound bus depot in Lytton Square. The event is sponsored by the parks and recreation department.

Paraders will march up Throckmorton and East Blithedale avenues to the Boyle Park tennis courts, where the recreation department teen club will judge costumes. Costume awards will be given.

quently has been out of town during anti-war demonstrations, planned to be in the White House today for a normal day of work.

Although the White House was not an announced target for the demonstrators congregating in the city, the Secret Service and White House police force were braced for any eventuality. Temporary curbside barricades of steel cable were strung along both sides of Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the executive mansion.

Johnson has signed legislation imposing sharp new penalties on demonstrations in the neighborhood of the U.S. Capitol building, the White House announced today.

He acted at 11:29 p.m. EDT yesterday less than 12 hours before the big antiwar rally started here.

Free movement through the vast Pentagon came to a halt today for everyone except security officers and high officials.

All of 3,000 employees normally assigned to weekend duty within the building were under orders to remain in their own areas unless a special permission was granted to serve on essential purposes.

Even reporters, though given special passes and admitted to the building through an entrance usually closed, had to have a security escort to go down the hall for a cup of coffee or to the rest room.

The main halls were crowded with detachments of more than 1,000 military and civilian police assigned to guard the building.

In West Germany, effigies of Johnson were burned at Hamburg and Goettinger. Several thousand Germans staged a sit-down near the U.S. consulate in Munich but dispersed without incident.

Cookstove Fire Does $5,000 Damage In Novato

A pot left on a stove caused a $5,000 fire at the home of Jackie Miller, 527 Atherton Avenue, Novato yesterday at 8:25 p.m.

No one was home when the fire started. The kitchen, roof and attic of the house were burned, and the entire house suffered smoke damage. Firemen estimated the damage at $3,500 to the structure and $1,500 to contents. The house is owned by Paul Putnam.

While fighting that fire, Novato firemen had to answer calls on two other blazes. A grass fire started at 8:42 p.m. on the Richardson Ranch off Highway 37, and at 9:51 p.m. the awning of Stan's Appliance Store, 868 Grant Avenue, Novato, caught fire. The grass fire was caused by rekindling of a controlled fire and burned 6,000 square feet. Cause of the awning fire was unknown.

Inter-County Public Defender Pool Proposed

An inter-county pool of public defenders might cut down on the "excessive expense" of the Marin public defender's office, Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen asserted yesterday.

In many instances, the Marin public defender is disqualified because of cases involving conflict of interest, and a private attorney must be hired to replace him, Kettenhofen said.

Since other counties probably face the same problem, a regional pool of public defenders may be possible, Kettenhofen said. Under such a system, a disqualified public defender in one county could trade with his counterpart in another county, and vice versa.

Kettenhofen advanced the idea in a letter to the board of supervisors. He asks that the proposal be referred to the county counsel and the county administrator for investigation.

OBITUARIES

Edmund M. Zander Dies At 83

Edmund M. Zander of Novato, who served in the Spanish-American War at age 14, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 83.

Zander, of 1121 First Street, served aboard the Baltimore, a light cruiser, during the battle of Manila Bay in 1898. He was reportedly the youngest sailor in the Manila fleet.

Zander also served during World War I, having been stationed in the state of Washington.

He was a gardener for the City of San Francisco, retiring in 1947, and belonged to that city's employees association.

Born in San Francisco, he lived in Tiburon as a youth and in Novato the past eight years.

Survivors include his wife, Eleanor, and a son, Walter E. of Novato.

Requiem Mass will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Novato Chapel. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael.

When you become a participating member in Club Internationale you receive 2 bonus 10-day vacations in Bermuda, Mexico or Puerto Rico

(Quit your kidding. What's the catch?)

You've always wanted to travel . . . to turn "that same old vacation" into something really special . . . something exciting and different. But how often can the average person afford a trip to Europe? Or fun in the sun of Mexico, Puerto Rico, the Bahamas? Or the thrill of Las Vegas? It all costs too much . . . unless you become a member of the newest idea in vacations . . . the Club Internationale.

A GLAMOROUS NEW LIFE

It's a whole new way of life . . . made possible by a totally new concept in travel. Imagine flying to Europe on a big luxurious jet. It's a party from the start! Champagne, gourmet meals, entertainment! Before you know it, you're in Europe! Or you can go by ship. Either way, it's planned in advance . . . paid for in advance, including meals, hotels, transportation, sightseeing. And the cost is no more than you've been probably paying for your local vacations.

And you don't go alone, as just another tourist . . . with all the uncertainties of foreign exchange . . . foreign people. Instead you are with people you know . . . interesting people from your own area with the same urge to live better that you had.

ONLY WITH CLUB INTERNATIONALE

It all begins when you join Club Internationale. Annual dues ar $30 for an individual, $35 for a couple. Savings Plan Participation is $9.00 a week. That's all! Little more than a dollar a day! And you can start participating immediately in all the activities of your local chapter. This may include parties, instruction classes, language courses, and much more, at fractional cost, if any. And there's more! You meet interesting new people of your own age, your own interests. You make new friends. Your whole life becomes broader and richer. In the pages of the Internationale Vacationer (which comes with your membership) you read about the exciting vacation opportunities and Club activities that are going on.

THREE VACATIONS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE

After one year in the Club you're entitled to your first bonus vacation . . . ten fun-packed days in Mexico or Jamaica . . . or Puerto Rico . . . or any one of a dozen other places where trips are planned. And after the next year, another ten days at one of these glamorous vacation spots. (Similar 8-day trips also available.) And after the third year . . . Europe! 20 days by air, 30 by ship . . . expenses paid . . . paid for in advance at little more than a dollar a day.

DIFFERENT FROM ORDINARY TOURS

A Club Internationale vacation is completely different from the ordinary regimented tour where every hour of your day and night is organized. First, you have a choice of a dozen different places to go. And at least 52 times during the year! And when you get there, the excitement really begins! Imagine exciting inside activities like a cocktail party at a Mexican hacienda with an exhibition of jumping horses. Or a private party on the exclusive third level of the Eiffel Tower. Or stopping for a day in a beautiful chateau instead of a hotel. Places that ordinary tourists never see, people they never meet are part of your world . . . when you vacation the Club Internationale way.

HOW CAN THE CLUB INTERNATIONALE DO IT?

The principle is simple: The mass buying power of all the Club's members makes it possible to offer fabulous vacations at a drastically lower price. And the savings are passed on to you, through your Club membership.

Where else could you get a 20 to 30 day European vacation . . . plus two bonus ten-day vacations . . . plus the fun and special activities of the Club itself for only $1395.00 per person total payment plus annual dues! All this for little more than a dollar a day! That's a bargain!

YOUR MONEY IS SAFE

You send your payments directly to the Club Account maintained by a bank that services your chapter; from there the funds, as provided in the By-laws of the Club, are transferred to the Club Vacation Savings Account maintained with a major national bank. Members' savings are backed by a fidelity bond.

The Club Internationale plan has been praised in The Congressional Record of The United States (reprints on request). As a participating member, you simply save in advance for a European vacation and get two bonus vacations plus wonderful activities while you're saving. It's as simple as that.

Fill out the coupon and send it in now while Membership in Club Internationale is still available. Start your exciting new life today!

Mrs. Minurdi said she asked "many persons" not to sign affidavits "because of their positions in the community."

"The only evil in smoking marijuana is the neurosis of fear of arrest," she declared.

The signatures were collected in two weeks by the Ad Hoc Committee for the Legalization of Marijuana. About a dozen committee members worked through Thursday night to assemble the affidavits at their command post in the home of Hugh A. Hinchliffe at 255 Greene Street, Tamalpais Valley.

Signers of the affidavits included 90 law students from the University of California's Boalt Hall, said Mrs. Minurdi.

Typical of the affidavits was one by Carol L. Marsh, an Independent - Journal reporter. She said she has smoked marijuana for six months, and found it "increases my sensory awareness."

The affect on society of her smoking marijuana, she said,"is comparable to the affect on society of my eating a cream puff."

Marijuana laws, said an affidavit by Darcy Shouldice of Sausalito, who admitted smoking "pot," are "making it just a little harder to be honest."

Lowell B. Asheley of Larkspur said he had been smoking it for 15 years, and said users "are much warmer, aware and alive . . . I am convinced that life would be much better if everybody turned on together."

About 30 supporters of Melkonian's appeal were in the courtroom, including business-types, hippies, and Mrs. Garnet E. Brennan, Nicasio school teacher who was fired after she admitted smoking marijuana for 18 years.

Melkonian, 33, was convicted last week in Marin of possession of marijuana, and was sentenced to one year in the county jail and three years of probation. He was allowed to remain free for yesterday's hearing in San Francisco, but is to begin serving his sentence Monday.

Cleric Sought For Helping Runaways

San Francisco police have issued an arrest warrant for Rev. E. Larry Beggs of 336 Ridgewood Avenue, Mill Valley, charging him with contributing to the delinquency of a minor for his association with a Haight-Ashbury haven for runaways.

Mrs. Beggs said from her home today that her husband planned to turn himself in to police.

Two other staff members of Huckleberry House, both from San Francisco, were arrested last night on the same charge, and nine juveniles were taken to the Youth Guidance Center in San Francisco.

Police said parents had complained that their runaway children were sheltered at the church supported home and that the children refused to come home.

Beggs had said recently that young hippies come to the house when they are ready to leave the Haight-Ashbury.

"We work out their problems with them and their family, or we try to find another home for them," Beggs said. The house operates on grants from the San Francisco Foundation and the Glide Memorial Foundation and receives help from the United Church of Christ.

year-to-life term for robbery in Los Angeles County.

They had hack-sawed the bars on their cells in the prisons "B" segregation block, reserved for troublemakers, and fled before yesterday morning's dawn bedcheck. They left behind a denim-stuffed dummy.

They occupied adjacent cells in the B section. After escaping from their cells, they climbed up pipes to a gun rail, sawed their way through a window and swung down the main prison wall.

The noise of the other 210 men in the block covered their escape from the guard on duty in the cell block.

Perfect escaped from the Vacaville Medical Facility two years ago, and Kane and Porte have been disciplined at the prison for possessing knives.

Officers from the prison, sheriff's deputies and police patrols from San Anselmo, Corte Madera and Larkspur converged on the Greenbrae area after the telephone tip from the Galli residence. Perfect, hiding under a porch, was re-captured first. An officer, spotting the other two, fired a shot in the air and they surrendered.

A prison spokesman said the three had apparently committed no crimes before their capture. They were held in isolation cells in the prison and would volunteer no information about the escape. The hacksaw they used is a prison tool.

Bad Check Hearing Slated For Novatan

Preliminary hearing for William Michael Roach, 31, who faces four charges of passing bad checks, was scheduled in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for 9:30 a.m. Nov. 20.

Roach, of 16 Truman Drive, Novato, allegedly passed checks totaling $4,161 in Novato and Mill Valley from Aug. 1 to Aug. 18. He was arrested by Novato police Oct. 13.

MOLLY

defender, she found the people she wanted to fight for. "I was assigned to the women's court at seven o'clock every afternoon," said Molly, puffing a cigarette and bouncing slightly in her chair. "I represented the prostitutes, the homosexuals, the transvestites.

"I had never seen a prostitute. After a while," she said. "I could about tell what district they were from and what they charged. I always insisted they be treated like ladies."

The crusade against the marijuana laws began in the corridor outside the courtroom of Judge Joseph Karesh, of Superior Court, where Molly was representing Melkonian. He is a bachelor, a vegetarian, who neither drinks nor smokes regular cigarettes.

Giving motherly advice to her clients from San Francisco's half underworld, Molly had become convinced of the injustice of the marijuana laws. Possession is a felony.

She said. "I have clients who, for no other reason than possession of a matchbox of this non-addictive substance, are simply rotting away in San Quentin."

Molly, herself, never touches the stuff. "Heavens, I don't smoke maahr-a-whana — nothing that would affect my mind."

"I lead a very conservative life. I have my swim in the morning and then all my little wild birds come to have breakfast with me, the little red breasted finches, and the little mourning doves, which they passed an ordinance against feeding in the park, which I think is a dastardly deprival of a simple pleasure.

"I guess I'm an odd-ball. I like people, and I love the battle of the courtroom. I've always been very aggressive, and I've never had a frustration in my life.

"A criminal lawyer has a duty. The right of counsel is a very serious right. It is my duty to present every defense." Reflectively, she added, "Oh, I've learned a lot about the world. I try to give them a little motherly advice. I give them my time. I love what I'm doing. For me, there isn't anything else."

Peace Party Launched By Doctor Trio

Three Marin doctors are leading a movement in Marin to get a place on the ballot in November, 1968, for a new "Peace Freedom" party.

Drs. John B. Harris of Larkspur, Warren E. Levinson of Mill Valley and Thomas Pringle of San Anselmo plan an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Dr. Harris' home, 5 Monte Vista Avenue, Mill Valley.

Harris said the new party movement grow out of the Conference on New Politics, and organizers hope to collect the 67,000 registrations needed in California to get the party on the ballot. The doctors hope to get 1,000 registrations in Marin.

The party platform supports "Black Power in the positive sense and supports equality and self-determination for minority peoples" Harris said. The platform calls for expanded programs to aid the poor calls for the United States to get out of Vietnam opposes the "use of violence by national and local public officials to solve problems" and opposes "technological dehumanization" Harris said.

Harris said the party hopes to have its own convention and choose a presidential candidate for 1968.

Halloween Parade Set In Mill Valley

The Annual Mill Valley Halloween parade and costume contest will start at 7 p.m. Oct. 31 at the Greyhound bus depot in Lytton Square. The event is sponsored by the parks and recreation department.

Paraders will march up Throckmorton and East Blithedale avenues to the Boyle Park tennis courts, where the recreation department teen club will judge costumes. Costume awards will be given.

MARCH

quently has been out of town during anti-war demonstrations, planned to be in the White House today for a normal day of work.

Although the White House was not an announced target for the demonstrators congregating in the city, the Secret Service and White House police force were braced for any eventuality. Temporary curbside barricades of steel cable were strung along both sides of Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the executive mansion.

Johnson has signed legislation imposing sharp new penalties on demonstrations in the neighborhood of the U.S. Capitol building, the White House announced today.

He acted at 11:29 p.m. EDT yesterday less than 12 hours before the big antiwar rally started here.

Free movement through the vast Pentagon came to a halt today for everyone except security officers and high officials.

All of 3,000 employees normally assigned to weekend duty within the building were under orders to remain in their own areas unless a special permission was granted to serve on essential purposes.

Even reporters, though given special passes and admitted to the building through an entrance usually closed, had to have a security escort to go down the hall for a cup of coffee or to the rest room.

The main halls were crowded with detachments of more than 1,000 military and civilian police assigned to guard the building.

In West Germany, effigies of Johnson were burned at Hamburg and Goettinger. Several thousand Germans staged a sitdown near the U.S. consulate in Munich but dispersed without incident.

Cookstove Fire Does $5,000 Damage In Novato

A pot left on a stove caused a $5,000 fire at the home of Jackie Miller, 527 Atherton Avenue, Novato yesterday at 8:25 p.m.

No one was home when the fire started. The kitchen, roof and attic of the house were burned, and the entire house suffered smoke damage. Firemen estimated the damage at $3,500 to the structure and $1,500 to contents. The house is owned by Paul Putnam.

While fighting that fire, Novato firemen had to answer calls on two other blazes. A grass fire started at 8:42 p.m. on the Richardson Ranch off Highway 37, and at 9:51 p.m. the awning of Stan's Appliance Store, 868 Grant Avenue, Novato, caught fire. The grass fire was caused by rekindling of a controlled fire and burned 6,000 square feet. Cause of the awning fire was unknown.

Inter-County Public Defender Pool Proposed

An inter-county pool of public defenders might cut down on the "excessive expense" of the Marin public defender's office, Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen asserted yesterday.

In many instances, the Marin public defender is disqualified because of cases involving conflict of interest, and a private attorney must be hired to replace him, Kettenhofen said.

Since other counties probably face the same problem, a regional pool of public defenders may be possible, Kettenhofen said. Under such a system, a disqualified public defender in one county could trade with his counterpart in another county, and vice versa.

Kettenhofen advanced the idea in a letter to the board of supervisors. He asks that the proposal be referred to the county counsel and the county administrator for investigation.

OBITUARIES

Edmund M. Zander Dies At 83

Edmund M. Zander of Novato, who served in the Spanish-American War at age 14, died yesterday in a local hospital after a long illness. He was 83.

Zander, of 1121 First Street, served aboard the Baltimore, a light cruiser, during the battle of Manila Bay in 1898. He was reportedly the youngest sailor in the Manila fleet.

Zander also served during World War I, having been stationed in the state of Washington.

He was a gardener for the City of San Francisco, retiring in 1947, and belonged to that city's employees association.

Born in San Francisco, he lived in Tiburon as a youth and in Novato the past eight years.

Survivors include his wife, Eleanor, and a son, Walter E. of Novato.

Requiem Mass will be at 10 a.m. Monday at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Novato Chapel. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery in San Rafael.

When you become a participating member in Club Internationale you receive 2 bonus 10-day vacations in Bermuda, Mexico or Puerto Rico

(Quit your kidding. What's the catch?)

You've always wanted to travel . . . to turn "that same old vacation" into something really special . . . something exciting and different. But how often can the average person afford a trip to Europe? Or fun in the sun of Mexico, Puerto Rico, the Bahamas? Or the thrill of Las Vegas? It all costs too much . . . unless you become a member of the newest idea in vacations . . . the Club Internationale.

A GLAMOROUS NEW LIFE

It's a whole new way of life . . . made possible by a totally new concept in travel. Imagine flying to Europe on a big luxurious jet. It's a party from the start! Champagne, gourmet meals, entertainment! Before you know it, you're in Europe! Or you can go by ship. Either way, it's planned in advance . . . paid for in advance, including meals, hotels, transportation, sightseeing. And the cost is no more than you've been probably paying for your local vacations.

And you don't go alone, as just another tourist . . . with all the uncertainties of foreign exchange . . . foreign people. Instead you are with people you know . . . interesting people from your own area with the same urge to live better that you had.

ONLY WITH CLUB INTERNATIONALE

It all begins when you join Club Internationale. Annual dues ar $30 for an individual, $35 for a couple. Savings Plan Participation is $9.00 a week. That's all! Little more than a dollar a day! And you can start participating immediately in all the activities of your local chapter. This may include parties, instruction classes, language courses, and much more, at fractional cost, if any. And there's more! You meet interesting new people of your own age, your own interests. You make new friends. Your whole life becomes broader and richer. In the pages of the Internationale Vacationer (which comes with your membership) you read about the exciting vacation opportunities and Club activities that are going on.

THREE VACATIONS FOR THE PRICE OF ONE

After one year in the Club you're entitled to your first bonus vacation . . . ten fun-packed days in Mexico or Jamaica . . . or Puerto Rico . . . or any one of a dozen other places where trips are planned. And after the next year, another ten days at one of these glamorous vacation spots. (Similar 8-day trips also available.) And after the third year . . . Europe! 20 days by air, 30 by ship . . . expenses paid . . . paid for in advance at little more than a dollar a day.

DIFFERENT FROM ORDINARY TOURS

A Club Internationale vacation is completely different from the ordinary regimented tour where every hour of your day and night is organized. First, you have a choice of a dozen different places to go. And at least 52 times during the year! And when you get there, the excitement really begins! Imagine exciting inside activities like a cocktail party at a Mexican hacienda with an exhibition of jumping horses. Or a private party on the exclusive third level of the Eiffel Tower. Or stopping for a day in a beautiful chateau instead of a hotel. Places that ordinary tourists never see, people they never meet are part of your world . . . when you vacation the Club Internationale way.

HOW CAN THE CLUB INTERNATIONALE DO IT?

The principle is simple: The mass buying power of all the Club's members makes it possible to offer fabulous vacations at a drastically lower price. And the savings are passed on to you, through your Club membership.

Where else could you get a 20 to 30 day European vacation . . . plus two bonus ten-day vacations . . . plus the fun and special activities of the Club itself for only $1395.00 per person total payment plus annual dues! All this for little more than a dollar a day! That's a bargain!

YOUR MONEY IS SAFE

You send your payments directly to the Club Account maintained by a bank that services your chapter; from there the funds, as provided in the By-laws of the Club, are transferred to the Club Vacation Savings Account maintained with a major national bank. Members' savings are backed by a fidelity bond.

The Club Internationale plan has been praised in The Congressional Record of The United States (reprints on request). As a participating member, you simply save in advance for a European vacation and get two bonus vacations plus wonderful activities while you're saving. It's as simple as that.

Fill out the coupon and send it in now while Membership in Club Internationale is still available. Start your exciting new life today!

Underlining With A Light Fabric Helps On Fake Fur

By EUNICE FARMER

The "fake furs" are so attractive today that I can't resist any longer. I want to make a jacket but am not sure about interfacing and general information about this type of fabric. Any help will be appreciated. — MRS. J.E.L.

DEAR MRS. J.E.L.:

Fake furs are seen everywhere and they are truly a fun fabric. I saw a darling tunic with trousers out of white fake broadtail. I've seen walking shorts and jackets as well as coats, hostess pajamas and skirts.

Since you are making a jacket, I would suggest underlining the jacket with a light weight canvas hair cloth. This will give the fur fabric the weight you would usually find in an actual fur jacket.

Select a pattern with as few lines, seams, darts, as possible. Be sure to check the nap of the fabric, most fur fabrics do have a nap and must be cut and assembled in one direction. The nap should be smooth as you stroke it from top to bottom.

If there is any kind of pattern or shadings in the fur cloth, you might have to consider this when laying out the pattern. Use a slightly longer machine stitch and medium needle. You might try lining your coats or jackets with wool knit jersey for extra warmth without a lot of extra bulk.

After your seams have been stitched, pull the hairs of the fur that have been caught in the seam out with the point of your needle. Never press on the right side of your fabric, but press lightly from the wrong side. Darts are usually slashed open and slip stitched flat to avoid extra bulk.

This fabric isn't too expensive and is worlds of fun to play with. You might also use it as a very high fashion lining for winter suits or coats. Make a hat to match and you've really got something.

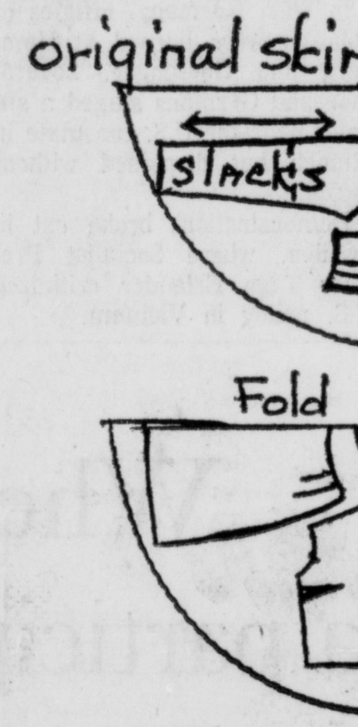
Many of you have asked me to repeat the sketch and information about cutting a straight skirt, slacks or whatever from a long, circular skirt that you have in the back of your closet.

Carefully, lay the skirt on a large flat surface where you can see the grain clearly. Place the straight grain line on the fold. Watch the grain on your pattern when placing it on your old skirt. You'll be surprised when you see what you can actually get out of it.

Mrs. Robert Webster, Titusville, Fla. is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"If you find you have rounded out a little during the summer and your dress is a little too snug, here's my way of adding inches where there weren't any. Slit the dress right down the center front and add a strip of grosgrain ribbon in one of the new stripes, or French embroidered ribbon for a beautiful new look, no one will be the wiser.

"If you need a little extra ease in the back, remove the back zipper. Face the edges with seam tape and replace the zipper keeping the two edges touching at the center back."



Vision Screening Clinic In Novato

A free vision screening clinic for pre-school children three years old and up, will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at the Novato Community House.

The purpose of the vision screening is to discover gross visual defects in the pre-school child so that these defects may receive professional care in time to correct the difficulty.

The third annual clinic, it is offered by volunteer workers who have been trained by the Northern California Chapter of the Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

The Novato Vision Screening project will include the children enrolled in the city's Tiny Tots Program, as it has for the past three years.

The program, endorsed by the County Health Department and the Marin County Optometric Society, is part of a county wide project sponsored and staffed by the Marin County Delta Gamma Alumnae Association and the Volunteer Bureau. Mrs. Harry T. Magill of Novato is coordinator for Northern Marin.

Parents who wish to bring their children to the clinic may make appointments by calling Mrs. Magill or Mrs. Bruce Robinson.

Buffet Supper Will Fete Musicians After Concert

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew S. Dewing (she's the noted pianist, Janet Graham) will be hosts at their home in Kent Woodlands Monday at a buffet supper.

It will follow the concert in Angelico Hall to benefit Dominican College's Maurice Wilk memorial scholarship fund and will honor Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Baller and Mr. and Mrs. Gabor Rejto. The concert is presented annually by Baller, a pianist, and Rejto, a cellist, in memory of their late colleague in the Almo Trio, Maurice Wilk.

Guests will be Dr. and Mrs. John Clements (soprano Margo Power) of Tiburon and Messrs. and Mesdames Rolf Persinger of Belvedere; Charles Meacham, Lucien Mitchell and Wayne R. P. Speckmann of Mill Valley; Hugo Rinaldi (pianist Faith France) of San Rafael; James Schevill (contralto Margo Blum), Alfred Frankenstein and Mrs. James Schwabacher Jr. of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Colin Hampton of Berkeley; and Mrs. and Mrs. Sandor Salgo of Palo Alto.

A GIFT FROM VOLUNTEERS

By EUNICE FARMER

The "fake furs" are so attractive today that I can't resist any longer. I want to make a jacket but am not sure about interfacing and general information about this type of fabric. Any help will be appreciated. — MRS. J.E.L.

DEAR MRS. J.E.L.:

Fake furs are seen everywhere and they are truly a fun fabric. I saw a darling tunic with trousers out of white fake broadtail. I've seen walking shorts and jackets as well as coats, hostess pajamas and skirts.

Since you are making a jacket, I would suggest underlining the jacket with a light weight canvas hair cloth. This will give the fur fabric the weight you would usually find in an actual fur jacket.

Select a pattern with as few lines, seams, darts, as possible. Be sure to check the nap of the fabric, most fur fabrics do have a nap and must be cut and assembled in one direction. The nap should be smooth as you stroke it from top to bottom.

If there is any kind of pattern or shadings in the fur cloth, you might have to consider this when laying out the pattern. Use a slightly longer machine stitch and medium needle. You might try lining your coats or jackets with wool knit jersey for extra warmth without a lot of extra bulk.

After your seams have been stitched, pull the hairs of the fur that have been caught in the seam out with the point of your needle. Never press on the right side of your fabric, but press lightly from the wrong side. Darts are usually slashed open and slip stitched flat to avoid extra bulk.

This fabric isn't too expensive and is worlds of fun to play with. You might also use it as a very high fashion lining for winter suits or coats. Make a hat to match and you've really got something.

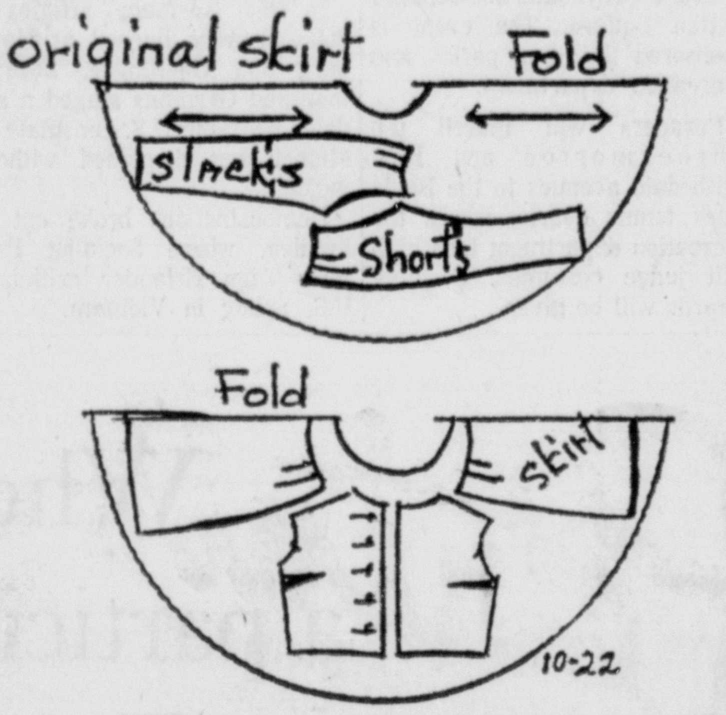
Many of you have asked me to repeat the sketch and information about cutting a straight skirt, slacks or whatever from a long, circular skirt that you have in the back of your closet.

Carefully, lay the skirt on a large flat surface where you can see the grain clearly. Place the straight grain line on the fold. Watch the grain on your pattern when placing it on your old skirt. You'll be surprised when you see what you can actually get out of it.

Mrs. Robert Webster, Titusville, Fla. is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"If you find you have rounded out a little during the summer and your dress is a little too snug, here's my way of adding inches where there weren't any. Slit the dress right down the center front and add a strip of grosgrain ribbon in one of the new stripes, or French embroidered ribbon for a beautiful new look, no one will be the wiser.

"If you need a little extra ease in the back, remove the back zipper. Face the edges with seam tape and replace the zipper keeping the two edges touching at the center back."



Benefit Party For Project Concern

Mrs. Maria Bala's home in Tiburon will be the setting for a benefit bridge and supper party in aid of Project Concern tonight.

Mrs. Archer Forsyth of Mill Valley will be co-hostess. Proceeds will be used for hospital supplies for Project Concern's maternity clinic, Casa de Todos, in Tijuana, Mexico.

Vision Screening Clinic In Novato

A free vision screening clinic for pre-school children three years old and up, will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday at the Novato Community House.

The purpose of the vision screening is to discover gross visual defects in the pre-school child so that these defects may receive professional care in time to correct the difficulty.

The third annual clinic, it is offered by volunteer workers who have been trained by the Northern California Chapter of the Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

The Novato Vision Screening project will include the children enrolled in the city's Tiny Tots Program, as it has for the past three years.

The program, endorsed by the County Health Department and the Marin County Optometric Society, is part of a county wide project sponsored and staffed by the Marin County Delta Gamma Alumnae Association and the Volunteer Bureau. Mrs. Harry T. Magill of Novato is coordinator for Northern Marin.

Parents who wish to bring their children to the clinic may make appointments by calling Mrs. Magill or Mrs. Bruce Robinson.

Mesdames Steven Bates, Richard Brown and Richard Beedle of Novato and James Fahrner, San Rafael and Peter Ribar and John Barrie of Kentfield will help at the clinic.

Buffet Supper Will Fete Musicians After Concert

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew S. Dewing (she's the noted pianist, Janet Graham) will be hosts at their home in Kent Woodlands Monday at a buffet supper.

It will follow the concert in Angelico Hall to benefit Dominican College's Maurice Wilk memorial scholarship fund and will honor Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Baller and Mr. and Mrs. Gabor Rejto. The concert is presented annually by Baller, a pianist, and Rejto, a cellist, in memory of their late colleague in the Almo Trio, Maurice Wilk.

Guests will be Dr. and Mrs. John Clements (soprano Margo Power) of Tiburon and Messrs. and Mesdames Rolf Persinger of Belvedere; Charles Meacham, Lucien Mitchell and Wayne R. P. Speckmann of Mill Valley; Hugo Rinaldi (pianist Faith France) of San Rafael; James Schevill (contralto Margo Blum), Alfred Frankenstein and Mrs. James Schwabacher Jr. of San Francisco; Mr. and Mrs. Colin Hampton of Berkeley; and Mrs. and Mrs. Sandor Salgo of Palo Alto.

FAMED BRITISH designer Hardy Amies, who is bringing his collection to the Bay Area, presented this traditionally exciting (and English) blazer. The blazer is Amies' fresh approach to his "Total Look." It is blue with four domed brass buttons —replete with the Amies pocket square and bold plaid trousers.

British Designer Predicts More Flare In Men's Styles

By LOIS SENS

"Why do I prefer the cuff showing beneath the suit jacket? After all, the hand that writes the checks, must be embellished."

So stated Hardy Amies, former clothes designer for the British royal family, as he presented his 'total look' collection at the St. Francis Hotel in the City Thursday.

The idea is partly tied in with color coordination. Tiny lines in the faint checks and plaids are picked up in the shirt color. And color for daytime wear is a must with Mr. Amies.

"I WAGE A WAR against dead white in shirts. One hundred twenty washings, but with no love." The British designer prefers white on white, pleats — anything to relieve the dead white look for evening wear.

And for daytime, the turtleneck stretch shirt is coming into its own. Picture a total look ensemble of muted plaid trousers in tones of carmel, beige and mustard. This would be matched in a squared off, rather long double-breasted vest over a chocolate brown turtleneck shirt. Over all this is a matching flared jacket, 32 inches in length, side vented and with a 'framed' wide collar.

ONE SUIT MODELED at the show was of a definite purple color, another jacket worn came in shocking pink. Mr. Amies pointed out such colors are part of a trend which in the next four or five years will accept some rather intense shades.

Hats, brims pointed downward over the eyebrows and boots, some with a buckle at topside, complete the total look. From Napoleonic collar to cuffless flared trouser leg, the American male will hold his own, in the best Edwardian tradition.

THE CALIFORNIA LOOK

Designers 'Pretty' The Style Picture

By JOAN SWEENEY

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —"The pretty look" was the "in" look among members of the Los Angeles Fashion Guild, a group of coutour designers and manufacturers who showed their spring collections Thursday at the California Fashion Traders' annual press week.

SUBTLE SHAPING that gently revealed the figure instead of concealing it, fine imported fabrics—wools, silks, cottons and linens—and more subdued color all contributed to the quiet elegance that marked the designs of the seven Guild members who displayed their lines for newspaper fashion editors from across the country.

The clothes were more closely fitted to the body above the waist. A return to the belt was one aspect of this trend. The placement of belts varied from the bust to the hip. When a belt was absent a contrasting or self band was sometimes used for the same effect.

Ruffles and embroideries heightened feminity.

SKIRTS WERE A-LINED, pleated or even gathered. Travilla summed up the trend in suit jackets when he said, "I like jackets very short or very long. I don't like them in between."

Costumes — coat and dress and three-piece suit—were very popular, but only a handful of pant suits was shown.

Travilla's dramatic collection was filled with the glitter and glamor of Hollywood. Sixty of the numbers in his collection were adapted from his costumes designed for the film version of "The Valley of the Dolls." One of these, a floor length burnoose worn by Susan Hayward in the picture, was a bead encrusted Paisley print.

His evening gown of three tiers of sunburst pleated white chiffon was feminity with a capital "F." The hem of each of the three tiers was ruffled and a ruffle enclosed its high halter collar.

HERROD SOMETIMES coupled his suits to a contrasting vest for a three piece costume. His version of the pant suit was in Italian silk with a leg pleated below the knee and a long A-line jacket.

Stanley Nelson advocated the belt, both slim ones and wide ones, that might be placed at the natural waist, raised or dropped. His skirts were bias flared, pleated or gathered.

A soft silk in black and white print made a highly graceful culotte dress that was trimmed with large matching bow at the neck.

AN EXAMPLE of the pretty look from Helga was an A-line cocktail dress of white cotton whose skirt and scalloped hemline was decorated with cotton lace daisies. Asked how the dress could be altered, Walter Oppenheimer, head of the firm, responded, "You do not alter the dress, you stretch or shrink the customer."

Her white Cardigan metallic and ribbon embroidered coat was copied from one she made for Princess Grace of Monaco.

Sebastian's knit ensembles — coats and dresses, suits and pant suits with matching skirts —used clashing color stripes set against white. His coats had striped bodies and solid sleeves or vice versa and were worn over coordinated dresses.

Seadrift Beach Presentation Party Tomorrow

Two hundred guests have been invited to the party and formal presentation of coastal beach property by William Kent III at the Seadrift Beach and Tennis Club tomorrow afternoon. At the 2 o'clock picnic and social gathering the land will be received by Seadrift Property Owners Association. Albert E. Kent donated Stinson Beach in the early 1900's to California as a park.

Marin City Citizens Due Board Seats

The Marin City Community Services District board has approved a plan whcih would put Marin City residents on the county redevelopment agency and the county housing authority boards.

The district board made plans Thursday to draw up a list of candidates at the Nov. 16 meeting for consideration by the county supervisors, who will make the appointments.

The plan as outlined by Donald O. Stutsman, executive director of the redevelopment agency and housing authority, is for one current member to resign from each body to make room for a Marin City resident. The aim is to have representation from the people served by the two agencies.

The board also heard a report by James O. Quiett of the Marin County Human Rights Commission on plans for a job training program, and on the commission's role in handling complaints about racial discrimination.

Quiett said an attempt is being made to set up an apprenticeship program through building trades unions which could include training for Marin City youths.

The board approved job descriptions for two new positions — assistant director and building superintendent for the Manzanita Neighborhood Center now under construction. The assistant director's salary will be from $6,000 to $8,000 and the building superintendent's from $5,000 to $6,000, depending on qualifications.

Doctors Differ Over Dangers Of Ambulance

Speeding ambulances, with sirens wailing, cause more deaths and injuries than they prevent by rushing a patient to the hospital, a Corte Madera physician says.

In a letter to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, Dr. W. Allen Conroy suggests that ambulances be taken off the "emergency" category.

Asked to comment on the proposal, County Medical Director Michael D. Scholl says he agrees with Dr. Conroy's statements on the matter of unnecessary speed.

"However, the important factor is speed, not necessarily the use of flashing red lights or siren," says Dr. Scholl. On two-lane roads and highways that are congested, the use of sirens and red lights are often necessary to clear traffic in emergencies, Dr. Scholl notes.

Aside from the legal question of whether ambulances can be removed from the emergency classification, Scholl is "opposed to changing their classification because red lights and sirens do occasionally have a place in the prompt transportation of patients to a hospital."

"The major issue is that of unnecessary haste, and control of this situation depends on the education and supervision of ambulance personnel," Scholl concludes.

Both points of view will be presented to the supervisors Tuesday.

San Rafael Marijuana Suspect Arraigned

Michael E. Gilliam, 19, of San Rafael, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a felony complaint of marijuana possession. Plea entry was scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Gilliam, of 79 Woodland Avenue, is accused of having marijuana in San Rafael Oct. 12. He also is accused of a misdemeanor offense of having a device for smoking a narcotic.

CAESAR HIMSELF . . .

Would feel right at home in this miniature Roman villa in the Dominican area. But you can don your toga, sit in front of the marble fireplace and feast your eyes on the sunken INDOOR POOL that separate the spacious living room from the equally large dining room! The master bedroom could hold an entire Roman legion, and the master bath, most naturally, has a Roman tub with built-in Jacuzzi. The unique accoutrements of this house would suit the Emperor Nero, and John Q. Public too, if he has an eye and taste for luxury!

GLENWOOD FOREST

Perhaps we are a bit premature, but we have had so many inquiries from people expressing an interest in this beautiful quiet and secluded area, that we have opened a temporary office, and are now taking reservations on the limited number of breathtaking view sites and secluded sites which are encompassed by trees. The new model homes are not built, and the streets are not paved, but the sites are ready. Wear your old clothes because it is dusty. We are sure that when you see this exciting setting, which we feel is outstanding and cannot be duplicated, you will be pleasantly surprised.

Our salesmen will be on the site all day Saturday, Sunday, October 21st and 22nd. During the following week by appointment. The phone at the site is 454-3768, or call 479-9611 for further information.

GLENWOOD FOREST

Perhaps we are a bit premature, but we have had so many inquiries from people expressing an interest in this beautiful quiet and secluded area, that we have opened a temporary office, and are now taking reservations on the limited number of breathtaking view sites and secluded sites which are encompassed by trees. The new model homes are not built, and the streets are not paved, but the sites are ready. Wear your old clothes because it is dusty. We are sure that when you see this exciting setting, which we feel is outstanding and cannot be duplicated, you will be pleasantly surprised.

Our salesmen will be on the site all day Saturday, Sunday, October 21st and 22nd. During the following week by appointment. The phone at the site is 454-3768, or call 479-9611 for further information.

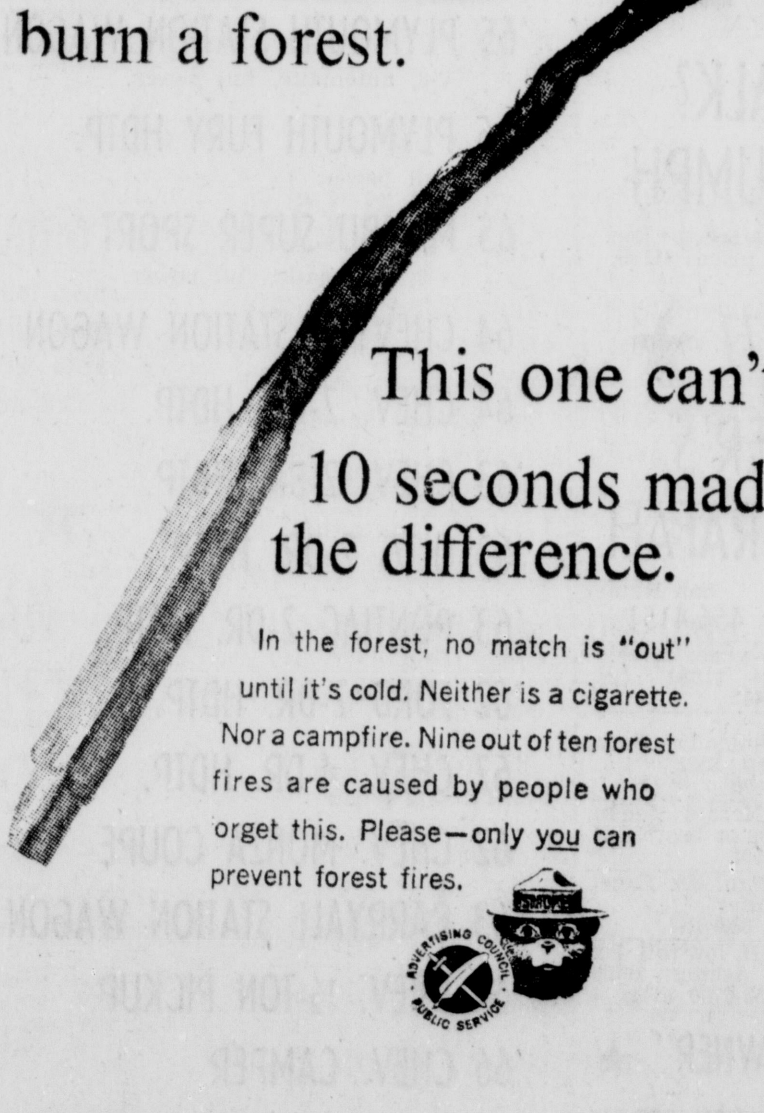
This match can still burn a forest.



This one can't.
10 seconds made the difference.

In the forest, no match is "out" until it's cold. Neither is a cigarette. Nor a campfire. Nine out of ten forest fires are caused by people who orget this. Please—only you can prevent forest fires.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

Three Compete For Two Seats

Two Kentfield Fire District Commissioners, challenged by another candidate, are vying to return to their seats in the Nov. 7 election.

Incumbents are William J. Williams of 19 Laurel Grove Avenue, who has served three three-year terms, and Arthur L. Poganski of 19 Manor Road, who seeks his second term.

The challenger is George W. Rust Jr. of 965 Magnolia Avenue.

Commissioner Joseph L. Smith is not up for re-election.

Mission Fete Parade Set For Tomorrow

from San Rafael and Tamalpais high schools.

Another event in the sesquicentennial was a concelebrated Mass last night at St. Raphael's Church. Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken and pastors of the other 20 California missions officiated.

This afternoon, more than 200 boats, decorated in honor of the celebration, were to parade up the San Rafael Canal. Ray J. Gallagher, chairman of the San Rafael Boating Association, said the parade would take about four hours.

The celebration will conclude tomorrow with one of the largest parades ever to take place in San Rafael, Arthur Hecht, parade chairman, said. It will start at 11:30 a.m. at Fourth and G Streets and continue past judges' stands in Courthouse Square, ending at San Rafael High School.

Eleven bands, several drill teams and drum corps, floats, marching units, mounted units and horse-drawn vehicles will participate, Hecht said.

Following the parade there will be a deep-pit roast beef barbecue from 1 to 3 p.m. on the grounds of St. Peter Chanel Seminary on Grand Ave. Preparing the food will be Nicasio Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West.

Festival Winners At Civic Center

Prize-winning paintings and sculptures from the San Francisco Arts Festival will be exhibited at the Marin Civic Center Monday through Nov. 30.

The Marin Museum Association will display 21 items and a group photography exhibit, which won top prizes and were purchased by the City of San Francisco. Among the art works on display will be a stoneware by David Morris of Kentfield, and three photographs by Ernest H. Francken of Mill Valley.

The exhibit will be on the third floor of the Civic Center near the board of supervisors chambers.

Horse Mishandling Case Set For Trial

Non-jury trial for Americo John Giubergia, soap company employee accused of mishandling an old horse which later had to be shot, was scheduled in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for 9:30 a.m. Nov. 13.

Giubergia, with Royal Tallow and Soap Co., Petaluma, is accused of hauling the animal unsecured in the rear of a truck from Muir Beach Aug. 17. The complaint was signed by Mrs. Evelyn Pervier of Muir Beach, who had arranged for the removal of the horse but said Giubergia failed to keep an agreement to kill the animal before taking it away.

In mountainous Guatemala, two-thirds of the people live more than half a mile above sea level.

'Little Mary Sunshine' Could Be Made To Shine Brilliantly

By KARL BARRON

A few years ago an Oakland boy named Rick Besoyan, inspired by the charming corn of early twentieth century operetta, dashed off a parody called "Little Mary Sunshine."

Produced off-Broadway, it ran and ran. Its spoofing of operetta tradition pre-dated the "camp" of Batman. Simple honesty, patriotism and loyalty opposed to downright dirty evil were the keynotes of its plot.

Terra Linda Little Theater's production at the Church in Ignacio is filled with vocal talent, and provides an amusing evening. But aside from two girls in the chorus —Betty Jarboe and Prue Zimmerman— and Joe Bologna as a very evil Indian, the company lacks style.

Lines which should be delivered with literal heart-rending sincerity, to give them comic impact, are tossed off in burlesque melodrama and lost. Action which should become travesty does not always do so, although director Mary Diederich has managed to attain far more visual than vocal excellence from her cast. I say this only in reference to the acting, for the singing is fine. So is Richard Sparapany's piano accompaniment.

VOCAL HONORS

Top vocal honors go to John Lindstrom (sometime member of the Lamplighters) whose magnificent baritone complements such lovely numbers as "American Beauty Rose" and "Underneath the Colorado Moon." The latter is a duet with Little Mary (Mona Horwitz). However, Lindstrom's Captain "Big Jim" Warington, when not singing, needs better delivery.

Miss Horwitz brings a fresh girlish quality to Mary in the beginning, and is uniformly good in her vocalization, but gradually allows herself to slip into a monotonous effort to be cute, which utterly negates the freshness. If she could maintain the quality with which she says "I burn with a young maiden's innocent curiosity!" her success would be unqualified.

'CAMPY' STAR

Nita Ray, as Mme. Ernestine von Liebedich, is a silver-haired beauty who sings well, fights her way through a Germanic accent and, most of the time, achieves the "campy" effect. Her "Do You Ever Dream of Vienna?" in duo with Morrie Batz, is a real gem. Batz as a retired general just doesn't make it, however.

Some good comedy comes from Sandra Johnston as Nancy Twinkle, Mary's maid. Miss Johnston has a belting voice and a beautiful body. If she learns to use the body as well as she does the voice, she will be quite a package. Bob Bensi shows a lot of comic talent, but needs sharper timing. His dance with Nancy and Bologna is a small masterpiece, sparked by Bologna and choreographed by Margo Jones, who did the musical staging.

Art Zasada's simple set uses are pleasing in the round. Costume co-ordinators Earline Wolf and Frances Andre deserve much credit for varied and colorful costuming. They receive an assist from chorus member Harold King, who made several fantastic Indian costumes.

My biggest complaint is on poor lighting. Characters throw deep shadows on other characters, and last night the board was being run improperly.

If I have seemed to pick I have done so because the faults can be corrected. If everybody comes up with the ingenuous, overflowing involvement of Misses Jarboe and Zimmerman and the deadly seriousness of Bologna's Yellow Feather, this could be the funniest show of the season. It will run Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. through December 2.

Card Burner's Verdict Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)--The U. S. Court of Appeals has ruled a draft board may reclassify a student 1-A if he burns his draft card.

A Berkeley youth, Russell M. Wills, was reclassified 1-A two years ago after he informed it that he was burning his card. A week later he was notified his student deferment was being canceled. He was ordered to report for induction early last year.

Willis refused to report. He contended the draft board violated his constitutional rights by reclassifying him on the basis of his protest action. A lower court found him guilty of refusing to be inducted.

The appeals court yesterday upheld the verdict, saying that to burn one's draft card is the same crime as refusing to be inducted.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Heavy Drinkers Found Likely To Suffer Certain Diseases

VAN DELLEN

Alcoholism is a growing health problem. Newer studies show that heavy drinkers are more susceptible to chronic diseases such as cirrhosis of the liver, high blood pressure, heart attacks, gout, diabetes, and emphysema.

Of questionable consolation to those who drink excessively is that they are less likely to develop kidney stones.

The medical division of E. I. du Pont de Nemours reported these conclusions after conducting a survey utilizing the medical records of 1,844 workers, 922 of whom were known or suspected problem drinkers.

An equal number had no trouble with liquor.

AMONG the alcoholics, 333 had hypertension whereas 148 of 922 nonproblem drinkers had high blood pressure. Peptic ulcer was found in 180 tipplers and in 117 of the controls.

Coronary heart disease, strokes, nephritis, asthma, chronic bronchitis, gout, neuritis, and diabetes were less prevalent in teetotalers and nonproblem drinkers.

THE DIET of alcholics along with their tendency to use other drugs and live in a disorderly manner probably play a more important causative role than alcohol. Cirrhosis of the liver is the exception.

In the past we believed that it resulted from nutritional deficiencies. More recent studied show that alcohol can produce a fatty liver which is the beginning of cirrhosis. At this time the heavy drinker usually is eating a well balanced diet.

NEARLY 11,000 deaths were attributed to alcoholic disorders in 1964. According to the Statistical Bulletin three-quarters of these were due to cirrhosis, a fifth to alcohol itself, and the remainder to alcoholic psychosis.

Statistics are not available on the number of deaths from heart disease, high blood pressure, and the other disorders mentioned previously in which alcohol played a contributory role. Lack of such information is understandable because of a reluctance to list alcoholism as cause of death when other complications can be recorded.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

MULTIFACETED DISORDERS

C. E. A. writes: Just what is cerebral palsy?

REPLY

The condition has been referred to as "an aggregate of physical, intellectual, and emotional handicaps resulting from brain damage before, during or after birth." Our leaflet goes into more detail. It can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

SHAKY KNEES

P. W. writes: Why do excitement and fear make my knees shake?

REPLY

Most of the shaking is in the leg muscles and not the knees. The stimulation may stem from the outpouring of adrenalin into the blood, which is the body's response to emergencies and marked emotional reactions.

TIME OF SINUS ACHE

A. I. R. writes: Is sinus headache likely to come on in the morning or later in the day?

REPLY

The sinus headache is an early bird. When the frontal sinuses are involved, pain usually begins around 9 a.m., becomes worse gradually, and wanes toward evening. Maxillary headache often comes later in the forenoon.

ONE LEG SHORTER

B. N. writes: Does spinal curvature tend to make one leg shorter than the other?

REPLY

No, but vice versa usually occurs.

Gas Chamber Appeal Going To High Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The way has been cleared for a high court review of attacks on California and Florida death penalty procedures.

U.S. Dist. Judge William T. Sweigert ruled yesterday there is no federal constitutional denial of rights in the case of Leman Russell Smith, 37, slayer of two West Los Angeles security policemen Feb. 1, 1964.

Smith, who had been scheduled to die on San Quentin's Death Row last Wednesday, has an indefinite stay of sentence to allow his appeal in the U. S. Court of Appeals and, if necessary, the U.S. Supreme Court.

The attack on death penalty procedures has held up execution of more than 50 prisoners in Florida. A similar collective stay in California was later dissolved with the understanding that the 59 persons on death row would individually prosecute their cases.

Three Compete For Two Seats

Two Kentfield Fire District Commissioners, challenged by another candidate, are vying to return to their seats in the Nov. 7 election.

Incumbents are William J. Williams of 19 Laurel Grove Avenue, who has served three three-year terms, and Arthur L. Poganski of 19 Manor Road, who seeks his second term.

The challenger is George W. Rust Jr. of 965 Magnolia Avenue.

Commissioner Joseph L. Smith is not up for re-election.

Mission Fete Parade Set For Tomorrow

from San Rafael and Tamalpais high schools.

Another event in the sesquicentennial was a concelebrated Mass last night at St. Raphael's Church. Archbishop Joseph T. McGucken and pastors of the other 20 California missions officiated.

This afternoon, more than 200 boats, decorated in honor of the celebration, were to parade up the San Rafael Canal. Ray J. Gallagher, chairman of the San Rafael Boating Association, said the parade would take about four hours.

The celebration will conclude tomorrow with one of the largest parades ever to take place in San Rafael, Arthur Hecht, parade chairman, said. It will start at 11:30 a.m. at Fourth and G Streets and continue past judges' stands in Courthouse Square, ending at San Rafael High School.

Eleven bands, several drill teams and drum corps, floats, marching units, mounted units and horse-drawn vehicles will participate, Hecht said.

Following the parade there will be a deep-pit roast beef barbecue from 1 to 3 p.m. on the grounds of St. Peter Chanel Seminary on Grand Ave. Preparing the food will be Nicasio Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West.

Festival Winners At Civic Center

Prize-winning paintings and sculptures from the San Francisco Arts Festival will be exhibited at the Marin Civic Center Monday through Nov. 30.

The Marin Museum Association will display 21 items and a group photography exhibit, which won top prizes and were purchased by the City of San Francisco. Among the art works on display will be a stoneware by David Morris of Kentfield, and three photographs by Ernest H. Francken of Mill Valley.

The exhibit will be on the third floor of the Civic Center near the board of supervisors chambers.

Horse Mishandling Case Set For Trial

Non-jury trial for Americo John Giubergia, soap company employee accused of mishandling an old horse which later had to be shot, was scheduled in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for 9:30 a.m. Nov. 13.

Giubergia, with Royal Tallow and Soap Co., Petaluma, is accused of hauling the animal unsecured in the rear of a truck from Muir Beach Aug. 17. The complaint was signed by Mrs. Evelyn Pervier of Muir Beach, who had arranged for the removal of the horse but said Giubergia failed to keep an agreement to kill the animal before taking it away.

In mountainous Guatemala, two-thirds of the people live more than half a mile above sea level.

THEATER REVIEW

'Little Mary Sunshine' Could Be Made To Shine Brilliantly

By KARL BARRON

A few years ago an Oakland boy named Rick Besoyan, inspired by the charming corn of early twentieth century operetta, dashed off a parody called "Little Mary Sunshine."

Produced off-Broadway, it ran and ran. Its spoofing of operetta tradition pre-dated the "camp" of Batman. Simple honesty, patriotism and loyalty opposed to downright dirty evil were the keynotes of its plot.

Terra Linda Little Theater's production at the Church in Ignacio is filled with vocal talent, and provides an amusing evening. But aside from two girls in the chorus —Betty Jarboe and Prue Zimmerman—and Joe Bologna as a very evil Indian, the company lacks style.

Lines which should be delivered with literal heart-rending sincerity, to give them comic impact, are tossed off in burlesque melodrama and lost. Action which should become travesty does not always do so, although director Mary Diederich has managed to attain far more visual than vocal excellence from her cast. I say this only in reference to the acting, for the singing is fine. So is Richard Sparapany's piano accompaniment.

VOCAL HONORS

Top vocal honors go to John Lindstrom (sometime member of the Lamplighters) whose magnificent baritone complements such lovely numbers as "American Beauty Rose" and "Underneath the Colorado Moon." The latter is a duet with Little Mary (Mona Horwitz). However, Lindstrom's Captain "Big Jim" Warington, when not singing, needs better delivery.

Miss Horwitz brings a fresh girlish quality to Mary in the beginning, and is uniformly good in her vocalization, but gradually allows herself to slip into a monotonous effort to be cute, which utterly negates the freshness. If she could maintain the quality with which she says "I burn with a young maiden's innocent curiosity!" her success would be unqualified.

'CAMPY' STAR

Nita Ray, as Mme. Ernestine von Liebedich, is a silver-haired beauty who sings well, fights her way through a Germanic accent and, most of the time, achieves the "campy" effect. Her "Do You Ever Dream of Vienna?" in duo with Morrie Batz, is a real gem. Batz as a retired general just doesn't make it, however.

Some good comedy comes from Sandra Johnston as Nancy Twinkle, Mary's maid. Miss Johnston has a belting voice and a beautiful body. If she learns to use the body as well as she does the voice, she will be quite a package. Bob Bensi shows a lot of comic talent, but needs sharper timing. His dance with Nancy and Bologna is a small masterpiece, sparked by Bologna and choreographed by Margo Jones, who did the musical staging.

Art Zasada's simple set uses are pleasing in the round. Costume co-ordinators Earline Wolf and Frances Andre deserve much credit for varied and colorful costuming. They receive an assist from chorus member Harold King, who made several fantastic Indian costumes.

My biggest complaint is on poor lighting. Characters throw deep shadows on other characters, and last night the board was being run improperly.

If I have seemed to pick I have done so because the faults can be corrected. If everybody comes up with the ingenuous, overflowing involvement of Misses Jarboe and Zimmerman and the deadly seriousness of Bologna's Yellow Feather, this could be the funniest show of the season. It will run Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. through December 2.

Card Burner's Verdict Upheld

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The U. S. Court of Appeals has ruled a draft board may reclassify a student 1-A if he burns his draft card.

A Berkeley youth, Russell M. Wills, was reclassified 1-A two years ago after he informed it that he was burning his card. A week later he was notified his student deferment was being canceled. He was ordered to report for induction early last year.

Willis refused to report. He contended the draft board violated his constitutional rights by reclassifying him on the basis of his protest action. A lower court found him guilty of refusing to be inducted.

The appeals court yesterday upheld the verdict, saying that to burn one's draft card is the same crime as refusing to be inducted.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

Alcoholism is a growing health problem. Newer studies show that heavy drinkers are more susceptible to chronic diseases such as cirrhosis of the liver, high blood pressure, heart attacks, gout, diabetes, and emphysema.

Of questionable consolation to those who drink excessively is that they are less likely to develop kidney stones.

The medical division of E. I. du Pont de Nemours reported these conclusions after conducting a survey utilizing the medical records of 1,844 workers, 922 of whom were known or suspected problem drinkers.

An equal number had no trouble with liquor.

AMONG the alcoholics, 333 had hypertension whereas 148 of 922 nonproblem drinkers had high blood pressure. Peptic ulcer was found in 180 tipplers and in 117 of the controls.

Coronary heart disease, strokes, nephritis, asthma, chronic bronchitis, gout, neuritis, and diabetes were less prevalent in teetotalers and nonproblem drinkers.

THE DIET of alcholics along with their tendency to use other drugs and live in a disorderly manner probably play a more important causative role than alcohol. Cirrhosis of the liver is the exception.

In the past we believed that it resulted from nutritional deficiencies. More recent studied show that alcohol can produce a fatty liver which is the beginning of cirrhosis. At this time the heavy drinker usually is eating a well balanced diet.

NEARLY 11,000 deaths were attributed to alcoholic disorders in 1964. According to the Statistical Bulletin three-quarters of these were due to cirrhosis, a fifth to alcohol itself, and the remainder to alcoholic psychosis.

Statistics are not available on the number of deaths from heart disease, high blood pressure, and the other disorders mentioned previously in which alcohol played a contributory role. Lack of such information is understandable because of a reluctance to list alcoholism as cause of death when other complications can be recorded.

MULTIFACETED DISORDERS

C. E. A. writes: Just what is cerebral palsy?

REPLY

The condition has been referred to as "an aggregate of physical, intellectual, and emotional handicaps resulting from brain damage before, during or after birth." Our leaflet goes into more detail. It can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

SHAKY KNEES

P. W. writes: Why do excitement and fear make my knees shake?

REPLY

Most of the shaking is in the leg muscles and not the knees. The stimulation may stem from the outpouring of adrenalin into the blood, which is the body's response to emergencies and marked emotional reactions.

TIME OF SINUS ACHE

A. I. R. writes: Is sinus headache likely to come on in the morning or later in the day?

REPLY

The sinus headache is an early bird. When the frontal sinuses are involved, pain usually begins around 9 a.m., becomes worse gradually, and wanes toward evening. Maxillary headache often comes later in the forenoon.

ONE LEG SHORTER

B. N. writes: Does spinal curvature tend to make one leg shorter than the other?

REPLY

No, but vice versa usually occurs.

Gas Chamber Appeal Going To High Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The way has been cleared for a high court review of attacks on California and Florida death penalty procedures.

U.S. Dist. Judge William T. Sweigert ruled yesterday there is no federal constitutional denial of rights in the case of Leman Russell Smith, 37, slayer of two West Los Angeles security policemen Feb. 1, 1964.

Smith, who had been scheduled to die on San Quentin's Death Row last Wednesday, has an indefinite stay of sentence to allow his appeal in the U. S. Court of Appeals and, if necessary, the U.S. Supreme Court.

The attack on death penalty procedures has held up execution of more than 50 prisoners in Florida. A similar collective stay in California was later dissolved with the understanding that the 59 persons on death row would individually prosecute their cases.

Mission Celebration Time To Look At Past

THE SPOTLIGHT IS on Mission San Rafael Arcangel these days. Its interesting history is reviewed in some detail in a two-part Marin Magazine article by I-J historian Florence Donnelly.

The 150th anniversary of the founding of the mission turns our thoughts to earlier days in Marin and those of us who tend to be history buffs enjoy imagining how it must have been.

There was no I-J in 1817 when the mission was established. There was no agriculture and no industry, unless you count the primitive crafts of the Coast Miwok Indians who inhabited this area.

There were no permanent settlements. Western civilization as we know it from history books was non-existent here prior to 1817.

FIFTY YEARS LATER, things were different. There was a thriving village in San Rafael. The 50th anniversary of the founding of the mission apparently passed unobserved in 1867.

By the time the 100th anniversary rolled around in 1917, however, San Rafael was more mature and more sophisticated. The town held quite a celebration. But San Rafael 50 years ago was more like it is today than it was in the beginning.

A century ago, the beginnings were still evident and the beginnings were still in process.

The old Marin Journal (from which today's I-J inherits half its name) observed its own sixth birthday and its editor wrote:

"We have labored since our advent upon the sea of journalism to freight our little bark with a choice cargo — have endeavored to make it a welcome vehicle of intelligence to the people of the county, have strove to amuse as well as instruct, and if we have fallen short of the expectations of our patrons, we can only say that we did our utmost to fulfill the promises set forth.

"Our position is not to be envied — we have many tastes to satisfy and it would be no wonder to find now and then some cynics who fail to apreciate our efforts."

FROM THE DIRECTORY of public officials which the Journal printed occasionally, we know that Al Barney (father and financial backer of founding editor Jerome Barney) was county superintendent of schools in 1867.

It is reasonable to assume that the Journal editor occasionally received some advice from a school administrator, then, on how to run the newspaper. History repeats; this still happens occasionally.

GLANCE AT A FEW ISSUES of the Journal and one fact stands out. Marin had a serious transportation problem a century ago.

Roads were terrible. The road to Bolinas was so bad that mail had to be carried at times by horseback instead of stage coach.

The Journal editorialized often on the need for more and better roads, noting that the county had recently got out of debt, had a treasury surplus and therefore should be able to bring about much needed road improvements.

Some property owners along proposed road routes objected and fought to stall action. Progress was slow.

JOURNAL ADVERTISEMENTS indicate public transportation apparently was adequate for the times. The sloop "Adavance" provided both passenger and freight service from Ross Landing to Market Street wharf.

For the benefit of those whose memory doesn't go back that far, let it be recalled that Ross Landing was on Corte Madera Creek at present-day Kentfield and the Market Street wharf was, of course, predecessor of today's Ferry Building in San Francisco.

San Rafael Stage Line (whose advertising carried a sketch of a horse-drawn stage coach) left San Rafael daily for San Quentin to meet the steamer "Contra Costa" for service to San Francisco.

"New and elegant" carriages and buggies were available for hire from "Old San Rafael Stable near the San Rafael Hotel."

THE JOURNAL'S "Local Intelligence" column of a century ago afforded us further glimpses of life in Marin as it was then.

San Rafael public school enrollment was reported to have reached 54.

The county board of supervisors voted to allow the sheriff a dollar a day for feeding, housing and caring for county jail inmates in his custody.

Point Reyes was still referred to by its Hispanic name, Punta de Los Reyes, and Congress appropriated $15,000 to build a new lighthouse there.

San Quentin Prison's inmate population had grown to 700, including many of Mexican and Chinese ancestry.

An Indian known as "Salvador" was being held at the county jail for a murder in Tomales. Old-timers said he was the son of "Old Big-Head," remembered as chief of the Nicasio Indians.

At Bolinas and Olema, the Sons of Temperance was a flourishing organization, electing new officers and setting forth new goals in the fight against the demon rum.

Meanwhile, relatives of one Peter Dolan advertised a $50 reward for the recovery of his body. He had not been seen since the night he was "put out" of the saloon at Ross Landing "in a state of extreme intoxication." His hat was subsequently found near the bridge at the landing and his horse was tied nearby. He was believed to have fallen into Corte Madera Creek and drowned.

From across the Bay came word that rioters had attacked Chinese in San Francisco with the aim of driving them from the city.

In San Rafael's public school house, a different clergyman each Sunday conducted "divine worship services."

The American Hotel in Tomales boasted "a table equal to any hotel in the state" and a bar "supplied with the choicest wines, liquors and cigars."

You might say that in the first 50 years after Mission San Rafael Arcangel was founded, civilization as we know it became well established here.

Can't Tighten Belt, Must Use Galluses

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your article re school tax and belt tightening — want to say I am not eating enough for belt. No good. Old-fashion galluses for me.

On next page, same paper, Tam School Dist. teachers stealing $2,500, only they have a fancy name for it: merit pay. Last week our school supt. got his hand on the purse and raised his yearly salary $4,000. This disease must be contagious.

The Tam school teachers — did they just discover they had any merit? What kind of I.Q. have they been coasting on before? . . .

Smells, Flies Annoy In Gallinas Village

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Something smells, and it isn't anything rotten in Denmark! These smells emit around Santa Venetia, and in particular Gallinas Village. The source is fairly well established by the majority of Gallinas Village residents, but trying to do anything about them is another matter. The rancid, putrid odor drifts in on the late afternoon breezes, and saturates our homes with an aroma that is unbelieveable. If we're lucky, it finally diminishes for a few hours, only to come back again with an unleashed fury, on the early morning breezes. If you don't mind being made nauseated most of the time, this is a great community in which to live. And by all means don't let me forget to mention (as if I ever could) the flies. You have to learn to eat, sleep and make merry with them, for there is no escape from these barnyard rejects.

Appealing to the Department of Environmental Health is like nothing. That is exactly what you receive. . . . It is almost pathetic to listen to them. I guess we are supposed to be so darn gullible, and I resent that ! Gentlemen of the health department, put your book learning to a good use and do something concrete about these problems. Whoever and whatever is responsible for this fiasco has not the right to jeopardize the health and happiness of a whole community. If you can't do a job for which you are paid, please get someone who can!

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Marin Democrats Turn Attention Far To North

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Afghanistanism — worrying about problems in a distant land when discomfited about problems at home — was practiced to a fine art this week by the Marin County Democratic Central Committee.

Marin County is faced with a reapportionment plan that threatens to lump half of its votets in a San Francisco congressional district, and the county's official, elected Democratic organization could have been expected to take a stand on the threat.

INSTEAD, the committee cast its eye far north and passed a resolution opposing removal from the First Congressional District of Del Norte, Humboldt and Napa counties. Marin — the only county the committee represents — was not even mentioned in the resolution.

A resolution which opposed cutting Marin out of the First District was dropped in favor of the one adopted. Voting was by a show of hands, so no record was kept of the vote — but it was not unanimous. Also, only 12 of the 21 committee members attended the Tuesday meeting.

Several committee members declined to comment "on the record" on the failure to include Marin in the resolution, but one conceded that Democrats could gain strength in the district if the predominantly Republican county were dismembered.

SOME SOUTHERN Marin Democrats made no secret of their wish to become part of Democratic Rep. Phillip Burton's San Francisco district. However, the plan before the state Supreme Court — which will reapportion the state if the Legislature fails to next month — would put Southern Marin in Republican Rep. William S. Mailliard's district.

Southern Marin's interests, some of the committee members argued, are more like San Francisco's than like those of the North Coast counties. Southern Marin is a bedroom annex of the big city, said one.

There reportedly was no discussion at the committee meeting of the affect of dismemberment on the county's political strength, which now is considerable in the First Congressional District.

The Marin County Republican Central Committee, incidentally, already is on record opposing any reapportionment plan that would split the county. That, too, may be partisan politics, but it seems more responsive to the need of the county to remain a political whole.

THIS IS A BIG week for Marin Republicans — and this is not meant as a comparision with the above plaint about the Democrats.

Last night, the party held the grand opening of its new headquarters at 915 Lootens Place, San Rafael. Today, party workers will launch a special push to swell Republican registration rolls.

Tomorrow, the GOP will enter an antique car in a parade celebrating the 150th anniversary of San Rafael's mission. Tuesday, the GOP Central Committee will hear reports on the 1967 Legislature from Sen. John F McCarthy and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, at 8 p.m. in the county courthouse.

Finale to the week will be a dinner for Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch Friday evening at Peacock Gap Country Club.

Baggy eyes are a cost of success.

Signs Of Slump Hurt Tax Proposal

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key segments of the economy have temporarily lost some of their bloom at a time the Johnson administration needs help the most in pulling its tax chestnuts from congressional fires.

The unemployment rate, industrial output and personal income weakened in September although the basic economy remained strong.

Government economists insist their economic arguments for a tax increase are still as valid as ever, perhaps more so, and blame special circumstances—strikes and a fantastic number of women seeking work—for the weakening.

THEY POINT to a bullish $15 billion advance in gross national product—the value of all goods and services produced in the economy—during the third quarter. It was the biggest increase in 1½ years.

And they foresee an even larger increase—perhaps as high as an inflationary $23 billion—during the fourth quarter unless taxes are raised.But with President Johnson's request for a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes locked in the congressional-administration fight over spending cuts, the administration now needs all the help it can get to bolster its position.

The weakening in three key economic indicators will hardly accomplish this.

THE ADMINISTRATION contends the surcharge is needed to stem inflationary pressures in an over-expanding economy.

One surcharge opponent, Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., of the Senate-House Economic Committee, has already cited the weakened indicators as vindication for his position.

"There is no economic case for a tax increase now," Proxmire said in a Senate speech Tuesday.

He said a drop in industrial production during September on top of an increase in the unemployment rate showed the economy is suffering from too much slack, not excessive demand.

The administration takes a longer-range view.

BUDGET BUREAU Director Charles L. Schultze pointed Tuesday to what he said are numerous signs of an accelerating economy, including recent rapid advances in personal income and industrial production and rising employment.

"The combination of a sizeable budgetary deficit and a rapidly advancing, fullyemployed economy presents an inflationary potential that we clearly should not allow to become a reality," he told a congressional committee.

Here's what happened, however, to unsettle the economic picture during September, at least temporarily:

Unemployment — The Labor Department reported an unemployment rate of 4.1 per cent, the highest since November 1965. It said employment remained strong and an unusually large increase in adult women seeking jobs was responsible for the higher rate.

Industrial Production — The Federal Reserve Board reported a 1.5 per cent decline in its production gains. It blamed strikes in the auto, copper and steel hauling industries for the decline.

Personal income—The Commerce Department reported a $2 billion increase, the smallest in four months, and blamed the Ford strike for most of the slowdown. Income rose about $4.5 billion during each of the three previous months.

Retail sales — Preliminary Commerce Department figures show a record $26.7 billion during September but the trend the past four months has been more of a leveling off rather than a sharp advance.

Federal Highway Cutback Called Dishonest Gimmick

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has labeled the threat of the Johnson Administration to cut back federal highway funds as a dishonest fiscal gimmick and one that would disrupt the interstate highway construction program.

"It is ironic that while Washington is emphasizing highway safety and imposing many controls throughout the states, at the same time it continues to suggest the diversion of highway trust funds from the construction of more and safer highways," Reagan said.

Reagan points out that the federal highway program is supported with gasoline tax funds placed in trust only for that purpose. They "cannot legally be diverted or used as a tool for fiscal gimmicks," Reagan said.

IT IS BAD ENOUGH that California suffers a breakage of about 20 per cent on its gaoline tax dollars, with about one dollar in five remaining in Washington.

"In addition, the White House has held up for more than a year $250 million marked for California freeways which California is entitled to," the governor said.

This is the money that would have been spent on San Francisco freeways, had local authorites ever been able to agree to a routing. California now is making a major effort to free this $250 million to be used for construction of the sorely needed Century Freeway in Los Angeles.

GOVERNOR REAGAN has good reason to understand the trust frund nature of highway users taxes. Earlier this year, in his economy plans, he considered cutting back the budget of the California Highway Patrol. The uniformed strength of the CHP is being doubled over a period of three years.

However, the increase in the patrol is being financed by an increase in auto registration fees and the two are tied together. So the Reagan Administration backed off from any attempt to reduce the CHP budget, except for some funds which the patrol did not expend during the current year.

While the combined total of state and federal gasoline taxes is a heavy burden on the motorist, it is one which apparently is shouldered with a minimum of complaint. Traditionally, gas tax increases have not resulted in any drop in consumption.

A trip across the country, with more and more states being traversed by the new divided freeways of the interstate system, is graphic proof that the gasoline taxes are being put to good use. In a few years, it will be possible to drive from San Francisco to Chicago without stopping for a single traffic light.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON'S threat of cutting back the highway fund expenditures by 50 per cent is his answer to demands that federal spending be reduced if his income tax increase is to be granted. It is an attempt to show Congress that reductions in spending hurt.

As has been learned in California this year, there's no doubt that reduced spending by the government hurts. But there is no other way to effect economy.

Mission Celebration Time To Look At Past

THE SPOTLIGHT IS on Mission San Rafael Arcangel these days. Its interesting history is reviewed in some detail in a two-part Marin Magazine article by I-J historian Florence Donnelly.

The 150th anniversary of the founding of the mission turns our thoughts to earlier days in Marin and those of us who tend to be history buffs enjoy imagining how it must have been.

There was no I-J in 1817 when the mission was established. There was no agriculture and no industry, unless you count the primitive crafts of the Coast Miwok Indians who inhabited this area.

There were no permanent settlements. Western civilization as we know it from history books was non-existent here prior to 1817.

FIFTY YEARS LATER, things were different. There was a thriving village in San Rafael. The 50th anniversary of the founding of the mission apparently passed unobserved in 1867.

By the time the 100th anniversary rolled around in 1917, however, San Rafael was more mature and more sophisticated. The town held quite a celebration. But San Rafael 50 years ago was more like it is today than it was in the beginning.

A century ago, the beginnings were still evident and the beginnings were still in process.

The old Marin Journal (from which today's I-J inherits half its name) observed its own sixth birthday and its editor wrote:

"We have labored since our advent upon the sea of journalism to freight our little bark with a choice cargo — have endeavored to make it a welcome vehicle of intelligence to the people of the county, have strove to amuse as well as instruct, and if we have fallen short of the expectations of our patrons, we can only say that we did our utmost to fulfill the promises set forth.

"Our position is not to be envied — we have many tastes to satisfy and it would be no wonder to find now and then some cynics who fail to apreciate our efforts."

FROM THE DIRECTORY of public officials which the Journal printed occasionally, we know that Al Barney (father and financial backer of founding editor Jerome Barney) was county superintendent of schools in 1867.

It is reasonable to assume that the Journal editor occasionally received some advice from a school administrator, then, on how to run the newspaper. History repeats: this still happens occasionally.

GLANCE AT A FEW ISSUES of the Journal and one fact stands out. Marin had a serious transportation problem a century ago.

Roads were terrible. The road to Bolinas was so bad that mail had to be carried at times by horseback instead of stage coach.

The Journal editorialized often on the need for more and better roads, noting that the county had recently got out of debt, had a treasury surplus and therefore should be able to bring about much needed road improvements.

Some property owners along proposed road routes objected and fought to stall action. Progress was slow.

JOURNAL ADVERTISEMENTS indicate public transportation apparently was adequate for the times. The sloop "Adavance" provided both passenger and freight service from Ross Landing to Market Street wharf.

For the benefit of those whose memory doesn't go back that far, let it be recalled that Ross Landing was on Corte Madera Creek at present-day Kentfield and the Market Street wharf was, of course, predecessor of today's Ferry Building in San Francisco.

San Rafael Stage Line (whose advertising carried a sketch of a horse-drawn stage coach) left San Rafael daily for San Quentin to meet the steamer "Contra Costa" for service to San Francisco.

"New and elegant" carriages and buggies were available for hire from "Old San Rafael Stable near the San Rafael Hotel."

THE JOURNAL'S "Local Intelligence" column of a century ago afforded us further glimpses of life in Marin as it was then.

San Rafael public school enrollment was reported to have reached 54.

The county board of supervisors voted to allow the sheriff a dollar a day for feeding, housing and caring for county jail inmates in his custody.

Point Reyes was still referred to by its Hispanic name, Punta de Los Reyes, and Congress appropriated $15,000 to build a new lighthouse there.

San Quentin Prison's inmate population had grown to 700, including many of Mexican and Chinese ancestry.

An Indian known as "Salvador" was being held at the county jail for a murder in Tomales. Old-timers said he was the son of "Old Big-Head," remembered as chief of the Nicasio Indians.

At Bolinas and Olema, the Sons of Temperance was a flourishing organization, electing new officers and setting forth new goals in the fight against the demon rum.

Meanwhile, relatives of one Peter Dolan advertised a $50 reward for the recovery of his body. He had not been seen since the night he was "put out" of the saloon at Ross Landing "in a state of extreme intoxication." His hat was subsequently found near the bridge at the landing and his horse was tied nearby. He was believed to have fallen into Corte Madera Creek and drowned.

From across the Bay came word that rioters had attacked Chinese in San Francisco with the aim of driving them from the city.

In San Rafael's public school house, a different clergyman each Sunday conducted "divine worship services."

The American Hotel in Tomales boasted "a table equal to any hotel in the state" and a bar "supplied with the choicest wines, liquors and cigars."

You might say that in the first 50 years after Mission San Rafael Arcangel was founded, civilization as we know it became well established here.

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your article re school tax and belt tightening -- want to say I am not eating enough for belt. No good. Old-fashion galluses for me.

On next page, same paper, Tam School Dist. teachers stealing $2,500, only they have a fancy name for it: merit pay. Last week our school supt. got his hand on the purse and raised his yearly salary $4,000. This disease must be contagious.

The Tam school teachers — did they just discover they had any merit? What kind of I.Q. have they been coasting on before? . . .

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Something smells, and it isn't anything rotten in Denmark! These smells emit around Santa Venetia, and in particular Gallinas Village. The source is fairly well established by the majority of Gallinas Village residents, but trying to do anything about them is another matter. The rancid, putrid odor drifts in on the late afternoon breezes, and saturates our homes with an aroma that is unbelieveable. If we're lucky, it finally diminishes for a few hours, only to come back again with an unleashed fury, on the early morning breezes. If you don't mind being made nauseated most of the time, this is a great community in which to live. And by all means don't let me forget to mention (as if I ever could) the flies. You have to learn to eat, sleep and make merry with them, for there is no escape from these barnyard rejects.

Appealing to the Department of Environmental Health is like nothing. That is exactly what you receive. . . . It is almost pathetic to listen to them. I guess we are supposed to be so darn gullible, and I resent that ! Gentlemen of the health department, put your book learning to a good use and do something concrete about these problems. Whoever and whatever is responsible for this fiasco has not the right to jeopardize the health and happiness of a whole community. If you can't do a job for which you are paid, please get someone who can!

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Marin Democrats Turn Attention Far To North

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Afghanistanism — worrying about problems in a distant land when discomfited about problems at home — was practiced to a fine art this week by the Marin County Democratic Central Committee.

Marin County is faced with a reapportionment plan that threatens to lump half of its votets in a San Francisco congressional district, and the county's official, elected Democratic organization could have been expected to take a stand on the threat.

INSTEAD, the committee cast its eye far north and passed a resolution opposing removal from the First Congressional District of Del Norte, Humboldt and Napa counties. Marin — the only county the committee represents — was not even mentioned in the resolution.

A resolution which opposed cutting Marin out of the First District was dropped in favor of the one adopted. Voting was by a show of hands, so no record was kept of the vote — but it was not unanimous. Also, only 12 of the 21 committee members attended the Tuesday meeting.

Several committee members declined to comment "on the record" on the failure to include Marin in the resolution, but one conceded that Democrats could gain strength in the district if the predominantly Republican county were dismembered.

SOME SOUTHERN Marin Democrats made no secret of their wish to become part of Democratic Rep. Phillip Burton's San Francisco district. However, the plan before the state Supreme Court — which will reapportion the state if the Legislature fails to next month — would put Southern Marin in Republican Rep. William S. Mailliard's district.

Southern Marin's interests, some of the committee members argued, are more like San Francisco's than like those of the North Coast counties. Southern Marin is a bedroom annex of the big city, said one.

There reportedly was no discussion at the committee meeting of the affect of dismemberment on the county's political strength, which now is considerable in the First Congressional District.

The Marin County Republican Central Committee, incidentally, already is on record opposing any reapportionment plan that would split the county. That, too, may be partisan politics, but it seems more responsive to the need of the county to remain a political whole.

THIS IS A BIG week for Marin Republicans — and this is not meant as a comparision with the above plaint about the Democrats.

Last night, the party held the grand opening of its new headquarters at 915 Lootens Place, San Rafael. Today, party workers will launch a special push to swell Republican registration rolls.

Tomorrow, the GOP will enter an antique car in a parade celebrating the 150th anniversary of San Rafael's mission. Tuesday, the GOP Central Committee will hear reports on the 1967 Legislature from Sen. John F McCarthy and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, at 8 p.m. in the county courthouse.

Finale to the week will be a dinner for Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch Friday evening at Peacock Gap Country Club.

Baggy eyes are a cost of success.

WORLD TODAY

Signs Of Slump Hurt Tax Proposal

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key segments of the economy have temporarily lost some of their bloom at a time the Johnson administration needs help the most in pulling its tax chestnuts from congressional fires.

The unemployment rate, industrial output and personal income weakened in September although the basic economy remained strong.

Government economists insist their economic arguments for a tax increase are still as valid as ever, perhaps more so, and blame special circumstances—strikes and a fantastic number of women seeking work—for the weakening.

THEY POINT to a bullish $15 billion advance in gross national product—the value of all goods and services produced in the economy—during the third quarter. It was the biggest increase in 1½ years.

And they foresee an even larger increase—perhaps as high as an inflationary $23 billion—during the fourth quarter unless taxes are raised.But with President Johnson's request for a 10 per cent surcharge on individual and corporate income taxes locked in the congressional-administration fight over spending cuts, the administration now needs all the help it can get to bolster its position.

The weakening in three key economic indicators will hardly accomplish this.

THE ADMINISTRATION contends the surcharge is needed to stem inflationary pressures in an over-expanding economy.

One surcharge opponent, Chairman William Proxmire, D-Wis., of the Senate-House Economic Committee, has already cited the weakened indicators as vindication for his position.

"There is no economic case for a tax increase now," Proxmire said in a Senate speech Tuesday.

He said a drop in industrial production during September on top of an increase in the unemployment rate showed the economy is suffering from too much slack, not excessive demand.

The administration takes a longer-range view.

BUDGET BUREAU Director Charles L. Schultze pointed Tuesday to what he said are numerous signs of an accelerating economy, including recent rapid advances in personal income and industrial production and rising employment.

"The combination of a sizeable budgetary deficit and a rapidly advancing, fullyemployed economy presents an inflationary potential that we clearly should not allow to become a reality," he told a congressional committee.

Here's what happened, however, to unsettle the economic picture during September, at least temporarily:

Unemployment — The Labor Department reported an unemployment rate of 4.1 per cent, the highest since November 1965. It said employment remained strong and an unusually large increase in adult women seeking jobs was responsible for the higher rate.

Industrial Production — The Federal Reserve Board reported a 1.5 per cent decline in its production gains. It blamed strikes in the auto, copper and steel hauling industries for the decline.

Personal income—The Commerce Department reported a $2 billion increase, the smallest in four months, and blamed the Ford strike for most of the slowdown. Income rose about $4.5 billion during each of the three previous months.

Retail sales — Preliminary Commerce Department figures show a record $26.7 billion during September but the trend the past four months has been more of a leveling off rather than a sharp advance.

Federal Highway Cutback Called Dishonest Gimmick

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has labeled the threat of the Johnson Administration to cut back federal highway funds as a dishonest fiscal gimmick and one that would disrupt the interstate highway construction program.

"It is ironic that while Washington is emphasizing highway safety and imposing many controls throughout the states, at the same time it continues to suggest the diversion of highway trust funds from the construction of more and safer highways," Reagan said.

Reagan points out that the federal highway program is supported with gasoline tax funds placed in trust only for that purpose. They "cannot legally be diverted or used as a tool for fiscal gimmicks," Reagan said.

The Laymen And Their Church

What Good Do Church Funds Do?

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International

At its recent convention in Seattle, the Episcopal Church decided to donate $9 million over the next three years to secular organizations trying to improve living conditions for minority groups in urban ghettos.

This action is indicative of a growing readiness on the part of American churches to "put their money where their mouth is" in the matter of social action and service to humanity.

During October and November, churches throughout the country will be conducting membership canvasses for financial support during the coming year. Feedback from these annual campaigns in recent years indicates that many church members are reducing their pledges, or at least refusing to increase them, because they see no point in giving sacrificially to a self-centered institution which spends most of its income on its own maintenance.

Churches may decry this image as unfair. They can point out that major Protestant denominations spend upwards of $700 million a year—about a fifth of their total income—to support church-related colleges, hospitals, homes for the aged, neighborhood houses, institutions for the care of children, and other "benevolences."

There are no official figures on the Catholic outlay for such public-serving institutions, but it must be quite large since American Catholics support 14,148 schools and colleges, 234 orphanages and 416 homes for the aged.

Although churches are not, and never have been, quite as preoccupied with institutional self-preservation as some critics contend, there is sound factual basis for the layman's impression that most of the money he drops into the collection plate ges to defray the overhead expenses of his own parish.

But the average minister still gets a salary of less than $6,000 a year, and other church employees — such as sextons and secretaries — are even more poorly paid.

Pastors say that if members would give more generously, churches would be able to spend more on community service.

Some members seem to be replying that they'll give more readily when the church itself provides a better example of stewardship.

Baptists Said 'In Tension'

The tension, Dr. McBain said at the annual president's luncheon, revolves around ecumenism, evangelism, social justice and Vietnam. Concerning ecumenism, he said the domination has "the cooperative Christianity stand . . . and can never turn back the clock on this." He said the convention was strong in the field of social justice in American cities.

Of Vietnam, Dr. McBain said, "In this nuclear age those of us on both sides of the fence have to discover a way to have a world without this kind of military interference."

Congregation Joins In Sunday Service

Members of the congregation of St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City have a say in the sermon under a new type of service instituted by the church's pastors.

Following the Sunday sermon, the congregation may join in a discussion that Rev. James E. Symons and Rev. Don Schilling hope will open "the meaning of faith and love in their . . . lives in a way that merely listening to a sermon cannot do."

The aim of the discussion session, the pastors said in a statement, is to make the church "more immediately responsive to what is happening in the world through hearing what the needs are from the people, bringing to bear the personal resources of the congregation on those needs and providing machinery for the church to act immediately on the issues that confront us.

". . . the institutional church in the past has been far too slow to act on the pressing problems of our changing times, and this new form of worship will hopefully tie our faith more directly and immediately to the political, economic and social issues that affect individuals in our society."

As part of the change from the usual worship service, children of the congregation stay with their parents for the beginning of the regular adult service. Church school begins when the adults turn to the discussion portion of the service.

SOPRANO — Lyric soprano Marion Downs will give a concert beginning at 8:20 p.m. Friday at the First Methodist Church, San Rafael. She attended the Julliard School of Music, New York City, received a Fulbright Grant for study in Milan, Italy, and has given concerts in Europe, Mexico and Hawaii.

Architecture Conference

The 10th conference on church architecture, at which pastors and architects discuss the esthetic and construction needs of churches, will be Thursday in Berkeley.

Architectural exhibits and displays of church art will compete for attention with panel discussions at the First Unitarian Church, Kensington Berkeley.

The conference is sponsored by the Northern California Council of Churches and the Northern California Chapter of the American Institue of Architects.

Spiritual Research Specialist To Talk

James Dillet Freeman, poet and author, will give two speeches in San Rafael on Tuesday, sponsored by Unity-in-Marin.

Freeman will speak at 2 p.m. at 24 H Street and at 8 p.m. at the San Rafael Improvemenet Club, Fifth Avenue and H Street. He is director of spiritual research at Unity School fo Christianity, Lee's Summit, Mo.

Who Backs Clergymen On Rights?

(UPI)—A survey by two Pennsylvania State University sociologists indicates that the people most involved in their religion are the ones least likely to support their clergy as active leaders in issues such as the civil rights movement.

Gordon D. De Jong and Joseph E. Faulkner found in a sampling of about 365 students that 85 per cent agreed with the principle of a fully integrated society, but only 58 per cent felt that ordained ministers should be involved in social action movements.

And only 18 per cent thought it would be proper for the church to support civil disobedience.

SUKKOT

Festival Of Thanksgiving Being Observed By Jews

The Jewish festival of Thanksgiving, Sukkot, known as the Feast of the Booths, is being observed by Orthodox and Conservative Jews for nine days and by Reform Jews for eight days, both periods ending Friday.

The holiday commemorates the completion of the harvest season when the Israelites dwelled in booths or huts in the wilderness. A "sukkah" or hut is often built outside synagogues today to symbolize the fragility and transitory quality of life.

Congregation Kol Shofar will observe Simchat Torah at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Marin Jewish Community Center, San Rafael, and Congregation Rodef Sholom will hold a Simchat Torah at 7:30 p.m. Friday at 170 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

During the service the Torah is removed from the ark, and taken around the synagogue in seven processions, representing covering in age an entire generation, then returned to the ark. Simchat Torah marks the completion and another beginning in the annual cycle of weekly Torah readings.

Three Schools May Combine

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Conversations are beng held among two Protestant divinity schools and a Roman Catholic seminary looking toward the development of a Center for Theological Studies in Rochester.

The three institutions would combine as far as possible faculties, library resources and classes in what is regarded as a major breakthrough in theological education.

The schools are Bexley Hall (Episcopal), related to Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio; Colgate Rochester Divinity School an ecumenical divinity school founded by the Baptists, Rochester, and St. Bernard's Seminary of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Rochester.

Two Church Elders Do Mission Work

Two elders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints are doing missionary work in Marin.

Richard Thompson of Short Hills, N. J., and Thomas W. Heal of Provo, Utah, will be in Marin and the Bay Area for two years of missionary work. They are residing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gohannas Green, 470 Quietwood Drive, Marinwood.

Bishop To Speak At Three Services

Rt. Rev. Richard Millard, suffragen bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California, will speak at three services tomorrow St. Francis Episcopal Church, Novato.

During this annual visit to the parish, the bishop will speak at the 7:30 a.m. service, celebrate Communion and preach at the 9:15 a.m. service and give a sermon at the 11 a.m. service.

Tour Tales

Rev. and Mrs. T. Royal Scott will tell of their experiences during the summer leading a group of students on a tour of Japan during a talk at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Canoles Hall of the First Presbyterian Church, San Rafael.

Convention

Rev. and Mrs. Gerald S. Moyer and Mrs. Philip Dickinson of the Bethel Baptist Church, Novato, are attending the convention of American Baptist Churches of Northern California being held through Tuesday in Modesto.

Catholic Laymen Organize

NEW YORK (AP) — A wave of experimental ministries is spreading today in American Roman Catholicism sometimes bringing on conflicts between church people and their bishops.

At the same time, the people are organizing in many dioceses to make their views felt.

A rash of tensions has broken out between new types of worship groups and diocesan bishops.

In Washington, protests mounted to an order by Cardinal Patrick O'Boyle halting weekly liturgical celebrations of a floating, nonterritorial parish called "The People."

Thirty-nine diocesan priests wrote hime a joint letter, disagreeing with the action. The cardinal said he would meet with them to discuss the matter.

In New Jersey, another experimental, circulating parish of about 40 led by the Rev. George J. Hafner of Toms River, has stopped its celebration of home Masses in a dispute with Bishop George W. Ahr.

The bishop had agreed to hold up threatening excommunication of the group, called the Christian Layman's Experimental Organization — CLEO — pending consideration of a plan it was to draw up about its possible future functioning.

However, in a sharply worded letter, the bishop later withdrew his offer to consider the experimental Masses.

In Rochester, a group of about 40 called the "Servant of God Community" has been worshipping in a basement in a school in the city's Negro section although bishop Fulton J. Sheen has rejected thier request to form an experimental parish.

"I think he was not convinced that we could make a go of it." the Rev. Robert Kenny, leader of the group.

Council Organizes Tour Of Churches

Four San Francisco churches may be viewed during a first San Francisco Council of Churches tour from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The Greek Church of the Annunciation, St. Mark's Lutheran Church, the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin and Swedenborgian Church are on the tour route. Tickets may be obtained from the churches or from the San Francisco Council of Churches, 465 Post Street.

Benefit Auction

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere will hold a "country" auction beginning at 9 a.m. next Saturday to benefit the Boys Club of Southern Marin.

CHAPLAIN — The widow of Capt. James J. L. Johnson accepted an award for her husband's "meritorious service . . of God and country" this week from Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Strawberry. Johnson, a 1965 graduate of the seminary, was serving as an Army chaplain in Vietnam until his death in a plane crash in March.

Understand Your Child

Two sessions on "Learning to Understand Children" with a film followed by discussions led by clerics and physicians, will be sponsored by Tiburon Baptist Church at 6:30 p.m., Wednesday and on Nov. 1.

The films will begin by showing diagnosis of a child's problem; the second week's film will show a remedial program.

The discussion following the films will be led by Dr. James Blevins, psychiatrist for the Marin County Community Mental Health Service; Dr. Lyn Elder, professor of psychology of religion at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, and Fletcher Royal, professor of religious education, both at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Strawberry; and Rev. Jerry Ashby, pastor of the Tiburon church.

Baha'i Founder's Centenary Meetings

Marin residents attended conferences recently marking the centenary of Baha'u'llah, the founder of Baha'i.

Mrs. Florence Haake of San Rafael attended the group's conference in Frankfurt, Germany; Mrs. Maria del Carmen Reyes of Ross went to Panama for a conference; Mrs. Hazel Werner of Mill Valley, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson and Mrs. Pauline Whitney, all of Novato, Mrs. Carol Noah and Mrs. Frances Heller of San Rafael went to a conference in Chicago.

Laymen Meeting

F. W. Benedict and Richard D. Gray of Aldersgate Methodist Church, San Rafael, today are attending the Invitational Conference of Laymen from churches in Northern California and Nevada being held in Berkeley.

Marin Unitarians Tell Faith, Politics

A survey of some members of the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Marin has brought out comments on personal, social, church, denominational, beliefs and attitudes from 18 pages of questions.

The survey was sent to 350 of the most active members of the church and returned by 243 of them. The number returned equals 52 per cent of total membership of the San Rafael Church, Rev. Karel F. Botermans explains in preliminary comments to the survey compliation.

Some of the questions and their answers:

Which of the following is closest to expressing your beliefs about God?

God may appropriately be used as a name for some natural processes within the universe, such as love or creative evolution, 53 per cent; God is an irrelevant concept, and the central focus of religion should be on man's knowledge and values, 24.6 per cent; God is the ground of all being, real but adequately describable, 20.9 per cent; God is a supernatural being who reveals himself in human experience and history, .8 per cent; God is a concept that is harmful to worthwhile religion, .8 per cent.

Which of the following describes the purpose or function that prayer fulfills for you?

I do not find the term useful, 37 per cent; communion with inner self, 34.9 per cent; meditation, 32.9 per cent. Others termed it communion with God, petition for self, intercession for others, autosuggestion and unspecified.

Would you personally define your own religion as Christian?

"No" answers came from 65.8 per cent of those answering; "yes" answers from 34 per cent.

Is immortality, in the sense of a continued personal existance of the individual after death, part of your belief system?

"No" answers came from 90.9 per cent; "yes" from 5.4 per cent; undecided or unspecified answers from 3.7 per cent of those answering.

Asked to indicate how important it is for "liberal religion" in the local church be involved in "education and action," some of the answers were:

Alcoholism, very important for 34.5 per cent, scmewhat important for 51 per cent; drug addiction, very important for 41 per cent, somewhat important for 46 per cent; juvenile delinquency, very important for 62.5 per cent, somewhat important for 31.6 per cent; mental illness, very important for 63.3 per cent, somewhat important for 31.6 per cent; poverty, very important for 67.8 per cent, somewhat important for 26.7 per cent; racial integration, very important for 81.4 per cent, somewhat important for 17.6 per cent; sexual morality, very important for 37 per cent, somewhat important for 39.4 per cent.

Which of the following statements best describes the policy you would prefer the United States to follow in Vietnam?

The U. S. should withdraw militarily from South Vietnam, 40.3 per cent; the U. S. should take further initiatives to end the war, such as another pause in the bombing of North Vietnam or the encouragement of a transition or coalition regime in South Vietnam, including the National Liberation Front, 39.4 per cent; the U. S. should pull its armed forces in Vietnam back to coast-enclaves, 9.1 per cent; U. S. military and other means should be continued to stop communist aggression in South Vietnam, but we should be careful not to extend the war, 7.8 per cent; U. S. military pressure on the Communists should increase, including if necessary, the bombing of Hanoi and even the bombing of the atomic factories of China, 2.5 per cent.

If a person of draft age is opposed to certain wars (such as Vietnam) rather than to all wars, do you think he should or should not be eligible for classification as a conscientious?

Should be eligible, 66.6 per cent; should not be eligible, 18.4 per cent; don't know, 15.2 per cent.

Which of the following statements comes closest to your feelings about non-violent civil disobedience?

I approve of civil disobedience when laws are unjust, 80.2 per cent; I disapprove of civil disobedience under any circumstances, 9.5 per cent; other, 9.1 per cent.

The survey answers were divided among 32.4 males and 62.9 per cent females. The age of those answering was 35-44, 36.1 per cent; 45-54, 33.7 per cent; 25-34, 11.9 per cent; 55-64, 9.9 per cent; 65 and over, 5.8 per cent; under 25, 1.8 per cent.

The Laymen And Their Church

What Good Do Church Funds Do?

By LOUIS CASSELS

United Press International

At its recent convention in Seattle, the Episcopal Church decided to donate $9 million over the next three years to secular organizations trying to improve living conditions for minority groups in urban ghettos.

This action is indicative of a growing readiness on the part of American churches to "put their money where their mouth is" in the matter of social action and service to humanity.

During October and November, churches throughout the country will be conducting membership canvasses for financial support during the coming year. Feedback from these annual campaigns in recent years indicates that many church members are reducing their pledges, or at least refusing to increase them, because they see no point in giving sacrificially to a self-centered institution which spends most of its income on its own maintenance.

Churches may decry this image as unfair. They can point out that major Protestant denominations spend upwards of $700 million a year—about a fifth of their total income—to support church-related colleges, hospitals, homes for the aged, neighborhood houses, institutions for the care of children, and other "benevolences."

There are no official figures on the Catholic outlay for such public-serving institutions, but it must be quite large since American Catholics support 14,148 schools and colleges, 234 orphanages and 416 homes for the aged.

Although churches are not, and never have been, quite as preoccupied with institutional self-preservation as some critics contend, there is sound factual basis for the layman's impression that most of the money he drops into the collection plate ges to defray the overhead expenses of his own parish.

But the average minister still gets a salary of less than $6,000 a year, and other church employees — such as sextons and secretaries — are even more poorly paid.

Pastors say that if members would give more generously, churches would be able to spend more on community service.

Some members seem to be replying that they'll give more readily when the church itself provides a better example of stewardship.

Baptists Said 'In Tension'

The tension, Dr. McBain said at the annual president's luncheon, revolves around ecumenism, evangelism, social justice and Vietnam. Concerning ecumenism, he said the domination has "the cooperative Christianity stand . . . and can never turn back the clock on this." He said the convention was strong in the field of social justice in American cities.

Of Vietnam, Dr. McBain said, "In this nuclear age those of us on both sides of the fence have to discover a way to have a world without this kind of military interference."

Congregation Joins In Sunday Service

Members of the congregation of St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City have a say in the sermon under a new type of service instituted by the church's pastors.

Following the Sunday sermon, the congregation may join in a discussion that Rev. James E. Symons and Rev. Don Schilling hope will open "the meaning of faith and love in their . . . lives in a way that merely listening to a sermon cannot do."

The aim of the discussion session, the pastors said in a statement, is to make the church "more immediately responsive to what is happening in the world through hearing what the needs are from the people, bringing to bear the personal resources of the congregation on those needs and providing machinery for the church to act immediately on the issues that confront us.

". . . the institutional church in the past has been far too slow to act on the pressing problems of our changing times, and this new form of worship will hopefully tie our faith more directly and immediately to the political, economic and social issues that affect individuals in our society."

As part of the change from the usual worship service, children of the congregation stay with their parents for the beginning of the regular adult service. Church school begins when the adults turn to the discussion portion of the service.

SOPRANO — Lyric soprano Marion Downs will give a concert beginning at 8:20 p.m. Friday at the First Methodist Church, San Rafael. She attended the Julliard School of Music, New York City, received a Fulbright Grant for study in Milan, Italy, and has given concerts in Europe, Mexico and Hawaii.

Architecture Conference

The 10th conference on church architecture, at which pastors and architects discuss the esthetic and construction needs of churches, will be Thursday in Berkeley.

Architectural exhibits and displays of church art will compete for attention with panel discussions at the First Unitarian Church, Kensington Berkeley.

The conference is sponsored by the Northern California Council of Churches and the Northern California Chapter of the American Institue of Architects.

Spiritual Research Specialist To Talk

James Dillet Freeman, poet and author, will give two speeches in San Rafael on Tuesday, sponsored by Unity-in-Marin.

Freeman will speak at 2 p.m. at 24 H Street and at 8 p.m. at the San Rafael Improvemenet Club, Fifth Avenue and H Street. He is director of spiritual research at Unity School fo Christianity, Lee's Summit, Mo.

Who Backs Clergymen On Rights?

(UPI)—A survey by two Pennsylvania State University sociologists indicates that the people most involved in their religion are the ones least likely to support their clergy as active leaders in issues such as the civil rights movement.

Gordon D. De Jong and Joseph E. Faulkner found in a sampling of about 365 students that 85 per cent agreed with the principle of a fully integrated society, but only 58 per cent felt that ordained ministers should be involved in social action movements.

And only 18 per cent thought it would be proper for the church to support civil disobedience.

SUKKOT

Festival Of Thanksgiving Being Observed By Jews

The Jewish festival of Thanksgiving, Sukkot, known as the Feast of the Booths, is being observed by Orthodox and Conservative Jews for nine days and by Reform Jews for eight days, both periods ending Friday.

The holiday commemorates the completion of the harvest season when the Israelites dwelled in booths or huts in the wilderness. A "sukkah" or hut is often built outside synagogues today to symbolize the fragility and transitory quality of life.

Congregation Kol Shofar will observe Simchat Torah at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Marin Jewish Community Center, San Rafael, and Congregation Rodef Sholom will hold a Simchat Torah at 7:30 p.m. Friday at 170 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

During the service the Torah is removed from the ark, and taken around the synagogue in seven processions, representing covering in age an entire generation, then returned to the ark. Simchat Torah marks the completion and another beginning in the annual cycle of weekly Torah readings.

Three Schools May Combine

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI)—Conversations are beng held among two Protestant divinity schools and a Roman Catholic seminary looking toward the development of a Center for Theological Studies in Rochester.

The three institutions would combine as far as possible faculties, library resources and classes in what is regarded as a major breakthrough in theological education.

The schools are Bexley Hall (Episcopal), related to Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio; Colgate Rochester Divinity School an ecumenical divinity school founded by the Baptists, Rochester, and St. Bernard's Seminary of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Rochester.

Two Church Elders Do Mission Work

Two elders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints are doing missionary work in Marin.

Richard Thompson of Short Hills, N. J., and Thomas W. Heal of Provo, Utah, will be in Marin and the Bay Area for two years of missionary work. They are residing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gohannas Green, 470 Quietwood Drive, Marinwood.

Bishop To Speak At Three Services

Rt. Rev. Richard Millard, suffragen bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California, will speak at three services tomorrow St. Francis Episcopal Church, Novato.

During this annual visit to the parish, the bishop will speak at the 7:30 a.m. service, celebrate Communion and preach at the 9:15 a.m. service and give a sermon at the 11 a.m. service.

Tour Tales

Rev. and Mrs. T. Royal Scott will tell of their experiences during the summer leading a group of students on a tour of Japan during a talk at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Canoles Hall of the First Presbyterian Church, San Rafael.

Convention

Rev. and Mrs. Gerald S. Moyer and Mrs. Philip Dickinson of the Bethel Baptist Church, Novato, are attending the convention of American Baptist Churches of Northern California being held through Tuesday in Modesto.

Catholic Laymen Organize

NEW YORK (AP) — A wave of experimental ministries is spreading today in American Roman Catholicism sometimes bringing on conflicts between church people and their bishops.

At the same time, the people are organizing in many dioceses to make their views felt.

A rash of tensions has broken out between new types of worship groups and diocesan bishops.

In Washington, protests mounted to an order by Cardinal Patrick O'Boyle halting weekly liturgical celebrations of a floating, nonterritorial parish called "The People."

Thirty-nine diocesan priests wrote hime a joint letter, disagreeing with the action. The cardinal said he would meet with them to discuss the matter.

In New Jersey, another experimental, circulating parish of about 40 led by the Rev. George J. Hafner of Toms River, has stopped its celebration of home Masses in a dispute with Bishop George W. Ahr.

The bishop had agreed to hold up threatening excommunication of the group, called the Christian Layman's Experimental Organization — CLEO — pending consideration of a plan it was to draw up about its possible future functioning.

However, in a sharply worded letter, the bishop later withdrew his offer to consider the experimental Masses.

In Rochester, a group of about 40 called the "Servant of God Community" has been worshipping in a basement in a school in the city's Negro section although bishop Fulton J. Sheen has rejected thier request to form an experimental parish.

"I think he was not convinced that we could make a go of it." the Rev. Robert Kenny, leader of the group.

Council Organizes Tour Of Churches

Four San Francisco churches may be viewed during a first San Francisco Council of Churches tour from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The Greek Church of the Annunciation, St. Mark's Lutheran Church, the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin and Swedenborgian Church are on the tour route. Tickets may be obtained from the churches or from the San Francisco Council of Churches, 465 Post Street.

Benefit Auction

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere will hold a "country" auction beginning at 9 a.m. next Saturday to benefit the Boys Club of Southern Marin.

CHAPLAIN — The widow of Capt. James J. L. Johnson accepted an award for her husband's "meritorious service . . of God and country" this week from Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Strawberry. Johnson, a 1965 graduate of the seminary, was serving as an Army chaplain in Vietnam until his death in a plane crash in March.

Understand Your Child

Two sessions on "Learning to Understand Children" with a film followed by discussions led by clerics and physicians, will be sponsored by Tiburon Baptist Church at 6:30 p.m., Wednesday and on Nov. 1.

The films will begin by showing diagnosis of a child's problem; the second week's film will show a remedial program.

The discussion following the films will be led by Dr. James Blevins, psychiatrist for the Marin County Community Mental Health Service; Dr. Lyn Elder, professor of psychology of religion at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, and Fletcher Royal, professor of religious education, both at Golden Gate Baptist Seminary, Strawberry; and Rev. Jerry Ashby, pastor of the Tiburon church.

Baha'i Founder's Centenary Meetings

Marin residents attended conferences recently marking the centenary of Baha'u'llah, the founder of Baha'i.

Mrs. Florence Haake of San Rafael attended the group's conference in Frankfurt, Germany; Mrs. Maria del Carmen Reyes of Ross went to Panama for a conference; Mrs. Hazel Werner of Mill Valley, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson and Mrs. Pauline Whitney, all of Novato, Mrs. Carol Noah and Mrs. Frances Heller of San Rafael went to a conference in Chicago.

Laymen Meeting

F. W. Benedict and Richard D. Gray of Aldersgate Methodist Church, San Rafael, today are attending the Invitational Conference of Laymen from churches in Northern California and Nevada being held in Berkeley.

Marin Unitarians Tell Faith, Politics

A survey of some members of the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Marin has brought out comments on personal, social, church, denominational, beliefs and attitudes from 18 pages of questions.

The survey was sent to 350 of the most active members of the church and returned by 243 of them. The number returned equals 52 per cent of total membership of the San Rafael Church, Rev. Karel F. Botermans explains in preliminary comments to the survey compliation.

Some of the questions and their answers:

Which of the following is closest to expressing your beliefs about God?

God may appropriately be used as a name for some natural processes within the universe, such as love or creative evolution, 53 per cent; God is an irrelevant concept, and the central focus of religion should be on man's knowledge and values, 24.6 per cent; God is the ground of all being, real but adequately describable, 20.9 per cent; God is a supernatural being who reveals himself in human experience and history, .8 per cent; God is a concept that is harmful to worthwhile religion, .8 per cent.

Which of the following describes the purpose or function that prayer fulfills for you?

I do not find the term useful, 37 per cent; communion with inner self, 34.9 per cent; meditation, 32.9 per cent. Others termed it communion with God, petition for self, intercession for others, autosuggestion and unspecified.

Would you personally define your own religion as Christian?

"No" answers came from 65.8 per cent of those answering; "yes" answers from 34 per cent.

Is immortality, in the sense of a continued personal existance of the individual after death, part of your belief system?

"No" answers came from 90.9 per cent; "yes" from 5.4 per cent; undecided or unspecified answers from 3.7 per cent of those answering.

Asked to indicate how important it is for "liberal religion" in the local church be involved in "education and action," some of the answers were:

Alcoholism, very important for 34.5 per cent, scmewhat important for 51 per cent; drug addicition, very important for 41 per cent, somewhat important for 46 per cent; juvenile delinquency, very important for 62.5 per cent, somewhat important for 31.6 per cent; mental illness, very important for 63.3 per cent, somewhat important for 31.6 per cent; poverty, very important for 67.8 per cent, somewhat important for 26.7 per cent; racial integration, very important for 81.4 per cent, somewhat important for 17.6 per cent; sexual morality, very important for 37 per cent, somewhat important for 39.4 per cent.

Which of the following statements best describes the policy you would prefer the United States to follow in Vietnam?

The U. S. should withdraw militarily from South Vietnam, 40.3 per cent; the U. S. should take further initiatives to end the war, such as another pause in the bombing of North Vietnam or the encouragement of a transition or coalition regime in South Vietnam, including the National Liberation Front, 39.4 per cent; the U. S. should pull its armed forces in Vietnam back to coast-enclaves, 9.1 per cent; U. S. military and other means should be continued to stop communist aggression in South Vietnam, but we should be careful not to extend the war, 7.8 per cent; U. S. military pressure on the Communists should increase, including if necessary, the bombing of Hanoi and even the bombing of the atomic factories of China, 2.5 per cent.

If a person of draft age is opposed to certain wars (such as Vietnam) rather than to all wars, do you think he should or should not be eligible for classification as a conscientious?

Should be eligible, 66.6 per cent; should not be eligible, 18.4 per cent; don't know, 15.2 per cent.

Which of the following statements comes closest to your feelings about non-violent civil disobedience?

I approve of civil disobedience when laws are unjust, 80.2 per cent; I disapprove of civil disobedience under any circumstances, 9.5 per cent; other, 9.1 per cent.

The survey answers were divided among 32.4 males and 62.9 per cent females. The age of those answering was 35-44, 36.1 per cent; 45-54, 33.7 per cent; 25-34, 11.9 per cent; 55-64, 9.9 per cent; 65 and over, 5.8 per cent; under 25, 1.8 per cent.

ART REVIEW

Superrealist, Cubist Share Gallery Walls

By LAURA DEVENDORF

Two painters, Ruth Chatfield, who employs superrealism, and Ted Bredt, who works in a Cubistic manner, share exhibition space at Buffs Gallery in Fairfax through November 19. And though Miss Chatfield's style has an older, antiqued look, it is definitely the fresher of the two.

The main interest in Bredt's work focuses on his encaustics. This is simply because wax is so difficult to control and yet he manages to burn in areas of color quite crisply, while still retaining the liquid softness that the medium affords.

NEAR SLICKNESS

However, though his paintings in both wax and acrylic are faultlessly designed, many are so stylized that they come dangerously close to commercial slickness. There are exceptions such as "Marble Rock Pool," with its greyed planes of subtle color and its moody figures. They offer nothing new in approach, but they do seem more thought out and have more feeling.

The real interest, however, centers on Miss Chatfield's paintings which, in spite of their tiny size, seem more onsistently personal and compelling. The least so are her Victorian houses but there are few of these and they don't distract from the majority of her work, which is delightful.

One of Miss Chatfield's major interests seems to center at the kitchen sink. In a series of very restrained and pristine little paintings, she depicts fruits and vegetables with an attention to detail often enhanced by placing them in a field of white.

TINY ODES

Each of them seems a tiny ode to exactness, an approach which runs through all her work including her "weed paintings" which, by contrast, are thick with texture and glowing with rich color.

It is this weed group which is the most inviting of all. Here, thickly applied casein becomes a background mass of bright leaning color covered with perfect closeup studies of flowers, grasses and weeds. In the autumn scenes, her earthy tones glow warmly, while in others her palette blooms with pink and red on a background of deep blue.

In all of them she heightens the richness of both texture and hue with a lustrous varnish glaze. But whether inspired by blowing fields or the closeness of home, her paintings sing with the gem-like, often-overlooked beauty of everyday things.

They are small things and she paints them on this scale. But the dignity she lends them often dominates Bredt's larger and much splashier technique.

Film Festival More Sedate This Year

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The 11th annual San Francisco Film Festival is off to an unusually calm start after the opening round of parties failed to produce the usual incidents.

In past years, Hollywood starlets traditionally have shown up for the opening night celebrations in ultra-revealing costumes. Last year, for instance, the late Jayne Manfield's dress was so flimsy that she was asked to leave by festival officials.

But this year's cleavage was judged most respectable by disappointed male onlookers.

The one odd note came when at least 15 men turned up for formal activities clad in white turtleneck sweaters instead of traditional black ties. This fashion twist followed reports that it is the newest rage back East.

The more rational atmosphere that surrounded yesterday's opening may have been a tribute to the opening film, "How I Won the War." Director Richard Lester and co-star Michael Crawford attended the showing of the movie, which was praised by the festival's opening nighters. Film star James Mason was master of ceremonies at the activities.

Theater Review

Red German Film, Book Output Off

BERLIN, Germany (GF) — The number of books and movies produced in Communist eastern Germany nosedived last year from figures for 1965, a look at statistics reveals. There were also large drops in motion picture attendance and even in the number of theaters.

In 1965, the state-run film corporation DEFA made 15 full length movies. Last year, only eight were made. The number of documentary and other short films also decreased.

Two years ago, 119 million admission tickets were sold at 973 state-operated theaters in east Germany. In 1966, attendance was down to 102 million and there were only 941 theaters still open.

East German publishers brought out 5,310 new books last year, 64 less than in 1965. In contrast, publishing houses in western Germany last year printed 25,000 new titles.

Music Workshop To Be Given By Reed Instructor

"Music plus involvement equals appreciation," a demonstration music workshop will be given by Reed School District teacher Dr. Hyman D. Krongard Thursday at the San Clemente School in Corte Madera.

The workshop, from 4 to 6 p.m., is sponsored jointly by the Marin County Superintendent of Schools and the Marin County School Music Teachers Association.

Dr. Krongard will use groups of students from Reed District to illustrate various approaches to teaching, which involve students in listening experiences in the upper elementary and junior high school grades, according to Warren G. Binzley, of the county department of instruction.

Anyone wishing to attend the workshop should advise Binzley at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

BALLET REVIEW

Dancers Mexican, But Not The Dances

BY MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

The National Ballet of Mexico happily had an appreciative audience of some 600 to 800 people last night in the College of Marin gymnasium for the latest program in the college's concert-lecture series.

Except for one dance, "Bernarda," there was very little national flavor—certainly no detectable folk elements — in the choreography, costumes or music for the production presented by about a dozen well-trained dancers.

The choreography was largely abstract and symbolic, derivative from Martha Graham. It was effective mostly in expression of emotion and sensory feeling, rather than anecdotal.

COSTUMES SIMPLE

Costumes were simple and functional in black, white and a few bright colors, not particularly decorative but austere and classic, fully revealing body lines and motion.

Music ranged from that of Bach, Vivaldi and Purcell to Satie, Moenneger, Britten and Miles Davis. The only Latin American rhythms were in some music by Rodrigo and the popuuar Brasilena that provided a primitive beat in "Kaleidoscope." Fortunately the recordings used were very good.

Most successful in emotional expression was "Bernarda" and the opening "Viva La Libertad!" which gave the feeling of freedom in exuberant movement and tossing of bright silk banners.

In "Bernarda," grief was movingly expressed in the lament of Bernarda Alba and her three daughters for the youngest daughter, who "died a virgin." Her duo with a lover before her death was lyrical.

BEAUTIFUL DUO

Another duo beautifully danced was in "It Had To Happen," a study of two passive characters — a man and a woman — who upon union become an active whole.

"Kaleidoscope" was not at all colorful as might have been expected from the title, but an exercise in dynamic gesture and walking.

The finale, "Of Nature" — in which both dancers and music expressed wind, water, earth and fire — was the virtuoso piece of the evening with a fascinating translation of a fugue into choreographic terms. It was performed to a recitation in Spanish by one of the male dancers after it had been read in English. This, however, could not be very well heard or understood.

LACK OF SMOOTHNESS

A lack of smoothness and continuity in the production was probably due to the difficulties of performing in a gymnasium. Though a raised platform was provided for the performers, those seated in chairs on the floor had difficulty seeing.

An audience of this size probably could not have been accommodated in the theater in the new fine arts complex.

Novato Square Plan On Agenda

The re-subdivision of Novato Square at Grant Avenue and Highway 101 will be discussed by the Novato Planning Commissin at 8 p.m. Monday at the community house.

The 3.5 acre parcel, formerly the Grant School site, was divided by the D. M. Christensen Co. It is now owned by Santa Rosa Savings and Loan Association, Shell Oil Co. and the heirs of Beatrice I. Gallien. They are asking for a new plan, eliminating cross streets for the square.

The commission also will consider John A. Lyddon's request for a use permit for a mobil home park on 120 acres east of Highway 101 and south of Hamilton Air Force Base. Lyddon is also asking for a grading permit to cut banks higher than 20 feet.

The one odd note came when at least 15 men turned up for formal activities clad in white turtleneck sweaters instead of traditional black ties. This fashion twist followed reports that it is the newest rage back East.

The more rational atmosphere that surrounded yesterday's opening may have been a tribute to the opening film, "How I Won the War." Director Richard Lester and co-star Michael Crawford attended the showing of the movie, which was praised by the festival's opening nighters. Film star James Mason was master of ceremonies at the activities.

Red German Film, Book Output Off

BERLIN, Germany (GF) — The number of books and movies produced in Communist eastern Germany nosedived last year from figures for 1965, a look at statistics reveals. There were also large drops in motion picture attendance and even in the number of theaters.

In 1965, the state-run film corporation DEFA made 15 full length movies. Last year, only eight were made. The number of documentary and other short films also decreased.

Two years ago, 119 million admission tickets were sold at 973 state-operated theaters in east Germany. In 1966, attendance was down to 102 million and there were only 941 theaters still open.

East German publishers brought out 5,310 new books last year, 64 less than in 1965. In contrast, publishing houses in western Germany last year printed 25,000 new titles.

Music Workshop To Be Given By Reed Instructor

"Music plus involvement equals appreciation," a demonstration music workshop will be given by Reed School District teacher Dr. Hyman D. Krongard Thursday at the San Clemente School in Corte Madera.

The workshop, from 4 to 6 p.m., is sponsored jointly by the Marin County Superintendent of Schools and the Marin County School Music Teachers Association.

Dr. Krongard will use groups of students from Reed District to illustrate various approaches to teaching, which involve students in listening experiences in the upper elementary and junior high school grades, according to Warren G. Binzley, of the county department of instruction.

Anyone wishing to attend the workshop should advise Binzley at the county schools office in Corte Madera.

BALLET REVIEW

Dancers Mexican, But Not The Dances

BY MAYBELLE SPECKMAN

The National Ballet of Mexico happily had an appreciative audience of some 600 to 800 people last night in the College of Marin gymnasium for the latest program in the college's concert-lecture series.

Except for one dance, "Bernarda," there was very little national flavor—certainly no detectable folk elements — in the choreography, costumes or music for the production presented by about a dozen well-trained dancers.

The choreography was largely abstract and symbolic, derivative from Martha Graham. It was effective mostly in expression of emotion and sensory feeling, rather than anecdotal.

COSTUMES SIMPLE

Costumes were simple and functional in black, white and a few bright colors, not particularly decorative but austere and classic, fully revealing body lines and motion.

Music ranged from that of Bach, Vivaldi and Purcell to Satie, Moenneger, Britten and Miles Davis. The only Latin American rhythms were in some music by Rodrigo and the popuar Brasilena that provided a primitive beat in "Kaleidoscope." Fortunately the recordings used were very good.

Most successful in emotional expression was "Bernarda" and the opening "Viva La Libertad!" which gave the feeling of freedom in exuberant movement and tossing of bright silk banners.

In "Bernarda," grief was movingly expressed in the lament of Bernarda Alba and her three daughters for the youngest daughter, who "died a virgin." Her duo with a lover before her death was lyrical.

BEAUTIFUL DUO

Another duo beautifully danced was in "It Had To Happen," a study of two passive characters — a man and a woman — who upon union become an active whole.

"Kaleidoscope" was not at all colorful as might have been expected from the title, but an exercise in dynamic gesture and walking.

The finale, "Of Nature" — in which both dancers and music expressed wind, water, earth and fire — was the virtuoso piece of the evening with a fascinating translation of a fugue into choreographic terms. It was performed to a recitation in Spanish by one of the male dancers after it had been read in English. This, however, could not be very well heard or understood.

LACK OF SMOOTHNESS

A lack of smoothness and continuity in the production was probably due to the difficulties of performing in a gymnasium. Though a raised platform was provided for the performers, those seated in chairs on the floor had difficulty seeing.

An audience of this size probably could not have been accommodated in the theater in the new fine arts complex.

Novato Square Plan On Agenda

The re-subdivision of Novato Square at Grant Avenue and Highway 101 will be discussed by the Novato Planning Commissin at 8 p.m. Monday at the community house.

The 3.5 acre parcel, formerly the Grant School site, was divided by the D. M. Christensen Co. It is now owned by Santa Rosa Savings and Loan Association, Shell Oil Co. and the heirs of Beatrice I. Gallien. They are asking for a new plan, eliminating cross streets for the square.

The commission also will consider John A. Lyddon's request for a use permit for a mobil home park on 120 acres east of Highway 101 and south of Hamilton Air Force Base. Lyddon is also asking for a grading permit to cut banks higher than 20 feet.

Hogan Benches The Great Palmer In Ryder Surprise

HOUSTON (AP) — The great Arnold Palmer was on the bench when U.S. golf professionals went out to try to widen their 5½-2½ lead over the British today in the second phase of the 17th biennial Ryder Cup matches.

Palmer, one of the stars in America's strong start yesterday in the two-ball foursomes, was surprisingly dropped from the line-up for the four morning four-ball tests although slated to return to action in the afternoon.

The decision was made by the strict U.S. captain, Ben Hogan, who didn't think it was necessary to give an explanation.

"He is not playing because I say so," Hogan told a news conference. "I am the captain and I say who plays."

A repotrer asked if there were reasons.

"Yep," said Hogan.

"May I ask what they are?" the reporter pressed.

"You may ask, but I don't have to tell you," Hogan replied.

BOROS BENCHED

In addition to Palmer, the world's all-time leading money winner, Hogan also ordered the 47-year-old Julius Boros to sit out the morning matches.

The schedule was this: Bill Casper-Gay Brewer, United States, vs. Peter Alliss-Christy O'Connor, Britain; Bobby Nichols-Johnny Pott, United States, vs. Neil Coles-Bernard Hunt, Britain; Gene Littler-Al Geiberger, United States, vs. Dave Thomas-Tony Jacklin, Britain; Doug Sanders-Gardner Dickinson, United States, vs. Brian Huggett-George Will, Britain.

Four matches with revised line-ups follow in the afternoon. The series, which the United States has lost only three times in 40 years, ends with 16 singles tilts tomorrow.

LIKE BRYANT

Nichols went to Texas A&M on a golf scholarship under Paul "Bear" Bryant, now Alabama's militant football coach.

"Hogan is a lot like Bryant," Nichols said. "If you don't win the first time, he won't lose twice with the same personnel."

Another player said Hogan watched the team practice five minutes and remarked: "I've never seen so many God-awful shots in my life."

Hogan didn't leave it up to the players on whether they should use the small British ball or the large American ball.

"Any time you can use the smaller ball, it helps," he said.

Earlier he said, "If my players don't have sense enough to use the smaller ball, they shouldn't be on the team."

Hogan has become the militant captain, pushing the Professional Golfers Association brass to the sidelines in the conduct of the team. So far it's worked well.

FANTASTIC SHOT

Palmer and Gardner Dickinson won two matches yesterday, beating O'Connor and Alliss 2 and 1 and then trouncing young Malcolm Gregson and Hugh Boyle 5 and 4. Palmer made a fantastic shot out of the woods for the key shot of the morning match. Fine putting by Dickinson won the second.

Pott and Nichols also won two points, beating Hunt and Coles 6 and 5 and Alliss and O'Connor 2 and 1. The other U.S. full point came on a 1-up victory by Boros and Casper over Will and Huggett, who played the same pair to a standstill for a half in the morning.

Jacklin and Thomas were Britain's heroes, winning twice. They beat Sanders and Brewer 4 and 3 and Littler and Geiberger 3 and 2. Jacklin is Britain's 23-year-old rookie.

"I'm not happy," said Dai Rees, the British captain. "Our boys aren't getting the ball close enough to the hole. But we'll do better."

Redwood 'Single' Beats Tam's HRs

By KIMO CAMPBELL

A ninth-inning single beat two first-half home runs last night as Redwood High School's gritty Giants edged Tamalpais' luckless Indians, 19-13, before an estimated 4,500 fans at College of Marin Stadium.

Junior fullback Pete Richter provided the margin of victory with a five-yard touchdown burst in the last period, his third TD of the game. Richter's three tallies, one short of the school record set by teammate Larry Blackwell in the Galileo game this fall, offset a pair of long-distance aerial TD tosses by Tam's Don Mackin.

The win left Redwood very much in contention int he Marin County Athletic League race with a record of 2-1, 5-1 over-all. Tam is 0-2 in the league, 1-5 on the season.

REDWOOD BLAST

Redwood blasted over for a score the first time it got the ball, with the running of Richter, Blackwell, and quarterback Jim Peters, sandwiched around a pass from Peters to end Skip Schmidt for 19 yards, moving the ball to Tam four, from where Richter slammed over. The conversion via placement failed, and Redwood led, 6-0, with 4:42 left in the quarter.

Tam got back in it with stunning suddenness. On the third play after taking Redwood's kickoff, swift end Leroy Barrow, a superb player for Tam all night, got a step on his coverage and made a fine catch of Mackin's perfect lead pass, then outraced the Giants' secondary to the goal for a 67-yard TD. A run failed on the conversion attempt.

Tam's ball again. Four plays, and Mackin fades to pass again. Halfback Luther Brown is free on the sideline, takes Mackin's bullet for 50 and another Injun score. Mackin picks up the PAT on a sneak. 13-13 at the half.

Early in the third quarter Redwood marches to the Tam 7, but the Indians stop Richter on fourth down. But Ron Blasingame fumbles after a 32-yard breakaway, and Giant tackle Gary Krsprsak recovers at Tam's 37. Three runs by Blackwell and one by Richter get the Giants to the Indian 16, but Blackwell's halfback option pass is intercepted by Ron Small to end the threat.

With about six minutes to play, one score may be all it takes. Redwood gets it, driving 74 yards in 15 plays, with passes from Peters to Blackwell and Rob Dorinson, plus a personal foul against Tam, moving the ball to the five, where Richter lowers his head and barges over. The PAT fails, but Tam has only 4:51 left.

The Indians picked up one first down, but three Mackin passes fell incomplete from the Redwood 40.

Giant coach Bob Troppman was ecstatic, of course, and Tamalpais mentor Willie Hector was frustrated, ditto.

Troppmann: "I'm just happy. What a game! You saw good football out there on both sides. The whole team was great — Dorinson, our ballhawk in the secondary, Krsprsak, Blackwell, Richter —everybody was great. We're still in it. Drake next week, and a real good chance at the championship."

'KILLED OURSELVES'

Hector: "We killed ourselves. The team was hitting tonight. You didn't see any quitters out there, but we got penalties all night, stopping our drives and helping theirs. We made too many mistakes. We had three men thrown out, all regulars, so it was hard to get something going late in the game. But we'll be back."

Saints Over 49ers? Anything Possible

An upset of the 49ers by the New Orleans Saints tomorrow in Kezar Stadium is "a distinct possibility." So says Don Smith, advance man of the National Football League's new expansion team.

"A return to the form the Saints showed in late August when they beat the 49ers 24-10 in a pre-season game at Portland is all that's necessary," said Smith.

Bill Kilmer, former 49er, directed the Saints in their pre-season victory at Portland. He took them on 76, 37 and 67 yard touchdown drives three of the first four times the Saints had the ball. Kilmer completed 13 of 19 passes in a near-perfect performance.

However, since then Kilmer has suffered bruised ribs and Gary Cuozzo is the No. 1 Saint quarterback. Nevertheless, Kilmer shared the action with Cuozzo last Sunday against the Dallas Cowboys and came very close to upsetting the Cowboys in the fourth quarter.

Rookie Becomes Receiving Ace

Kilmer directed two near-misses in the final quarter, one to the five-yard line, the other to the one-yard line. The Cowboys forced the Saints to give up the ball on downs on the five. Kilmer fumbled on the one in the dying seconds of the game which the Cowboys won 14-10.

Notwithstanding the fact that the game was played in the rain, it was a most impressive showing by the Saints against last season's Eastern Conference NFL champs.

Coach Tom Fears has announced Cuozzo will get his third straight starting assignment tomorrow.

Jim Taylor, former fullback ace of the Green Bay Packers, and Ernie Wheelwright, who recently joined the Saints, are the big running backs for New Orleans. But the Saints prefer the passing game. Only one out of three of their plays have been on the ground.

Two Near Misses For Big Upset

Dan Abramowicz, a rookie, has been their receiving ace. After catching 11 for 11, Abramowicz finally dropped one in the Saints' fifth game last Sunday. Still, he came up with five catches against the Cowboys despite the rain, four of them in the final quarter when the Saints held the ball for 25 plays against just 12 for the Cowboys.

The Cowboys, outgained 101 yards to 32 in the last quarter, didn't get out of their territory in the final stanza. In fact, they did not advance beyond their own 25.

So it's understandable why Smith, ignoring the 15 point odds favoring the 49ers and the 0-5 league record of the Saints, insists that an upset tomorrow is "a distinct possibility."

Kennedy Sees Hope For A's

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Now the hopefuls at the Oakland Athletics' winter instructional camp know why Bob Kennedy has been so interested in their progress.

The onetime head coach of the Chicago Cubs will be their manager if they make it to the major leagues when the Athletics move to Oakland next season.

Owner Charles Finley announced in Chicago Friday that he had signed Kennedy to a two-year contract, as the veteran watched the rookies work out near here.

Kennedy, a coach for the Atlanta Braves last season, was signed two weeks ago, but Finley held up the announcement until the American League had approved shifting the franchise from Kansas City.

PROMISING CLUB

Watching the rookies work out, Kennedy called the Athletics "a promising club . . . with lots of young talent just waiting to grow into the job . . ."

He said he was delighted with the appointment, and wanted to "look things over before I make any announcements about how I'm going to run the ball club."

He hasn't seen the stadium where the A's will play, but he said, I hear it's a good one."

Kennedy plans to work with the youngsters until Nov. 10 and they get ready to join the Athletics at their Bradenton, Fla., training camp. He promised a "tight, businesslike training camp," stressing fundamentals.

In his 16-year major-league playing career Kennedy played for the Chicago White Sox, Cleveland, Baltimore, Detroit and the Dodgers. He had a lifetime batting average of .255 as a first baseman, third baseman and outfielder.

After managing Salt Lake City in the Pacific Coast League in 1962, Kennedy piloted the Chicago Cubs to seventh place in the National League in 1963 and eighth in 1964.

He managed Albuquerque in 1965 before joining the Braves as a coach last season.

THE CROWNING — Tamalpais football captain Leroy Barrow places crown on golden locks of Tam Homecoming Queen Christine Cruikshank during halftime ceremonies at last night's game against Redwood.

Unique Bantam Title Go Sought For S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The world bantamweight boxing champion, Fighting Harada of Japan, was offered $65,000 Friday to defend his title against No. 1 contender Jesus Pimentel of San Antonio, Tex.

The site would be San Francisco's 15,000-seat Cow Palace, the first week in January.

In a bid for an unique card, promoter Benny Ford offered Harada's brother Ushiwakamura Harada, ranked No. 10, $1,500 to meet Pimentel's twin, Joe Louis Pimentel, in a supporting bout.

Pimental's manager, Harry Kabakoff, said the $65,000 was a record guarantee for a 118-pound champion and that radio and television rights in Japan could boost Harada's take another $10,000.

Pimental would receive $20,000 plus radio and television rights in Mexico, where he is a national idol. The fight would be televised via satellite.

Kabakoff said Harada's handlers five times had promised to meet pimental, the mised to meet Pimental, the World Association's top contender, but had run out on each.

He labelled Harada "a coward," said "I hope that will make him mad enough to fight" and quickly asserted, "He is scared to death. He knows he'll lose the crown any time he steps in the ring with Pimental."

The little Mexican has 58 victories — 54 of them by knockout in 61 fights. He's drawn $80,000 in Los Angeles, where he is extremely popular.

Kabakoff estimated a Pimental-Harada title fight would attract 6,000 or more Mexicans from Baja, California, Mexico City and border points and 1,500 from Los Angeles.

The World Boxing Association has instructed Harada to meet Pimental by Jan. 3 or give up his title. Kabakoff asserted the WBA championship committee chairman, Emile Bruneau, said Harada would be stripped of his title if he doesn't meet the deadline and an elimination series be set up to pick a successor.

Pimental has won two fights this year, knocking out Mimun Ben Ali of Spain in nine rounds and Marciano Rivas in four, both in Los Angeles. He lost a controversial decision to Yoshio Nakane in Mexico.

Giants Challenge Packers

The New York Giants will have high hopes, the law of averages and Fran Tarkenton in their line-up for tomorrow's National Football League clash with Green Bay.

The Packers figure to have too much of everything else. But they'll be stepping carefully when they make their first visit to New York since 1962.

While the Giants' fortunes have soared this year with scrambling quarterback Tarkenton directing a potent offense, the Packers have found the road to another NFL title strewn with obstacles.

Green Bay, however, has beaten the Giants 11 times in a row in regular-season, exhibition and championship playoff competition. The Giants are overdue to break the spell, but the Packers are solid favorites to keep it intact.

Elsewhere tomorrow, the Baltimore Colts put their five-game unbeaten string on the line at Minnesota, where the Packers stumbled a week ago; Chicago visits Cleveland; Philadelphia is at St. Louis, Washington at Los Angeles, Dallas at Pittsburgh, New Orleans at San Francisco and Atlanta at Detroit.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

In the American Football League, it'll be New York at Miami, Oakland at Boston, San Diego at Denver and Houston at Kansas City.

The Packers, 3-1-1 after last Sunday's 10-7 loss to the Vikings, hope to have quarterback Bart Starr, plagued by injuries thus far, available for the first time in three weeks. If the all-NFL signal-caller can't play, capable Zeke Bratkowski again will try to get a sputtering offense into high gear.

Green Bay's veteran defensive unit is as tough as ever, however, and Tarkenton, whose passing and running have led the Giants to three victories in five decisions, might wind up scrambling for cover. The possible return of place-kicker Pete Gogolak could give the Giants an added offensive weapon.

With Johnny Unitas in top form, the Colts are heavy favorites to whip Minnesota for the sixth time in succession and remain the league's only unbeaten entry. Unitas needs just eight completions to wipe out Y. A. Tittle's all-time mark of 2,118.

The Browns' Leroy Kelly and Chicago's Gale Sayers, the top two ground-gainers in the league, hook up in a duel at Cleveland, with the home club rated a one-touchdown pick over the defense-minded Bears.

Kicker Jim Bakken, St. Louis' prolific point-producer, could make the difference for the Cardinals against Philadelphia. Both clubs come off tough losses, the Eagles having bowed to San Francisco by one point, the Cards to Cleveland by four.

The Redskins wiill pin their upset hopes on the passing of Sonny Jurgenson to Charley Taylor, the league's top receiver. The Rams also have a dangerous aerial team in quarterback Roman Gabriel and end Jack Snow, who clicked for 53 and 80-yard TD strikes in last week's tie with the Colts.

Dallas will miss injured quarterback Don Meredith against the rugged Steelers, but back-up man Craig Morton came through for the Cowboys against New Orleans last week. Rookie quarterback Kent Nix, who sparkled in last Sunday's 27-24 loss to New York, tries to snap the Steelers out of a four-game slide.

Hogan Benches The Great Palmer In Ryder Surprise

HOUSTON (AP) — The great Arnold Palmer was on the bench when U.S. golf professionals went out to try to widen their 5½-2½ lead over the British today in the second phase of the 17th biennial Ryder Cup matches.

Palmer, one of the stars in America's strong start yesterday in the two-ball foursomes, was surprisingly dropped from the line-up for the four morning four-ball tests although slated to return to action in the afternoon.

The decision was made by the strict U.S. captain, Ben Hogan, who didn't think it was necessary to give an explanation.

"He is not playing because I say so," Hogan told a news conference. "I am the captain and I say who plays."

A repotrer asked if there were reasons.

"Yep," said Hogan.

"May I ask what they are?" the reporter pressed.

"You may ask, but I don't have to tell you," Hogan replied.

BOROS BENCHED

In addition to Palmer, the world's all-time leading money winner, Hogan also ordered the 47-year-old Julius Boros to sit out the morning matches.

The schedule was this: Bill Casper-Gay Brewer, United States, vs. Peter Alliss-Christy O'Connor, Britain; Bobby Nichols-Johnny Pott, United States, vs. Neil Coles-Bernard Hunt, Britain; Gene Littler-Al Geiberger, United States, vs. Dave Thomas-Tony Jacklin, Britain; Doug Sanders-Gardner Dickinson, United States, vs. Brian Huggett-George Will, Britain.

Four matches with revised line-ups follow in the afternoon. The series, which the United States has lost only three times in 40 years, ends with 16 singles tilts tomorrow.

LIKE BRYANT

Nichols went to Texas A&M on a golf scholarship under Paul "Bear" Bryant, now Alabama's militant football coach.

"Hogan is a lot like Bryant," Nichols said. "If you don't win the first time, he won't lose twice with the same personnel."

Another player said Hogan watched the team practice five minutes and remarked: "I've never seen so many God-awful shots in my life."

Hogan didn't leave it up to the players on whether they should use the small British ball or the large American ball.

"Any time you can use the smaller ball, it helps," he said.

Earlier he said, "If my players don't have sense enough to use the smaller ball, they shouldn't be on the team."

Hogan has become the militant captain, pushing the Professional Golfers Association brass to the sidelines in the conduct of the team. So far it's worked well.

FANTASTIC SHOT

Palmer and Gardner Dickinson won two matches yesterday, beating O'Connor and Alliss 2 and 1 and then trouncing young Malcolm Gregson and Hugh Boyle 5 and 4. Palmer made a fantastic shot out of the woods for the key shot of the morning match. Fine putting by Dickinson won the second.

Pott and Nichols also won two points, beating Hunt and Coles 6 and 5 and Alliss and O'Connor 2 and 1. The other U.S. full point came on a 1-up victory by Boros and Casper over Will and Huggett, who played the same pair to a standstill for a half in the morning.

Jacklin and Thomas were Britain's heroes, winning twice. They beat Sanders and Brewer 4 and 3 and Littler and Geiberger 3 and 2. Jacklin is Britain's 23-year-old rookie.

"I'm not happy," said Dai Rees, the British captain. "Our boys aren't getting the ball close enough to the hole. But we'll do better."

Redwood 'Single' Beats Tam's HRs

By KIMO CAMPBELL

A ninth-inning single beat two first-half home runs last night as Redwood High School's gritty Giants edged Tamalpais' luckless Indians, 19-13, before an estimated 4,500 fans at College of Marin Stadium.

Junior fullback Pete Richter provided the margin of victory with a five-yard touchdown burst in the last period, his third TD of the game. Richter's three tallies, one short of the school record set by teammate Larry Blackwell in the Galileo game this fall, offset a pair of long-distance aerial TD tosses by Tam's Don Mackin.

The win left Redwood very much in contention int he Marin County Athletic League race with a record of 2-1, 5-1 over-all. Tam is 0-2 in the league, 1-5 on the season.

REDWOOD BLAST

Redwood blasted over for a score the first time it got the ball, with the running of Richter, Blackwell, and quarterback Jim Peters, sandwiched around a pass from Peters to end Skip Schmidt for 19 yards, moving the ball to Tam four, from where Richter slammed over. The conversion via placement failed, and Redwood led, 6-0, with 4:42 left in the quarter.

Tam got back in it with stunning suddenness. On the third play after taking Redwood's kickoff, swift end Leroy Barrow, a superb player for Tam all night, got a step on his coverage and made a fine catch of Mackin's perfect lead pass, then outraced the Giants' secondary to the goal for a 67-yard TD. A run failed on the conversion attempt.

Tam's ball again. Four plays, and Mackin fades to pass again. Halfback Luther Brown is free on the sideline, takes Mackin's bullet for 50 and another Injun score. Mackin picks up the PAT on a sneak. 13-13 at the half.

Early in the third quarter Redwood marches to the Tam 7, but the Indians stop Richter on fourth down. But Ron Blasingame fumbles after a 32-yard breakaway, and Giant tackle Gary Krsprsak recovers at Tam's 37. Three runs by Blackwell and one by Richter get the Giants to the Indian 16, but Blackwell's halfback option pass is intercepted by Ron Small to end the threat.

With about six minutes to play, one score may be all it takes. Redwood gets it, driving 74 yards in 15 plays, with passes from Peters to Blackwell and Rob Dorinson, plus a personal foul against Tam, moving the ball to the five, where Richter lowers his head and barges over. The PAT fails, but Tam has only 4:51 left.

The Indians picked up one first down, but three Mackin passes fell incomplete from the Redwood 40.

Giant coach Bob Troppman was ecstatic, of course, and Tamalpais mentor Willie Hector was frustrated, ditto.

Troppmann: "I'm just happy. What a game! You saw good football out there on both sides. The whole team was great — Dorinson, our ballhawk in the secondary, Krsprsak, Blackwell, Richter —everybody was great. We're still in it. Drake next week, and a real good chance at the championship."

'KILLED OURSELVES'

Hector: "We killed ourselves. The team was hitting tonight. You didn't see any quitters out there, but we got penalties all night, stopping our drives and helping theirs. We made too many mistakes. We had three men thrown out, all regulars, so it was hard to get something going late in the game. But we'll be back."

Saints Over 49ers? Anything Possible

An upset of the 49ers by the New Orleans Saints tomorrow in Kezar Stadium is "a distinct possibility." So says Don Smith, advance man of the National Football League's new expansion team.

"A return to the form the Saints showed in late August when they beat the 49ers 24-10 in a pre-season game at Portland is all that's necessary," said Smith.

Bill Kilmer, former 49er, directed the Saints in their pre-season victory at Portland. He took them on 76, 37 and 67 yard touchdown drives three of the first four times the Saints had the ball. Kilmer completed 13 of 19 passes in a near-perfect performance.

However, since then Kilmer has suffered bruised ribs and Gary Cuozzo is the No. 1 Saint quarterback. Nevertheless, Kilmer shared the action with Cuozzo last Sunday against the Dallas Cowboys and came very close to upsetting the Cowboys in the fourth quarter.

Rookie Becomes Receiving Ace

Kilmer directed two near-misses in the final quarter, one to the five-yard line, the other to the one-yard line. The Cowboys forced the Saints to give up the ball on downs on the five. Kilmer fumbled on the one in the dying seconds of the game which the Cowboys won 14-10.

Notwithstanding the fact that the game was played in the rain, it was a most impressive showing by the Saints against last season's Eastern Conference NFL champs.

Coach Tom Fears has announced Cuozzo will get his third straight starting assignment tomorrow.

Jim Taylor, former fullback ace of the Green Bay Packers, and Ernie Wheelwright, who recently joined the Saints, are the big running backs for New Orleans. But the Saints prefer the passing game. Only one out of three of their plays have been on the ground.

Two Near Misses For Big Upset

Dan Abramowicz, a rookie, has been their receiving ace. After catching 11 for 11, Abramowicz finally dropped one in the Saints' fifth game last Sunday. Still, he came up with five catches against the Cowboys despite the rain, four of them in the final quarter when the Saints held the ball for 25 plays against just 12 for the Cowboys.

The Cowboys, outgained 101 yards to 32 in the last quarter, didn't get out of their territory in the final stanza. In fact, they did not advance beyond their own 25.

So it's understandable why Smith, ignoring the 15 point odds favoring the 49ers and the 0-5 league record of the Saints, insists that an upset tomorrow is "a distinct possibility."

Kennedy Sees Hope For A's

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Now the hopefuls at the Oakland Athletics' winter instructional camp know why Bob Kennedy has been so interested in their progress.

The onetime head coach of the Chicago Cubs will be their manager if they make it to the major leagues when the Athletics move to Oakland next season.

Owner Charles Finley announced in Chicago Friday that he had signed Kennedy to a two-year contract, as the veteran watched the rookies work out near here.

Kennedy, a coach for the Atlanta Braves last season, was signed two weeks ago, but Finley held up the announcement until the American League had approved shifting the franchise from Kansas City.

PROMISING CLUB

Watching the rookies work out, Kennedy called the Athletics "a promising club . . . with lots of young talent just waiting to grow into the job . . ."

He said he was delighted with the appointment, and wanted to "look things over before I make any announcements about how I'm going to run the ball club."

He hasn't seen the stadium where the A's will play, but he said, I hear it's a good one."

Kennedy plans to work with the youngsters until Nov. 10 and they get ready to join the Athletics at their Bradenton, Fla., training camp. He promised a "tight, businesslike training camp," stressing fundamentals.

In his 16-year major-league playing career Kennedy played for the Chicago White Sox, Cleveland, Baltimore, Detroit and the Dodgers. He had a lifetime batting average of .255 as a first baseman, third baseman and outfielder.

After managing Salt Lake City in the Pacific Coast League in 1962, Kennedy piloted the Chicago Cubs to seventh place in the National League in 1963 and eighth in 1964.

He managed Albuquerque in 1965 before joining the Braves as a coach last season.

Unique Bantam Title Go Sought For S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The world bantamweight boxing champion, Fighting Harada of Japan, was offered $65,000 Friday to defend his title against No. 1 contender Jesus Pimentel of San Antonio, Tex.

The site would be San Francisco's 15,000-seat Cow Palace, the first week in January.

In a bid for an unique card, promoter Benny Ford offered Harada's brother Ushiwakamura Harada, ranked No. 10, $1,500 to meet Pimentel's twin, Joe Louis Pimentel, in a supporting bout.

Pimental's manager, Harry Kabakoff, said the $65,000 was a record guarantee for a 118-pound champion and that radio and television rights in Japan could boost Harada's take another $10,000.

Pimental would receive $20,000 plus radio and television rights in Mexico, where he is a national idol. The fight would be televised via satellite.

Kabakoff said Harada's handlers five times had promised to meet pimental, the mised to meet Pimental, the World Association's top contender, but had run out on each. He labelled Harada "a coward," said "I hope that will make him mad enough to fight" and quickly asserted, "He is scared to death. He knows he'll lose the crown any time he steps in the ring with Pimental."

The little Mexican has 58 victories — 54 of them by knockout in 61 fights. He's drawn $80,000 in Los Angeles, where he is extremely popular.

Kabakoff estimated a Pimental-Harada title fight would attract 6,000 or more Mexicans from Baja, California, Mexico City and border points and 1,500 from Los Angeles.

The World Boxing Association has instructed Harada to meet Pimental by Jan. 3 or give up his title. Kabakoff asserted the WBA championship committee chairman, Emile Bruneau, said Harada would be stripped of his title if he doesn't meet the deadline and an elimination series be set up to pick a successor.

Pimental has won two fights this year, knocking out Mimun Ben Ali of Spain in nine rounds and Marciano Rivas in four, both in Los Angeles. He lost a controversial decision to Yoshio Nakane in Mexico.

Key Game Tonight When Drake, Terra Linda Collide

A violent game of musical chairs is on tap tonight at College of Marin Stadium, the chair in question being the driver's seat in the 1967 Marin County Athletic League football race.

When front-running Terra Linda and proud Drake collide at 8 o'clock, the prize will likely be a big step toward the championship they shared last fall.

The Trojans of Terra Linda are in a better position, with two wins and no losses in league play among their five victories, while Drake, hobbled by injuries, was upset by a rugged San Rafael High team 18-0 last week. Drake would be practically eliminated from the race by a loss, while a Terra Linda victory would give the Trojans the whip hand in the pennant chase.

Coach Bob Franceschini of Drake has his men healthy this week, with the exception of guard Al Logan, who is out for the year with an injured knee. Rangy quarterback Don Stone, who was hampered by a sore arm last week, is back in shape, as is halfback John Brown, the Pirates' top running back.

TOUGH DEFENSES

Franceschini rates the game a tossup between two tough defensive teams. "Whoever has the good offense tonight will win," he declared. "We have our injured men back, and we certainly think we'll play better than last week. The team is ready, they know what they have to do, and what's at stake. Whoever can move the football is going to win."

Don Lucas of Terra Linda is just as happy that Drake has Stone and Brown back. "We want to beat them at their best," he said. "I even with Logan could play. He's a good player, and we like to play the best. If we win, we don't like to think 'what if so-and-so had played.' There will be no alibis after this game, on either side."

Lucas is concerned about one thing — the long bomb. "We gave up one TD pass last year," he sighed, "to Drake. And one long gain on the ground — also to Drake. We'll have to shut off those long passes of Stone's to win."

Offensively, Terra Linda will go with the game that's won for it all season: Sparing with the pass, heavy on the running with Keith Sterling and Mark Buckley, tough defense and play for the breaks. "We know we'll get some breaks — and so will they," said Lucas, "so whoever takes advantage of them will win." He felt that his team was mentally ready for Drake, despite the Pirates' loss last week. "Our boys can smell that championship," he said, "and they know Drake is tough. They've played them before, and they realize that Drake just played poorly last week and had some men out."

TROJAN RUSHERS

It will be up to the Terra Linda rushers, All-MCAL defensive end Bruce Kilby, Art Stackhouse, Bill Saleme, Dane Larsen, et al, to put pressure on Stone and stop the running of John Vollenwilder and Brown. Sterling and Buckley in the backfield will have to contend with the MCAL's top receiver, Flanker Don Alvarado, plus brother Dave Alvarado at tight end and Mike Gaffney at split end.

The Pirate defense will be led by linebacker Perry Hedin, defensive end Andy Stitch, and Don Alvarado and Clark Jamison in the backfield.

Dodger Veep 'Interested' In Seattle

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI)— Seattle's efforts to obtain a major league baseball franchise were given a big boost today with the word that E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, is interested in becoming associated with the project.

Bavasi, one of baseball's top executives, said he had discussed the possibility of his becoming one of the owners of a proposed Seattle franchise with several people there.

"I first talked the matter over with my boss, Dodger President Walter O'Malley, and he encouraged me in seeking such advancement for myself," Bavasi said.

"The only way I would go up there would be if I became involved in the ownership," he said. "I would be silly to go there just as general manager. I have what probably is the best salary job in baseball now."

But Bavasi made it clear that his interest had not gone beyond the talking stage yet.

"I intend to make application for the job of running a major league team there but I haven't done it yet. There is nothing definite about the whole thing yet. I'll probably wait until Mr. O'Malley returns from a hunting trip in Africa before I do anything more than talk it over."

Bavasi said he had discussed his becoming associated with the proposed Seattle franchise with Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and Bob Reynolds, president of the California Angels who own the Seattle franchise in the Pacific Coast League. Reynolds also is chairman of the American League's expansion committee.

"I knew Bob had a lot of experience with the problems of starting a new team, having done it with the Angels," Bavasi said.

The American League appeared to have the inside track for the Seattle franchise, having promised one to the city by 1971 if it built a new stadium.

Bavasi said it didn't matter to him if either the American League or National League granted Seattle a franchise, he would be just as interested.

The Dodgers executive was in Arizona to check on the club's team in the instructional league here. Bavasi took over as general manager of the Dodgers after Branch Rickey left the club when it was in Brooklyn. Bavasi guided the Dodgers to eight National League pennants and four world championship, three in Los Angeles.

Collett In 49ers' Starting Lineup Against The Saints

The San Francisco 49ers will have a new role—favorite—and a new man in the starting lineup, rookie guard Elmer Collett, as they meet New Orleans tomorrow at Kezar Stadium in a National Football League game. Kickoff is at 1 p.m.

Collett, 6-4- 230, earned the role when offensive guard John Thomas was sidelined with two injured knees. Thomas underwent a double operation, will be in a hospital four weeks and may never return to the gridiron.

Collett, an alumnus of Tamalpais High School, College of Marin and San Francisco State, is the first player to crash the 49ers starting offensive line since Howard Mudd did it in 1965. Since then, Mudd, Thomas, Bruce Boseley, Walter Rock and Len Rhode had launched the 49ers into 33 straight NFL games.

Collett, 22, is a native of Oakland, a three-sport letterman at Tamalpais High in Mill Valley, and son of an assistant U. S. attorney.

The 49ers, 4-1 and off to their best start in years, expect to face an old teammate, Billy Kilmer, who went to New Orleans, 0-5, in the expansion draft.

Kilmer chilled San Francisco, 24-10 at Portland, Ore. in an exhibition game. However, Gary Cuozzo has earned the Saints' starting role and will start tomorrow.

Cuozzo has completed 38 of 74 passes for 410 yards and two touchdowns; Kilmer 51 of 108 for 607 and one score. Kilmer's longest was for 65 yards.

Jim Taylor, the former Green Bay workhorse, doesn't have the horses up front to compare with the Packers' line, but he's still potent—159 yards and a 3.1 average. Kilmer had scampered 13 times for 101 and a 7.8 average.

John Brodie of the 49ers has a hot 73 completions in 135 for 1011 yards and six touchdowns. He threw a 59-yarder to John David Crow and a 55-yarder to Bob Windsor for scores.

His leading receivers are Dick Wichter, 13 for 192; Dave Parks, 13 for 155; Sonny Randle 11 for 225 and Crow, 11 for 175.

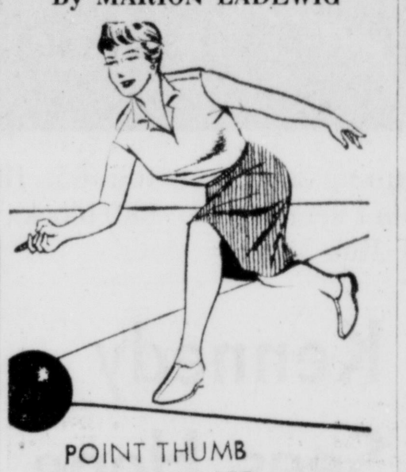
Gary Lewis has rushed for 298, Ken Willard, 199, Crow, 167 and Doug Cunningham 116.

The 49ers activated rookie offensive tackle Dave Hettema, 6-4, 249, from the University of New Mexico, to replace Thomas on the roster.

They also reported Sonny Randle will start as flanker in place of Dave Wichter. Randle has caught 11 passes for 225 yards; Wichter 13 for 192.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



POINT THUMB SLIGHTLY LEFT

For the bowler who wants to move into the upper level of ten-pinners, a hook is as important as it is to a fisherman. Not a big hook, mind you, but one that will cause the ball to curve about 12 inches on its way to the pins. No sudden turning of the hand or fingers is needed. Just set your hand so that the thumb is pointed slightly to the left. This brings the other fingers a little to the side of the ball and this imparts the curving motion.

Marin Driver Tries For Triple

San Rafael's Neil Anderson, two-time Class E Sports Division winner at Half Moon Bay Drag Strip, will try for a triple tomormor as the quarter-mile racing plant hosts more than 150 entries in competition.

Anderson scored at the wheel of his Corvette last week with a 105 mph clocking. The Sunday before the hard driving Marinite took top honors with a 107.78 best run and an elapsed time of 12.6 seconds.

Gates open tomorrow at 9 a.m. with eliminations set for noon.

Marin Catholic Vs. Cardinal Newman '11'

A losing streak is like hitting your head against a brick wall: Awful, but it feels so good when you stop.

Marin Catholic High School's Joel Kiff is feeling pretty good this week, after his Wildcats broke a three-game losing string last Saturday by handing Salesian of Richmond, a so-called East Bay power, its third loss in as many trips to Marin County, 13-7.

Kiff also has hopes of making that two wins in a row against Cardinal Newman High in Santa Rosa tonight.

"It was a good game to win," he said, referring to Salesian. "Our passing was improved, and our defense did a real good job, so we think we can win again this week."

PASSING THREAT

Newman tied El Molino 6-6 and beat St. Vincent's of Petaluma 12-0, and likes to pass a lot. "Our pass defense stills needs improvement," said Kiff, but he praised linebacker and captain Nick Ferrua and defensive back Mike Courter for their play last week.

Offensively, Marin has the passing of Larry Nelson to add to the familiar running of Jim Finnegan and Jim O'Brien. Finnegan, the second leading rusher in Marin County with 380 yards and a 5.0 average, gained 99 yards last Saturday and should add appreciably to his total against Newman.

A win would put the Wildcats at the .500 mark for the year at three wins and three losses.

San Rafael Braves Vs. Spiders Tomorrow

The San Rafael Braves make a bid to move up in the standings of the San Francisco Triple A Winter Baseball League tomorrow when they play the Spiders at Funston's Hennessey diamond at 2 p.m.

New Pisa and Ellis Brooks Chevrolet, the undefeated coleaders in the standings, clash in another game tomorrow so the third-place Braves have a chance to gain ground.

Jess Jacinto and Ron Gasper are currently the top hitters for the Braves, both hitting over the .500 mark.

San Rafael's Cadets Bow To Emery

San Rafael Military Academy's embattled Cadets lost their sixth straight football game, but made a contest out of it, bowing to Emery High 19-6 at Emery yesterday afternoon.

Greg Jones racked up two touchdowns for Emery, which held a 12-6 edge at halftime, and added an insurance score in the last period.

Fred Kewell fell on an Emery fumble in the first quarter for SRMA's only score. Kewell and Ray Martinez stood out on defense for the Cadets, each getting in on 15 tackles.

SRMA plays Lick Wilmerding at San Rafael next week.

Marin Harriers Defeat Sierra

The College of Marin cross-country team defeated Sierra College Wolverines 26-30 in a four-mile run yesterday in Kentfield.

Coach Jim McGowan's harriers swept the first three places, with George Stewart, formerly of Tam and Steve Carroll and Marv Stevens, both ex-Redwood, finishing 1-2-3.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — After one day of fall practice Midshipman Craig Honour, a letter winner the past two seasons, decided to quit football. His number, 69, was taken by reserve center Bill Broderick.

Defense Key In Raider, Pat Contest

BOSTON (AP) —The revitalized Boston Patriots will be trying to avenge an early season loss and vault back into the American Football League's Eastern Division title picture when they meet the Oakland Raiders at Fenway Park tomorrow.

The visitors will have plenty of incentive of their own as they attempt to stay close to the pace in the Western Division race.

Defense could play a big part for both sides in the game. The Pats, with quarterback Babe Parilli showing new vigor in his last couple of games, have moved up among the league leading teams in passing, but Oakland boasts the stingiest defensive club in the circuit. On the other hand, the Raiders' standout ground game appears likely to get its stiffest test of the season against a Boston defense which leads the league in this department.

DISASTROUS SEASON

Oakland won the first game of the season between the clubs 35-7, but this was during Boston's disastrous season opening Western trip and Patriot coach Mike Holovak feels his club has improved tremendously since then.

"We played a terrible game out there," Holovak says. "The more we look at the film the more mistakes we can see. Just awful."

Since that 0-3 Western trip, however, the Boston forces have started to jell. They defeated Buffalo, played a tie with San Diego, then annihilated Miami 41-10 last Sunday. Thus a victory in this game would even the Pats' record at 3-3-1.

568 See Oaks Beat Denver

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Oaks, 2-1 in the American Basketball Association's Western Division after a 112-102 victory over the Denver Rockets at San Jose last night, meet Indiana next Thursday in their next contest.

Indiana, 3-0 Eastern Division leader, downed Kentucky 106-99 last night. The game will be in the Oakland Arena.

A thin crowd of only 568 in San Jose saw the Oaks tighten their defenses in the second half after leading Denver 54-52 at the half.

LITTLE GUY TO THE ROYALS

The Chicago Bulls yesterday traded standout guard Guy Rodgers (left) to the Cincinnati Royals for second-year guard Flynn Robinson (right), two second-round draft choices, and an undisclosed amount of cash. Bull's owner Dick Klein called the deal a "calculated risk," for if Cincinnati finishes low in its division, the draft choices can help build the expansion Bulls, now in the second season. British Horse Wins Irish Sweepstakes

NEWMARKET, England (AP) — Lacquer won the 1⅛ miles of the Cambridgeshire Handicap today with Straight Master second and Mrs. C. O. Iselin's American-owned Wolver Hollow third.

Lacquer, ridden by Australian Ron Hutchinson, came with a late run in the last 50 yards and landed the first prize of $14,457 for British owner R. Moller.

The race carried the last Irish Sweepstakes of the season and added up to a small fortune for the lucky holders of winning tickets.

Thirty-four thoroughbreds started in the race, first run in 1839 and rated one of the biggest gambles on British turf tracks.

Lacquer, a 3-year-old bay filly by Shantung out of Urshalim, was a 20-1 betting shot with Straight Master 40-1 and Wolver Hollow 33-1. Cumshaw, 66-1 ,was fourth.

Straight Master, a 3-year-old chestnut colt by Skymater out of Royal Straight, picked up the second prize of $4,242 for Britain's Mrs. A. Finney.

Wolver Hollow, a 3-year-old bay colt by Sovereign Path out of Cynet, won $2,049 for his American owner.

Breasley came with a run down the middle of the turf course toward the end and it looked as though he would take first place. Then Hutchinson, on Lacquer, put on the pressure in the last 50 yards and grabbed the verdict from Straight Master and Wolver Hollow.

Two other American entries finished far back. Jolly Jet, owned by Irving Allen of New York and ridden by Britain's crack jockey Lester Piggott, never was in contention.

Indy 500 Aces Race Tomorrow At Hanford

HANFORD (UPI) — Thirty five of the nation's top race car drivers will compete here tomorrow in the first annual California 200-mile U.S. Auto Club race for Indianapolis cars.

Leading the drivers are A. J. Foyt, three-time winner of the Indianapolis 500, and Mario Andretti, defending USAC national driving champion.

The field includes 21 Indianapolis veterans. Among them are Lloyd Ruby, Jim McElreath, Al and Bob Unser, Chuck Hulse, Art Polland and Joe Leonard.

During practice runs at the tri-oval mile and a half speedway Pollard set an unofficial one-lap record of 154.860 miles per hour, making the paved track the fastest west of Indianapolis.

Key Game Tonight When Drake, Terra Linda Collide

A violent game of musical chairs is on tap tonight at College of Marin Stadium, the chair in question being the driver's seat in the 1967 Marin County Athletic League football race.

When front-running Terra Linda and proud Drake collide at 8 o'clock, the prize will likely be a big step toward the championship they shared last fall.

The Trojans of Terra Linda are in a better position, with two wins and no losses in league play among their five victories, while Drake, hobbled by injuries, was upset by a rugged San Rafael High team 18-0 last week. Drake would be practically eliminated from the race by a loss, while a Terra Linda victory would give the Trojans the whip hand in the pennant chase.

Coach Bob Franceschini of Drake has his men healthy this week, with the exception of guard Al Logan, who is out for the year with an injured knee. Rangy quarterback Don Stone, who was hampered by a sore arm last week, is back in shape, as is halfback John Brown, the Pirates' top running back.

TOUGH DEFENSES

Franceschini rates the game a tossup between two tough defensive teams. "Whoever has the good offense tonight will win," he declared. "We have our injured men back, and we certainly think we'll play better than last week. The team is ready, they know what they have to do, and what's at stake. Whoever can move the football is going to win."

Don Lucas of Terra Linda is just as happy that Drake has Stone and Brown back. "We want to beat them at their best," he said. "I even with Logan could play. He's a good player, and we like to play the best. If we win, we don't like to think 'what if so-and-so had played.' There will be no alibis after this game, on either side."

Lucas is concerned about one thing — the long bomb. "We gave up one TD pass last year," he sighed, "to Drake. And one long gain on the ground — also to Drake. We'll have to shut off those long passes of Stone's to win."

Offensively, Terra Linda will go with the game that's won for it all season: Sparing with the pass, heavy on the running with Keith Sterling and Mark Buckley, tough defense and play for the breaks. "We know we'll get some breaks — and so will they," said Lucas, "so whoever takes advantage of them will win." He felt that his team was mentally ready for Drake, despite the Pirates' loss last week. "Our boys can smell that championship," he said, "and they know Drake is tough. They've played them before, and they realize that Drake just played poorly last week and had some men out."

TROJAN RUSHERS

It will be up to the Terra Linda rushers, All-MCAL defensive end Bruce Kilby, Art Stackhouse, Bill Saleme, Dane Larsen, et al, to put pressure on Stone and stop the running of John Vollenwilder and Brown. Sterling and Buckley in the backfield will have to contend with the MCAL's top receiver, Flanker Don Alvarado, plus brother Dave Alvarado at tight end and Mike Gaffney at split end.

The Pirate defense will be led by linebacker Perry Hedin, defensive end Andy Stitch, and Don Alvarado and Clark Jamison in the backfield.

Dodger Veep 'Interested' In Seattle

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI)— Seattle's efforts to obtain a major league baseball franchise were given a big boost today with the word that E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, is interested in becoming associated with the project.

Bavasi, one of baseball's top executives, said he had discussed the possibility of his becoming one of the owners of a proposed Seattle franchise with several people there.

"I first talked the matter over with my boss, Dodger President Walter O'Malley, and he encouraged me in seeking such advancement for myself," Bavasi said.

"The only way I would go up there would be if I became involved in the ownership," he said. "I would be silly to go there just as general manager. I have what probably is the best salary job in baseball now."

But Bavasi made it clear that his interest had not gone beyond the talking stage yet.

"I intend to make application for the job of running a major league team there but I haven't done it yet. There is nothing definite about the whole thing yet. I'll probably wait until Mr. O'Malley returns from a hunting trip in Africa before I do anything more than talk it over."

Bavasi said he had discussed his becoming associated with the proposed Seattle franchise with Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and Bob Reynolds, president of the California Angels who own the Seattle franchise in the Pacific Coast League. Reynolds also is chairman of the American League's expansion committee.

"I knew Bob had a lot of experience with the problems of starting a new team, having done it with the Angels," Bavasi said.

The American League appeared to have the inside track for the Seattle franchise, having promised one to the city by 1971 if it built a new stadium.

Bavasi said it didn't matter to him if either the American League or National League granted Seattle a franchise, he would be just as interested.

The Dodgers executive was in Arizona to check on the club's team in the instructional league here. Bavasi took over as general manager of the Dodgers after Branch Rickey left the club when it was in Brooklyn. Bavasi guided the Dodgers to eight National League pennants and four world championship, three in Los Angeles.

Collett In 49ers' Starting Lineup Against The Saints

The San Francisco 49ers will have a new role—favorite—and a new man in the starting lineup, rookie guard Elmer Collett, as they meet New Orleans tomorrow at Kezar Stadium in a National Football League game. Kickoff is at 1 p.m.

Collett, 6-4- 230, earned the role when offensive guard John Thomas was sidelined with two injured knees. Thomas underwent a double operation, will be in a hospital four weeks and may never return to the gridiron.

Collett, an alumnus of Tamalpais High School, College of Marin and San Francisco State, is the first player to crash the 49ers starting offensive line since Howard Mudd did it in 1965. Since then, Mudd, Thomas, Bruce Boseley, Walter Rock and Len Rhode had launched the 49ers into 33 straight NFL games.

Collett, 22, is a native of Oakland, a three-sport letterman at Tamalpais High in Mill Valley, and son of an assistant U. S. attorney.

The 49ers, 4-1 and off to their best start in years, expect to face an old teammate, Billy Kilmer, who went to New Orleans, 0-5, in the expansion draft.

Kilmer chilled San Francisco, 24-10 at Portland, Ore. in an exhibition game. However, Gary Cuozzo has earned the Saints' starting role and will start tomorrow.

Cuozzo has completed 38 of 74 passes for 410 yards and two touchdowns; Kilmer 51 of 108 for 607 and one score. Kilmer's longest was for 65 yards.

Jim Taylor, the former Green Bay workhorse, doesn't have the horses up front to compare with the Packers' line, but he's still potent—159 yards and a 3.1 average. Kilmer had scampered 13 times for 101 and a 7.8 average.

John Brodie of the 49ers has a hot 73 completions in 135 for 1011 yards and six touchdowns. He threw a 59-yarder to John David Crow and a 55-yarder to Bob Windsor for scores.

His leading receivers are Dick Wichter, 13 for 192; Dave Parks, 13 for 155; Sonny Randle 11 for 225 and Crow, 11 for 175.

Gary Lewis has rushed for 298, Ken Willard, 199, Crow, 167 and Doug Cunningham 116.

The 49ers activated rookie offensive tackle Dave Hettema, 6-4, 249, from the University of New Mexico, to replace Thomas on the roster.

They also reported Sonny Randle will start as flanker in place of Dave Wichter. Randle has caught 11 passes for 225 yards; Wichter 13 for 192.

Marin Catholic Vs. Cardinal Newman '11'

A losing streak is like hitting your head against a brick wall: Awful, but it feels so good when you stop.

Marin Catholic High School's Joel Kiff is feeling pretty good this week, after his Wildcats broke a three-game losing string last Saturday by handing Salesian of Richmond, a so-called East Bay power, its third loss in as many trips to Marin County, 13-7.

Kiff also has hopes of making that two wins in a row against Cardinal Newman High in Santa Rosa tonight.

"It was a good game to win," he said, referring to Salesian. "Our passing was improved, and our defense did a real good job, so we think we can win again this week."

PASSING THREAT

Newman tied El Molino 6-6 and beat St. Vincent's of Petaluma 12-0, and likes to pass a lot. "Our pass defense stills needs improvement," said Kiff, but he praised linebacker and captain Nick Ferrua and defensive back Mike Courter for their play last week.

Offensively, Marin has the passing of Larry Nelson to add to the familiar running of Jim Finnegan and Jim O'Brien. Finnegan, the second leading rusher in Marin County with 380 yards and a 5.0 average, gained 99 yards last Saturday and should add appreciably to his total against Newman.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Strength Of Character Needed To Refuse To Take A Finesse

It takes a certain amount of character to refuse a finesse.

You can't rely on merely putting the finesse off in the hope that it will go away if you pay no attention to it. The opponents may force you to make up your mind.

No. 3378 .... Oct. 21, 1967

FIRST TRICK

Declarer took the first trick in dummy with the ace of diamonds and drew trumps with the ace and queen. Then he led a low spade, losing dummy's jack to the king.

He hoped to set up dummy's fourth spade to get rid of a club. Then he wouldn't need the club finesse.

East returned a diamond to the king, and South ruffed the good queen of diamonds in dummy to lead a spade toward the queen. This did no good, since West won with the ace of spades and led a club.

Now South could no longer ignore the clubs. He tried a finesse with the queen but lost to the king. South still had to lose a spade trick and was therefore down one.

NOT FAR ENOUGH

South had the right idea when he tried to avoid the club finese, but he didn't go far enough.

After drawing trumps, South should cash the king and queen of diamonds to discard the low club from dummy. Then he leads a club to the ace and returns the queen of clubs.

If you're going to refuse a finesse, this is a sure way of doing it.

KING

South doesn't care which opponent has the king of clubs.

The defenders are forced to lead spades since any other return lets dummy ruff while South discards a spade.

If an opponent starts the spades South can easily limit the spade loss to two tricks, and this is all he needs for te contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ J 8 7 6
♥ K 9 4 2
♦ A 3
♣ A Q 5

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club.

Most experts avoid an opening bid in a very weak 4-card major suit. (Some experts would bid one heart, and others would bid one notrump on this hand.)

If you open with one club, you are ready for any response and can find a good major suit fit if there is one.

Lake Anne Village, one of the component suburban communities in the "new town" of Reston, Va., is completely air-conditioned. Cold water, which does the cooling, circulates to each home from a central refrigerating system.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Oct. 21, the 294th day of 1967 with 71 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1805, the English fleet, under Lord Nelson, defeated the French and Spanish fleets off the Cape of Trafalgar.

In 1879, Thomas Edison invented a workable electric incandescent lamp after 14 months of experimentation.

In 1917, soldiers of the First Division became the initial American troops to see action in World War I.

In 1966, a coal-waste slide buried the Welsh mining town of Aberfan. Two days later 135 bodies had been found.

A thought for the day—Samuel Taylor Coleridge said: "To have lived in vain must be a painful thought to any man, and especially so to him who has made literature his profession."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Oct. 21, the 294th day of 1967 with 71 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1805, the English fleet, under Lord Nelson, defeated the French and Spanish fleets off the Cape of Trafalgar.

In 1879, Thomas Edison invented a workable electric incandescent lamp after 14 months of experimentation.

In 1917, soldiers of the First Division became the initial American troops to see action in World War I.

In 1966, a coal-waste slide buried the Welsh mining town of Aberfan. Two days later 135 bodies had been found.

A thought for the day—Samuel Taylor Coleridge said: "To have lived in vain must be a painful thought to any man, and especially so to him who has made literature his profession."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Strength Of Character Needed To Refuse To Take A Finesse

It takes a certain amount of character to refuse a finesse.

You can't rely on merely putting the finesse off in the hope that it will go away if you pay no attention to it. The opponents may force you to make up your mind.

FIRST TRICK

Declarer took the first trick in dummy with the ace of diamonds and drew trumps with the ace and queen. Then he led a low spade, losing dummy's jack to the king.

He hoped to set up dummy's fourth spade to get rid of a club. Then he wouldn't need the club finesse.

East returned a diamond to the king, and South ruffed the good queen of diamonds in dummy to lead a spade toward the queen. This did no good, since West won with the ace of spades and led a club.

Now South could no longer ignore the clubs. He tried a finesse with the queen but lost to the king. South still had to lose a spade trick and was therefore down one.

NOT FAR ENOUGH

South had the right idea when he tried to avoid the club finese, but he didn't go far enough.

After drawing trumps, South should cash the king and queen of diamonds to discard the low club from dummy. Then he leads a club to the ace and returns the queen of clubs.

If you're going to refuse a finesse, this is a sure way of doing it.

KING

South doesn't care which opponent has the king of clubs.

The defenders are forced to lead spades since any other return lets dummy ruff while South discards a spade.

If an opponent starts the spades South can easily limit the spade loss to two tricks, and this is all he needs for te contract.

DAILY QUESTION

♣ A Q 5

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one club.

Most experts avoid an opening bid in a very weak 4-card major suit. (Some experts would bid one heart, and others would bid one notrump on this hand.)

If you open with one club, you are ready for any response and can find a good major suit fit if there is one.

'Happenings' Designed To Blend Generations

An adult group whose goal is to "bring the generations together" by sponsoring benefit "happenings" has been formed in Marin County.

Called the "New Establishment," the recently incorporated group lists Thomas T. Storer, chairman of county supervisors; San Francisco disc jockey Johnny Bridges of Corte Madera, and Mrs. Whitney Robbins of Mill Valley among its directors.

Storer, also attorney for the group, said the first "happening" will be a music and art festival from noon to dusk Oct. 28 and 29 at McNear's Beach. Among those scheduled to perform are the Moby Grape, Young Bloods, Sopwith Camel, jazz pianist Vince Guaraldi, Turk Murphy, and Chris Ibanez.

Proceeds from the event will be turned over to Synanon and Marin City youth projects, Storer said. Future "happenings" also will benefit community and service projects, he said.

"'The Establishment' has often been criticized as being old-fashioned, outmoded, unimaginative and oppressive," the supervisor said. "Our idea is to try to bring the generations together with the kind of thing we are doing at McNear's Beach."

'Magic Flute'

Fifty students at Edna McGuire School in Mill Valley will attend a special matinee of the "Magic Flute" Nov. 7 at the San Francisco Opera House. The school Parent-Teacher Association is arranging the trip.

Road Routing, Black Point Issue On Tap

A public hearing to discuss the future alignment of Shoreline Highway between the Golden Gate Bridge and the Sonoma County line will be held Monday before the Marin County Planning Commission.

The meeting starts at 9 a.m. in the planning commission chambers in the Civic Center.

Rezoning of commercial and industrial property along the Petaluma River waterfront at Black Point is also on the morning agenda. The planning staff proposes that the area be rezoned to agricultural, but property owners are objecting to any change.

At 2 p.m. the commissioners will discuss the rezoning of the Fernando Clementino property at 496 Olive Avenue just east of Novato. The Marin County Board of Supervisors this week overruled the planning commission's decision to rezone the industrial zones in the Clementino property to agricultural. Instead, the supervisors want the flatter areas of the Clementino property to be zoned industrial and the hilly rear portion to be zoned agricultural.

Proposed mobile home parks on two large parcels in North Marin will be taken up at 3:15 p.m.

One is Paul Sade's proposal for 230 mobile homes on 50 acres at 300 Olive Avenue. The other is a plan to put in 445 mobile home lots on 52 acres of the Charmaine A. Burdell property on the west side of the old Highway 101 just south of San Antonio Creek.

Apartment Drawings To Be Reviewed

Final drawings for the Catalpa Apartments at East Blithedale and Catalpa avenues will be reviewed Tuesday by the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The committee will also review plans for renovation of the Odd Fellows Hall at 142 Throckmorton Avenue.

'Happenings' Designed To Blend Generations

An adult group whose goal is to "bring the generations together" by sponsoring benefit "happenings" has been formed in Marin County.

Called the "New Establishment," the recently incorporated group lists Thomas T. Storer, chairman of county supervisors; San Francisco disc jockey Johnny Bridges of Corte Madera, and Mrs. Whitney Robbins of Mill Valley among its directors.

Storer, also attorney for the group, said the first "happening" will be a music and art festival from noon to dusk Oct. 28 and 29 at McNear's Beach. Among those scheduled to perform are the Moby Grape, Young Bloods, Sopwith Camel, jazz pianist Vince Guaraldi, Turk Murphy, and Chris Ibanez.

Proceeds from the event will be turned over to Synanon and Marin City youth projects, Storer said. Future "happenings" also will benefit community and service projects, he said.

"'The Establishment' has often been criticized as being old-fashioned, outmoded, unimaginative and oppressive," the supervisor said. "Our idea is to try to bring the generations together with the kind of thing we are doing at McNear's Beach."

'Magic Flute'

Fifty students at Edna McGuire School in Mill Valley will attend a special matinee of the "Magic Flute" Nov. 7 at the San Francisco Opera House. The school Parent-Teacher Association is arranging the trip.

Road Routing, Black Point Issue On Tap

A public hearing to discuss the future alignment of Shoreline Highway between the Golden Gate Bridge and the Sonoma County line will be held Monday before the Marin County Planning Commission.

The meeting starts at 9 a.m. in the planning commission chambers in the Civic Center.

Rezoning of commercial and industrial property along the Petaluma River waterfront at Black Point is also on the morning agenda. The planning staff proposes that the area be rezoned to agricultural, but property owners are objecting to any change.

At 2 p.m. the commissioners will discuss the rezoning of the Fernando Clementino property at 496 Olive Avenue just east of Novato. The Marin County Board of Supervisors this week overruled the planning commission's decision to rezone the industrial zones in the Clementino property to agricultural. Instead, the supervisors want the flatter areas of the Clementino property to be zoned industrial and the hilly rear portion to be zoned agricultural.

Proposed mobile home parks on two large parcels in North Marin will be taken up at 3:15 p.m.

One is Paul Sade's proposal for 230 mobile homes on 50 acres at 300 Olive Avenue. The other is a plan to put in 445 mobile home lots on 52 acres of the Charmaine A. Burdell property on the west side of the old Highway 101 just south of San Antonio Creek.

The Doon river, described by Robert Burns, is in Ayrshire, Scotland.

Apartment Drawings To Be Reviewed

Final drawings for the Catalpa Apartments at East Blithedale and Catalpa avenues will be reviewed Tuesday by the Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee at 8 p.m. at city hall.

The committee will also review plans for renovation of the Odd Fellows Hall at 142 Throckmorton Avenue.

Record For Youth Made By Promotion

David A. Battaglia, 19-year-old son of Sheriff's Inspector Guido Battaglia of San Rafael, on his recent promotion became the youngest second class petty officer in his Navy squadron.

An aviation electronics technician in radar, Battaglia is at present stationed in Japan. He has been in the service since February 1965.

COMMITTEE MEMBER — Supt. Milton S. Cohen of the Larkspur School District has been named to a committee to nominate a new president of the California Association of School Administrators at Burlingame Nov. 14.

PROMOTION — Klyle N. Stall Jr., whose parents live at 93 Andrews Drive, Tiburon, has been promoted to first lieutenant in the Army in Vietnam, where he is serving with the 157th Quartermaster Co., near Qui Nhon.

TOOK THE JUMP — Pvt. Ronald G. Ingram, whose parents live at 820 Las Colindas Road, Terra Linda, has received the Army Parachutist Badge after completing an airborne course at Fort Benning, Ga. His training included five jumps.

PANELIST — Supt. James A. Collins of the Mill Valley School District was a panelist at the Laboratory School Institute held last weekend in San Francisco. The panel discussed campus laboratory schools.

COMMUNICATIONS — Second Lt. Frank E. Murnane of 59 Woodside Drive, San Anselmo, a Marin Catholic High School graduate, has completed a training course for Air Force communications officers at Keesler Air Force Base, Miss.

YEOMAN — Roy Raymond Beaudoin III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy L. Beaudoin, 78 Novato Street, San Rafael, has been appointed to yeoman third class in the Navy. He is stationed at Norfolk, Va.

EXPANSION — Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Houston of San Rafael are among those named to a 43-member board of directors to serve as an advisory group for an expansion program of the College of Idaho Parents Association.

WITH THE MARINES — Marine Lance Corp. Theodore H. Keizer of 12 Cazneau Avenue, Sausalito, is serving with the First Marine Aircraft Wing near Da Nang, Vietnam.

LEAD PART — Stanna Joy Nash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Nash of 829 Las Pavadas, Terra Linda, will take a lead part in a production of "Our Town" by Carson-Newman College in Jefferson City, Tenn.

TRAINING OVER — Seaman Recruit Robert P. Ritter Jr. of 916 Del Ganado, San Rafael, has graduated after nine weeks basic training at the Naval Training Center in San Diego.

4-H Members Of Government

Supervisor Peter H. Behr will explain county government to Marin County high school 4-H Club members at 8 p.m. Nov. 8 in the Supervisors Chambers at the Civic Center.

Madelyn Angress, secretary of the Marin County 4-H Club, announced that the Nov. 8 meeting will be a part of the 4-H Club's "know your county government" program for this year.

Subsequent meetings will be held with the department of public social services and with the county planning director. "If successful, we plan to continue this program next year and explore other offices," said Miss Angress.

Fair Board Nominees

Nominees for FAIR/MARIN'S board of directors will be presented Monday night at a meeting of FAIR/MARIN delegates at the Civic Center.

The meeting is set for 8 p.m. in the Board of Supervisors Chambers.

A nominating committee, headed by Byron W. Leydecker, will present a list of nominees.

Harold Stockstad, chairman pro-tem, said the delegates will select 14 as prospective directors and submit the names to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, who will then choose seven to serve on the board of directors.

A five-man committee headed by Fred F. Enemark will report on methods of financing the veterans memorial auditorium at the Civic Center.

Women's Exercise Class Scheduled

A women's exercise class sponsored by the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department will start at 10 a.m. Oct. 31 at the community and youth center. Renee Harkleroad will teach the 90-minute classes.

The course totals 16 lessons and registration will be at the first class.

Some Guides For Furniture Shopping

With most things we buy, the more we spend the longer we expect the item to last. But this is not necessarily so with furniture.

Expensive upholstery fabrics are often more fragile and delicate than low-priced styles. Silk, for instance, just does not give the same service as rugged nylon, and hand rubbed finish on a dining room table will not stand up as well as the plastic topping on a kitchen set.

One manufacturer explained, "The family that buys a $200 sofa is probably buying the best sofa they can afford, and it is probably more important to them to get long service than it is to someone who buys a $1,000 sofa. If a man spends $1,000 on a

67 HOME furnishing FASHIONS

Marin Magazine Special Section

San Rafael, California, Saturday, October 21, 1967

New Styles: Exciting And Eclectic

Home furnishings this fall are:

Eclectic — as well as exciting and electric, with manufacturers drawing from many and diverse sources for their designs. Some new offerings include a whole collection of ideas gathered from Flemish, Italian, Oriental, American, French and English, with the emphasis on individuality of each piece.

Sophisticated — as well as stimulating. These are the furnishings that come on strong and cool for the "Now" and "With-It" generation. Here wood goes kicky and jazzy with checkerboard parquets, chevron stripes and alternate stripe combinations.

Peek-Through — as well as "perceptions from the other side." This see-through idea appears in many home furnishings items, especially furniture and lamps. It involves the use of glass, plexiglass, lucite, clear plastic and lacy designs achieved from metals and caning materials which allow the eye to travel through and beyond the item itself.

THUS, THE three major '67 fall moods of home furnishings — Modern, Mediterranean and Mixed, with Mod not nearly as mad but considerably toned down in contemporary furniture. It's more livable, less garish, with fewer of the wild "hit-'em-in-the-eye" colors and is being termed "Realistic Mod."

Here the strong colors appear in lacquer-like finishes on wood, plywood and fiberboard or plastic.

Much of the Mod is intended for the young — from teen-age to early married — and are designed for shifting and later use: storage units on castors to be wheeled from room to room, and units which can double as night stand or dining room breakfront.

Mediterranean is still very much in evidence, but in true eclectic fashion, original Moorish sources blend and borrow from Jacobean English, Rural American and Italian Provincial. This mixed-style influence from world-wide sources covers lamps, furniture, accessories and fabrics, and are mixed and mated endlessly — in groupings and in individual pieces.

THE SOPHISTICATED trend is cooly apparent in upholstered goods with a contemporary feel, in sculptured, free form and platform bases. Chairs go modern in upholstered tubs with cone-like bases, upholstered seats slung between sandwichboard legs — and there's much use of metals, glass and plastic, brushed aluminum and etched bronze to give a slightly outerspace look.

In the unexpected realm a complete dining table of tortoiseshell and the use of three-dimensional Cathedral glass or pebbles on occasional tables; fiberboard covered with vinyl on upholstered furniture frames; much papiermache in accessories; glass, clear and smoked on furniture and lamps; and plastics, plastics, plastics, in every version, color and pattern on everything.

THE GLEAM of shiny materials pervade all furnishings, including the very new "wet" velvets.

But despite the man-made materials, wood remains serenely confident in its leading role as a home furnishings material, being used in ever-varying ways.

Graining and contrasts have been fully explored, with different woods combined for striped, checkered or parquet effects; burls and rich grainy finishes are used in occasional tables, dining tables, drawer and door fronts. Pecky pecan and rosewood are a favorite duo, along with ash and walnut.

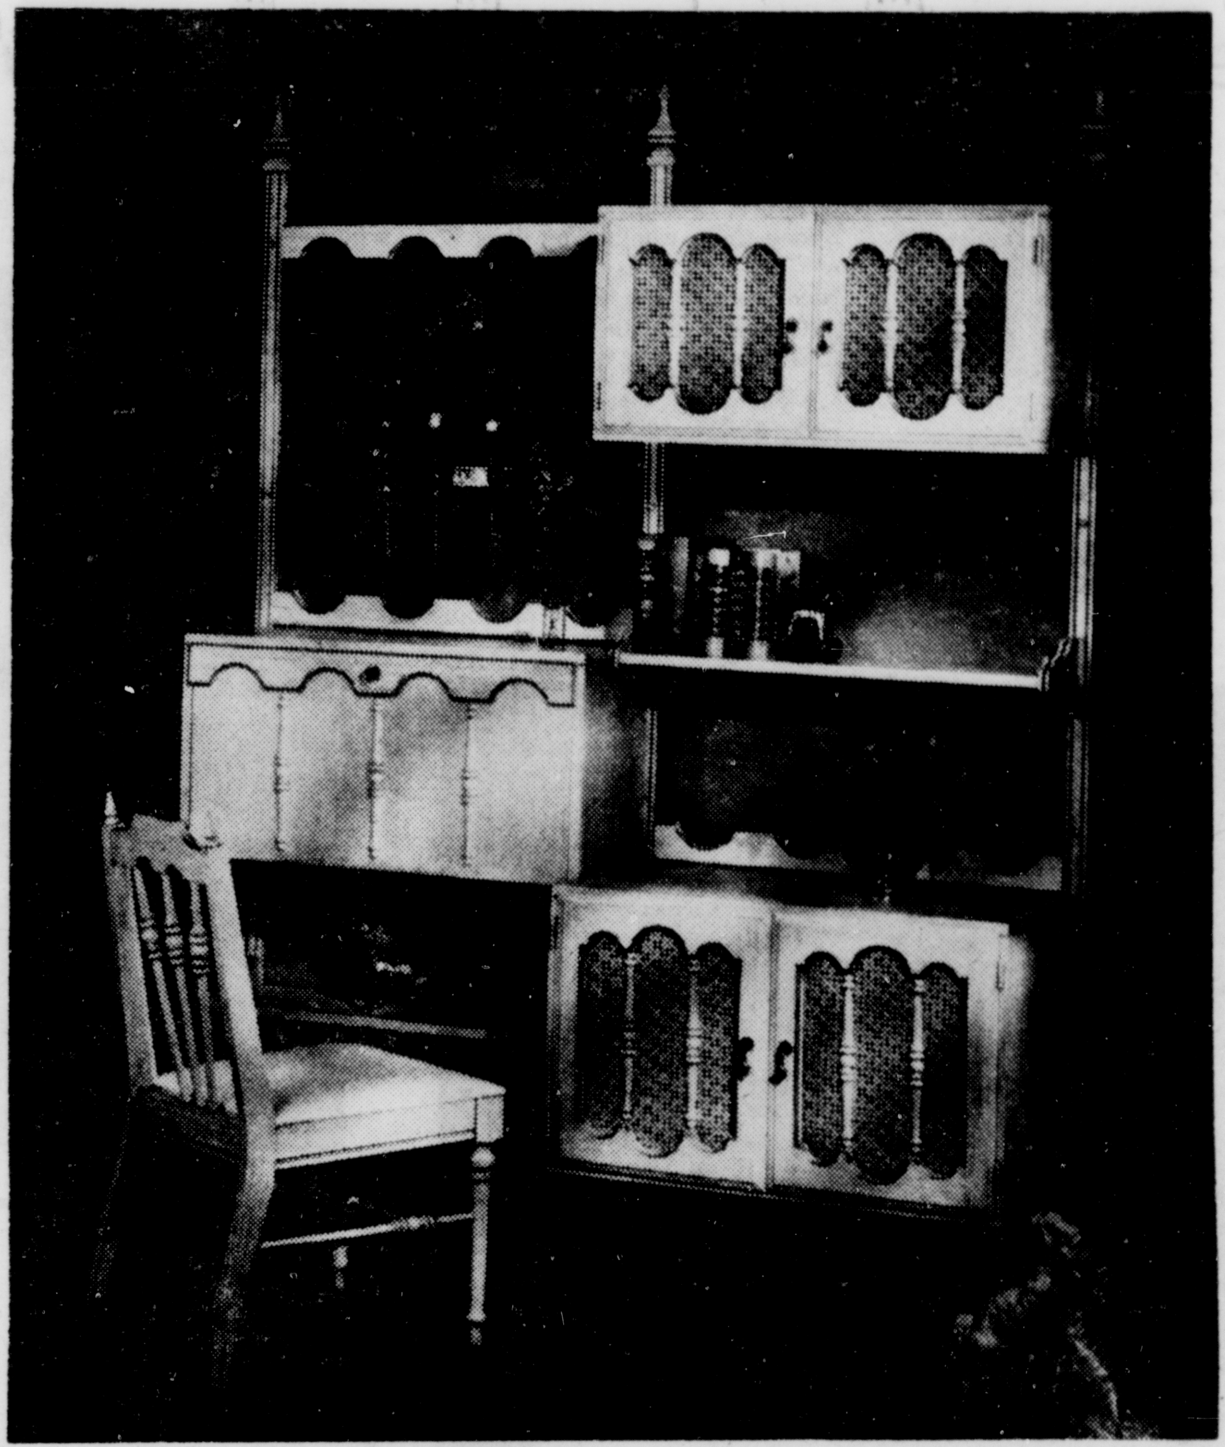
Early American, another perennial favorite, will show some stylish up-dating in a blending of design elements — Queen Anne, Federal and William and Mary — all adding special flavor in some interesting new pieces.

TRADITIONAL styles, such as Chippendale, Jacobean, the Louis periods of French and Italian Classic are still important.

Generally, in upholstered furniture, the look is softer, with rounded pillow edges, flowing arm lines and sculptured backs.

Backs and pillows will be heavily padded, shirted and tufted. Sofas will be extra-long or extra-short and fabrics will be used in a more judicious manner.

In furniture, color is coming on strong. It's rubbed into wood grains for soft shades of avocado, celadon, yellow and blue while lacquer-bright primary colors and black white are on accessories as well as furniture.



THIS NEW Elegance Group, which can be seen at Interior Systems, Northgate Shopping Center, Terra Linda, can go many ways, blending beautifully with your decor, be it Spanish, Italian or Mediterranean. The finish shown is antique white with gold trim. But two rich, mellow wood finishes are also offered. And it's a real space-saver as well as eye-pleaser.

New Styles: Exciting And Eclectic

Home furnishings this fall are:

Eclectic — as well as exciting and electric, with manufacturers drawing from many and diverse sources for their designs. Some new offerings include a whole collection of ideas gathered from Flemish, Italian, Oriental, American, French and English, with the emphasis on individuality of each piece.

Sophisticated — as well as stimulating. These are the furnishings that come on strong and cool for the "Now" and "With-It" generation. Here wood goes kicky and jazzy with checkerboard parquets, chevron stripes and alternate stripe combinations.

Peek-Through — as well as "perceptions from the other side." This see-through idea appears in many home furnishings items, especially furniture and lamps. It involves the use of glass, plexiglass, lucite, clear plastic and lacy designs achieved from metals and caning materials which allow the eye to travel through and beyond the item itself.

THUS, THE three major '67 fall moods of home furnishings — Modern, Mediterranean and Mixed, with Mod not nearly as mad but considerably toned down in contemporary furniture. It's more livable, less garish, with fewer of the wild "hit-'em-in-the-eye" colors and is being termed "Realistic Mod."

Here the strong colors appear in lacquer-like finishes on wood, plywood and fiberboard or plastic.

Much of the Mod is intended for the young — from teen-age to early married — and are designed for shifting and later use: storage units on castors to be wheeled from room to room, and units which can double as night stand or dining room breakfront.

Mediterranean is still very much in evidence, but in true eclectic fashion, original Moorish sources blend and borrow from Jacobean English, Rural American and Italian Provincial. This mixed-style influence from world-wide sources covers lamps, furniture, accessories and fabrics, and are mixed and mated endlessly — in groupings and in individual pieces.

THE SOPHISTICATED trend is cooly apparent in upholstered goods with a contemporary feel, in sculptured, free form and platform bases. Chairs go modern in upholstered tubs with cone-like bases, upholstered seats slung between sandwichboard legs — and there's much use of metals, glass and plastic, brushed aluminum and etched bronze to give a slightly outerspace look.

In the unexpected realm a complete dining table of tortoiseshell and the use of three-dimensional Cathedral glass or pebbles on occasional tables; fiberboard covered with vinyl on upholstered furniture frames; much papiermache in accessories; glass, clear and smoked on furniture and lamps; and plastics, plastics, plastics, in every version, color and pattern on everything.

THE GLEAM of shiny materials pervade all furnishings, including the very new "wet" velvets.

But despite the man-made materials, wood remains serenely confident in its leading role as a home furnishings material, being used in ever-varying ways.

Graining and contrasts have been fully explored, with different woods combined for striped, checkered or parquet effects; burls and rich grainy finishes are used in occasional tables, dining tables, drawer and door fronts. Pecky pecan and rosewood are a favorite duo, along with ash and walnut.

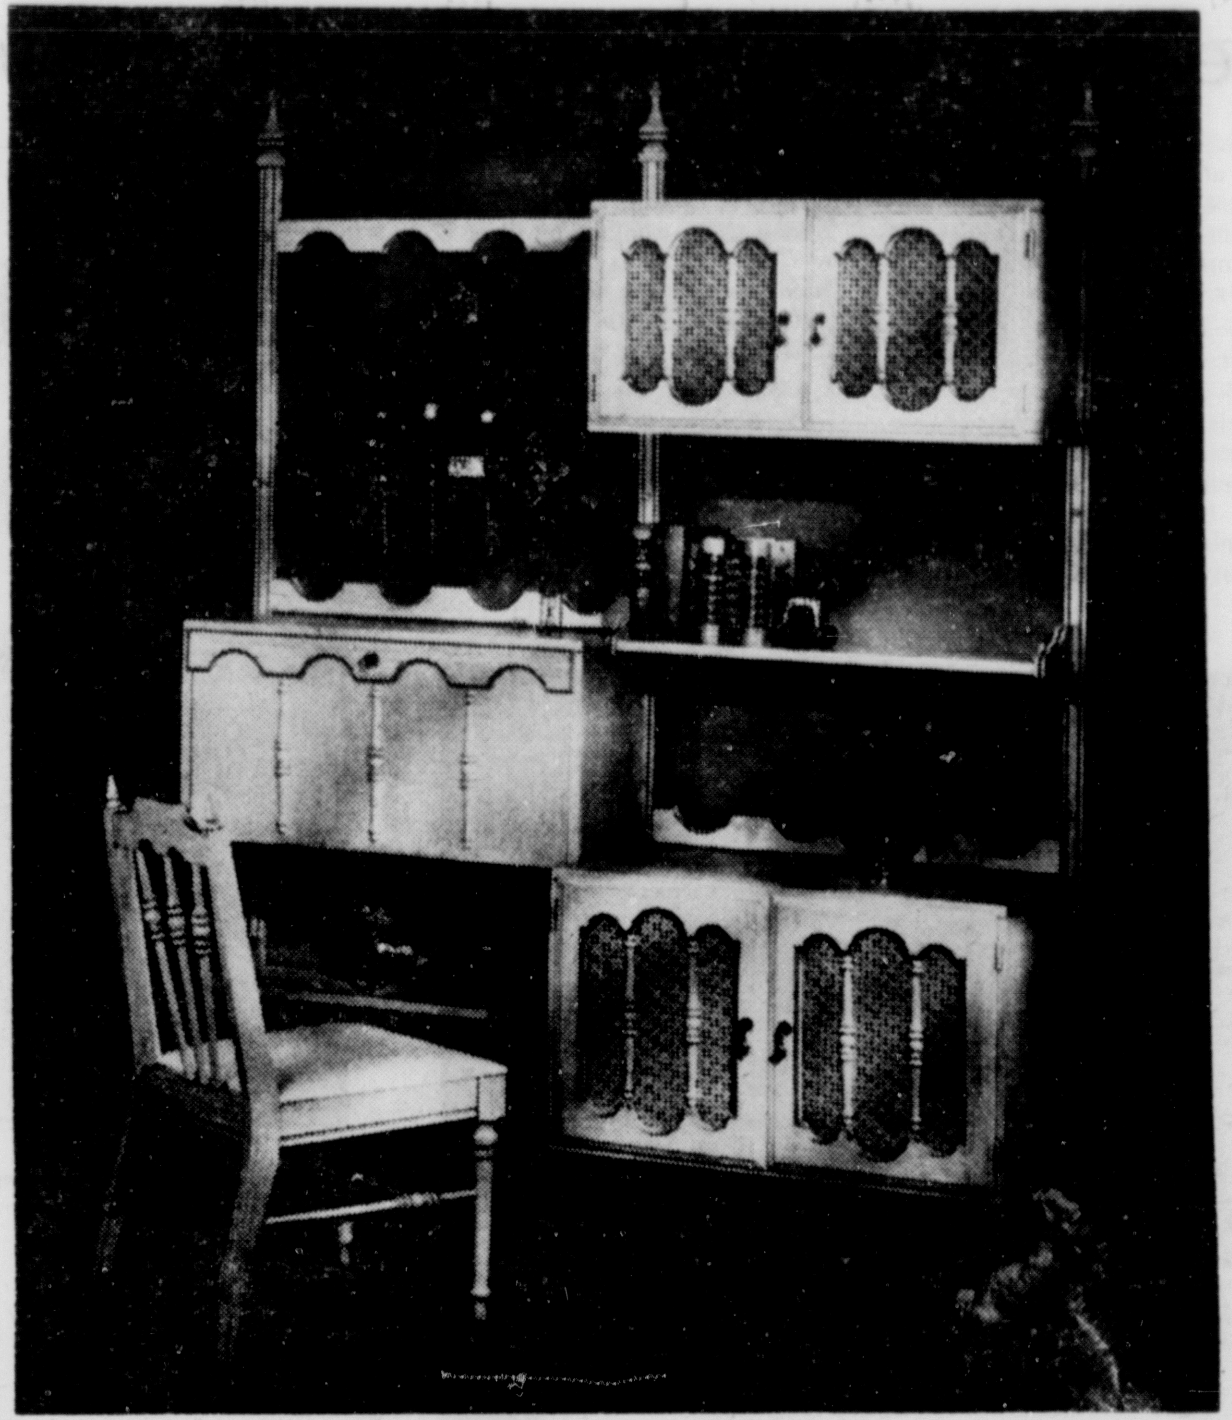
Early American, another perennial favorite, will show some stylish up-dating in a blending of design elements — Queen Anne, Federal and William and Mary — all adding special flavor in some interesting new pieces.

TRADITIONAL styles, such as Chippendale, Jacobean, the Louis periods of French and Italian Classic are still important.

Generally, in upholstered furniture, the look is softer, with rounded pillow edges, flowing arm lines and sculptured backs.

Backs and pillows will be heavily padded, shirted and tufted. Sofas will be extra-long or extra-short and fabrics will be used in a more judicious manner.

In furniture, color is coming on strong. It's rubbed into wood grains for soft shades of avocado, celadon, yellow and blue while lacquer-bright primary colors and black white are on accessories as well as furniture.



THIS NEW Elegance Group, which can be seen at Interior Systems, Northgate Shopping Center, Terra Linda, can go many ways, blending beautifully with your decor, be it Spanish, Italian or Mediterranean. The finish shown is antique white with gold trim. But two rich, mellow wood finishes are also offered. And it's a real space-saver as well as eye-pleaser.

Select Your New Upholstered Furniture With Care

While some fortunate families can afford to refurnish a home several times in a lifetime, most persons find their furniture investment must last 15 to 20 years.

So it's important that they make the right decisions at the start.

This is especially true when it comes to upholstered furniture. A quality sofa may cost from $500 to $800, sometimes more. Upholstered chairs of equal quality may run from $150 to $300.

"Once a person spends this much money for a piece of furniture, he's apt to live with it a long time, whether he likes it or not," notes Howard Niederman. "The way to avoid having to live with a mistake is to work according to a plan."

Niederman, who is president and design director of the Howard-Parlor Furniture Co., Chicago, offers this list of rules for sensible buying of upholstered furniture:

1. Have a complete plan laid out for the room you plan to furnish. Whether you're starting from scratch or adding to a partially completed furnishing scheme, know in advance what you need and want.

"The plan should include, first of all, a room layout, showing where all furnishings will be located when the room is complete," Niederman says. "The style, proportion, and

HOW TO "condense" two homes into one apartment was the unusual problem solved for Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jones of 3 Janet Way, Tiburon, by Darryl Bellach of Bellach's Design Center, San Rafael. Both of the Joneses had owned homes prior to their marriage and their decision to live in Marin in a magnificent view apartment. Curio cabinets were provided for Mrs. Jones' china collection, while many fine antique pieces were complimented by graceful cast aluminum dining set, Italian glass lamps and chandeliers. Exotic woods such as heart-figured persimmon and olive ash burl added warmth to the metal and glass.

Decide On Style First When You Shop For Carpet

When you shop for a new carpet, your biggest problem may be to limit yourself to just one!

New colors, textures and patterns are more tempting than ever before, and the broad range of choice may seem confusing at first. Actually this wide variety makes shopping easier—and gets you off to a good start in finding the best carpet value for your home.

There are two very good reasons for deciding on style first when you buy a carpet or rug.

FIRST, CARPET is basic to room decorating. You'll expect to live with your carpet for a long time—and unless you like the way it looks in the first place, you won't be happy with your choice, regardless of price, quality, fiber content or other factors.

Second, carpet appearance should be judged with an eye to practicality. Style is more than just personal fancy—it's directly related to the way your carpet will "wear" in terms of appearance.

Take color, for example. Which colors do you really like best in your surroundings? Or, which ones do you rule out immediately as colors you couldn't stand for any length of time?

IT HELPS TO think in terms of "color families"—golds, greens, blues or reds, for example. Once you've decided on your favorite you can look at a variety of carpet styles in that group.

You'll find that you can have your favorite color in a carpet that's as practical as it is pretty. If you like blue, for example, and are choosing a carpet for a heavy-traffic area you can select a tweedy mixture of blue tones, or a pattern with blue predominant—both more practical underfoot than a solid pastel blue carpet.

Texture can also be chosen with an eye to practicality. A dense, tight-looped or tight-twist texture is more apt to hold its own in a heavy-traffic area than a soft plush texture, for example.

HOW PRACTICAL do you have to be? The answer depends on the area where your carpet will be used, the living habits of your family and your own preference in maintenance.

A light beige, for instance, might have to be cleaned frequently in a family room with an outside entrance—but would present no problem in an upstairs bedroom. Very light or very dark colors are generally best reserved for more formal living areas or rooms not subjected to heavy traffic and outside soil.

THESE ARE the "bear facts," says Magic Carpet Co. of San Rafael — that "'Fake Furs" are wonderful for decorating the home. The heads are exact replicas of the real thing, and are removable for washing. Pelts are finest Dynel Mocacrylic and are washable, odorless, non-allergic, non-skid and realistic. Buyers can choose from among polar bears and black or brown bears, five by seven feet, and tigers, leopards and black panthers, five feet by nine feet. And there's no guilty feeling on the part of those not enthusiastic about hunting.

Carpet care is easy—but busy homemakers usually prefer carpets that don't "show every footstep."

To get carpets that are both easy to maintain and easy to look at, remember to consider both decorative and functional aspects. Actual carpet wear, of course, depends on more than just appearance — but selecting appearance is the first important step in getting good value.

Fine Wood Deserves Good Care

Here Is How You Can Give It Longer Life

Fine wood furniture is a one-time investment for most families. But regardless of cost, wood furniture can "wear out" in appearance if it isn't given proper care.

Here are some useful furniture care tips from Mrs. Mary Gaffney, director of the Hagerty Home Institute, South Bend, Ind.:

1. Ideally, furniture should be lightly dusted every day. If allowed to collect, dust particles can work into the wood finish so that subsequent dusting and polishing cause fine scratches.

2. Dust with a soft, clean, lint-free cloth. A double-napped flanneled cloth is best.

3. Apply a beeswax-base furniture polish twice a year. This type of polish is preferred by experts for the preservation of fine furniture, including valuable antiques.

4. Pour a small amount of furniture cream on a clean soft cloth and apply sparingly over the wood surface.

Never pour or apply polish directly on furniture. This may cause blistering, and it's more difficult to rub in the polish without streaking.

5. Wipe off excess polish with another soft cloth, then use a third cloth to buff to a lustrous sheen.

6. For heavily carved furniture, use a small, not-too-stiff bristle brush to dust and remove excess polish from crevices.

7. Protect furniture by using pads under hot dishes, and coasters for liquids in cups or glasses. Avoid plastic mats under hot items; they can stick to the wood.

Even Mattress Has Gone High Style

A mattress is probably the last thing in the world you'd expect to be regarded as a high fashion item. Yet this is what's happening.

New fabrics, new designs, and new colors are giving mattresses an entirely new look.

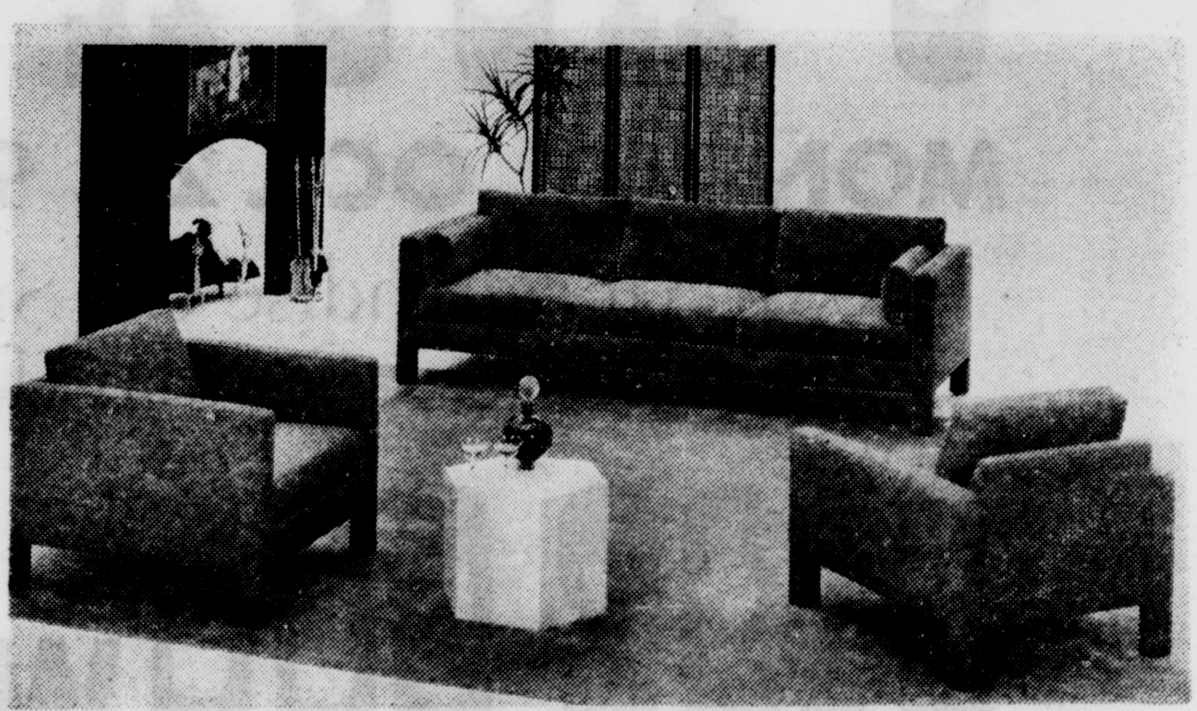
IN FACT, the new mattresses are so appealing that some people say they make even a completely uncovered bed look good.

For example, at recent home furnishings markets, Spring Air showed new mattresses in expensive damask and brocade covers.

These are multi-needle quilted in intricate patterns to enhance the richness of the pattern. And, for an extra plushy feel, some of these mattresses have an extra half-inch layer of polyurethane foam on each side of the mattress.

COLORS, TOO, are a far cry from traditional drab tones. You can choose from Apricot Ice, Powder Blue, Antique Gold, and Aglo Mint, among others.

Fashion in mattresses has become so important that many homemakers will spend up to $100 for a back supporter mattress for the extra eye appeal as well as the comfort it provides.



THESE COMPLETELY upholstered pieces from Selig offer a new formal elegance inspired by a 400-year-old fashion. The sofa is an amberglo corduroy with loose cushions. The Mr. and Mrs. Chairs are olive green corduroy, also with loose cushions. The furniture is available at Scandinavian Designs in San Rafael.

You can afford to do business with us!

The other day we met a young matron who said that she could not afford us. We did not know exactly what she meant, neither did she.

Our prices are right every day of the year. We attempt to give the very best service. We will only sell you merchandise that answers your need.

We will not sell or show merchandise of poor quality or only momentary appeal. You may select from one of the largest sample assortments of drapery materials, upholstery fabrics and rugs. Thus we can always coordinate color and design properly.

So we believe that you can not afford not to do business with us or at least to try us.

Pros And Cons Of Carpeting For Kitchen Floors

Higher Cost And Shorter Life, But The Comfort Is Wonderful

Is carpet really practical for kitchens?

How does carpet stack up against other floor coverings in terms of cost, durability, cleaning and comfort?

First of all, kitchen carpet is quite different from the conventional, high pile carpets used in living rooms and more formal areas.

Carpets designed for kitchens use have low, smooth piles with the tufts packed together very tightly. This means that they will wear exceptionally well and that dirt and spills cannot penetrate into the depths of the carpet easily.

TO COMPENSATE for the low, tight pile, most kitchen carpets have a high density latex foam rubber backing to give them a resilient feel underfoot, This makes it easy to stand for several hours while preparing meals, and is a real boon if the kitchen happens to be built on a concrete slab which has no give and can make feet and legs ache.

In terms of cleaning, carpet compares favorably with other kitchen floor coverings. Carpet relieves the housewife of the necessity to wash and wax floors. An occasional vacuuming will pick up ordinary dust and dirt, so routine cleaning is easier than caring for tile or linoleum.

What happens in the case of a major disaster? Suppose, for instance, the baby empties a bottle of salad oil on the carpet?

THE NEW carpet fibers do not absorb oils or water, so the oil will tend to "bead" on the surface, the way water does on a windowpane, and can easily be blotted up. However, if it is allowed to sit for a while and coat the fibers, it will require plenty of soap and water to get the oil out.

Day to day maintenance is easier with carpet, but in the event of a major spill, it will require more work and must be attended to quickly before the stain sets.

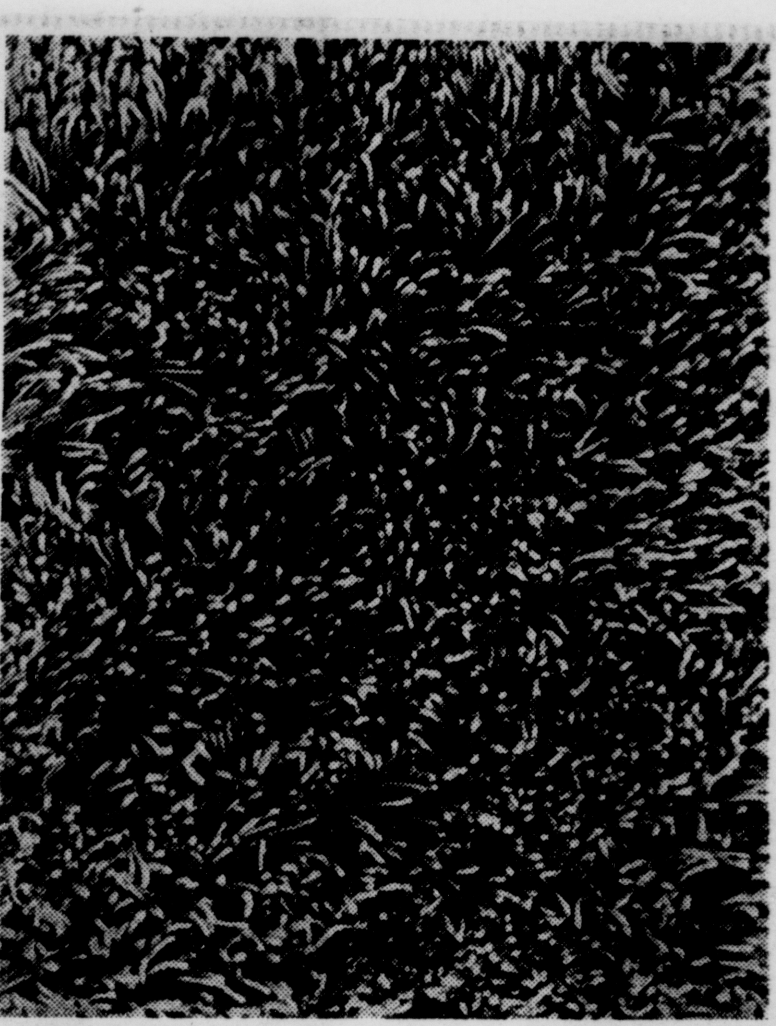
Carpet is more expensive than all but the most costly vinyl tiles. But even so, since most kitchens are small, the difference in cost is not usually large in terms of dollars.

KITCHEN carpet averages about $6 a yard at retail. Vinyl asbestos tile costs perhaps $4.50 per yard, so the difference in cost for a nine-by-12-foot room is less than $20.

Will carpet last?

Wear tests prove that carpet is very durable. It won't last forever, but it will last quite a few years. In the meantime, it will not show scuff marks or scrapes, and it won't suffer from dents caused by high heels or chair legs. Partly though, this depends on the individual piece of carpet.

THE LATEX foam backings last the life of the carpet.



DINAMEAU by Karastan is one example of the new shag-textured carpets and rugs that are winning popularity underfoot. It is an all-wool product woven in two levels.

Shaggy Carpets For The Informal

You can achieve marvelous effects in informal rooms by selecting shag-textured rugs or carpets underfoot.

They are especially suitable to the two general styles of informal furniture. Modern, whether of Japanese, Scandinavian of Mod origin, needs the tousled texture of shag to relieve its rather severe straight-line design. Country, massive, distressed finish furniture whether from Spain, Africa or even early Colonial times, is flattered by the casual shag look.

In shopping for shag carpet there are certain cautions to be observed.

It is important to look for a deep, full and thick texture. Some shags look adequate on first inspection, but tend to be scraggy and anemic looking in use due to insufficient density of pile yarn.

Resilience of the face yarn is essential. Wool has the greatest resilience of all carpet fibers and never develops the limp, lifeless look that many synthetic shags seem to have after a while. That is not to say, however, that good shag rugs cannot be found among the synthetics. They can.

Tuft bind is important. If tufts are not securely locked into the backing, frequent vacuuming will pull them out.

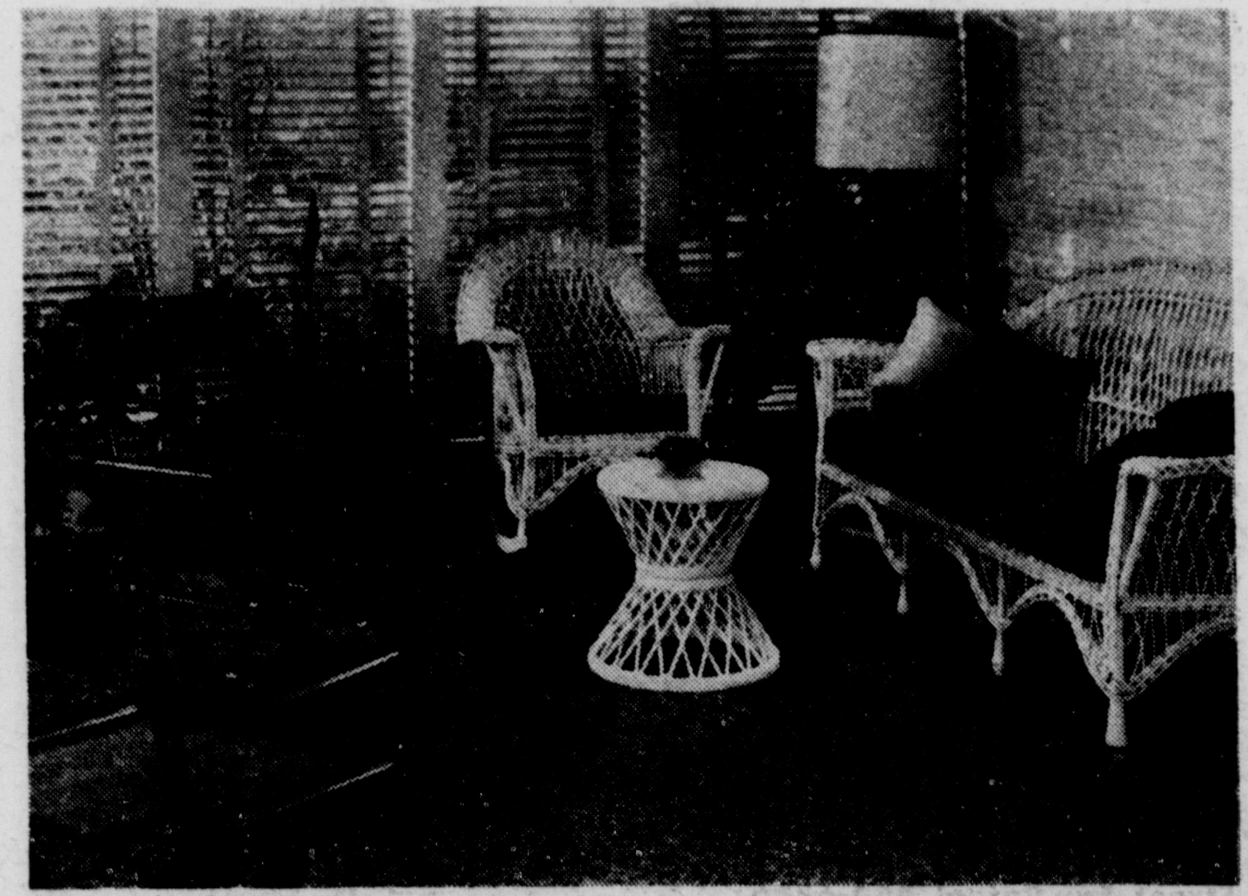
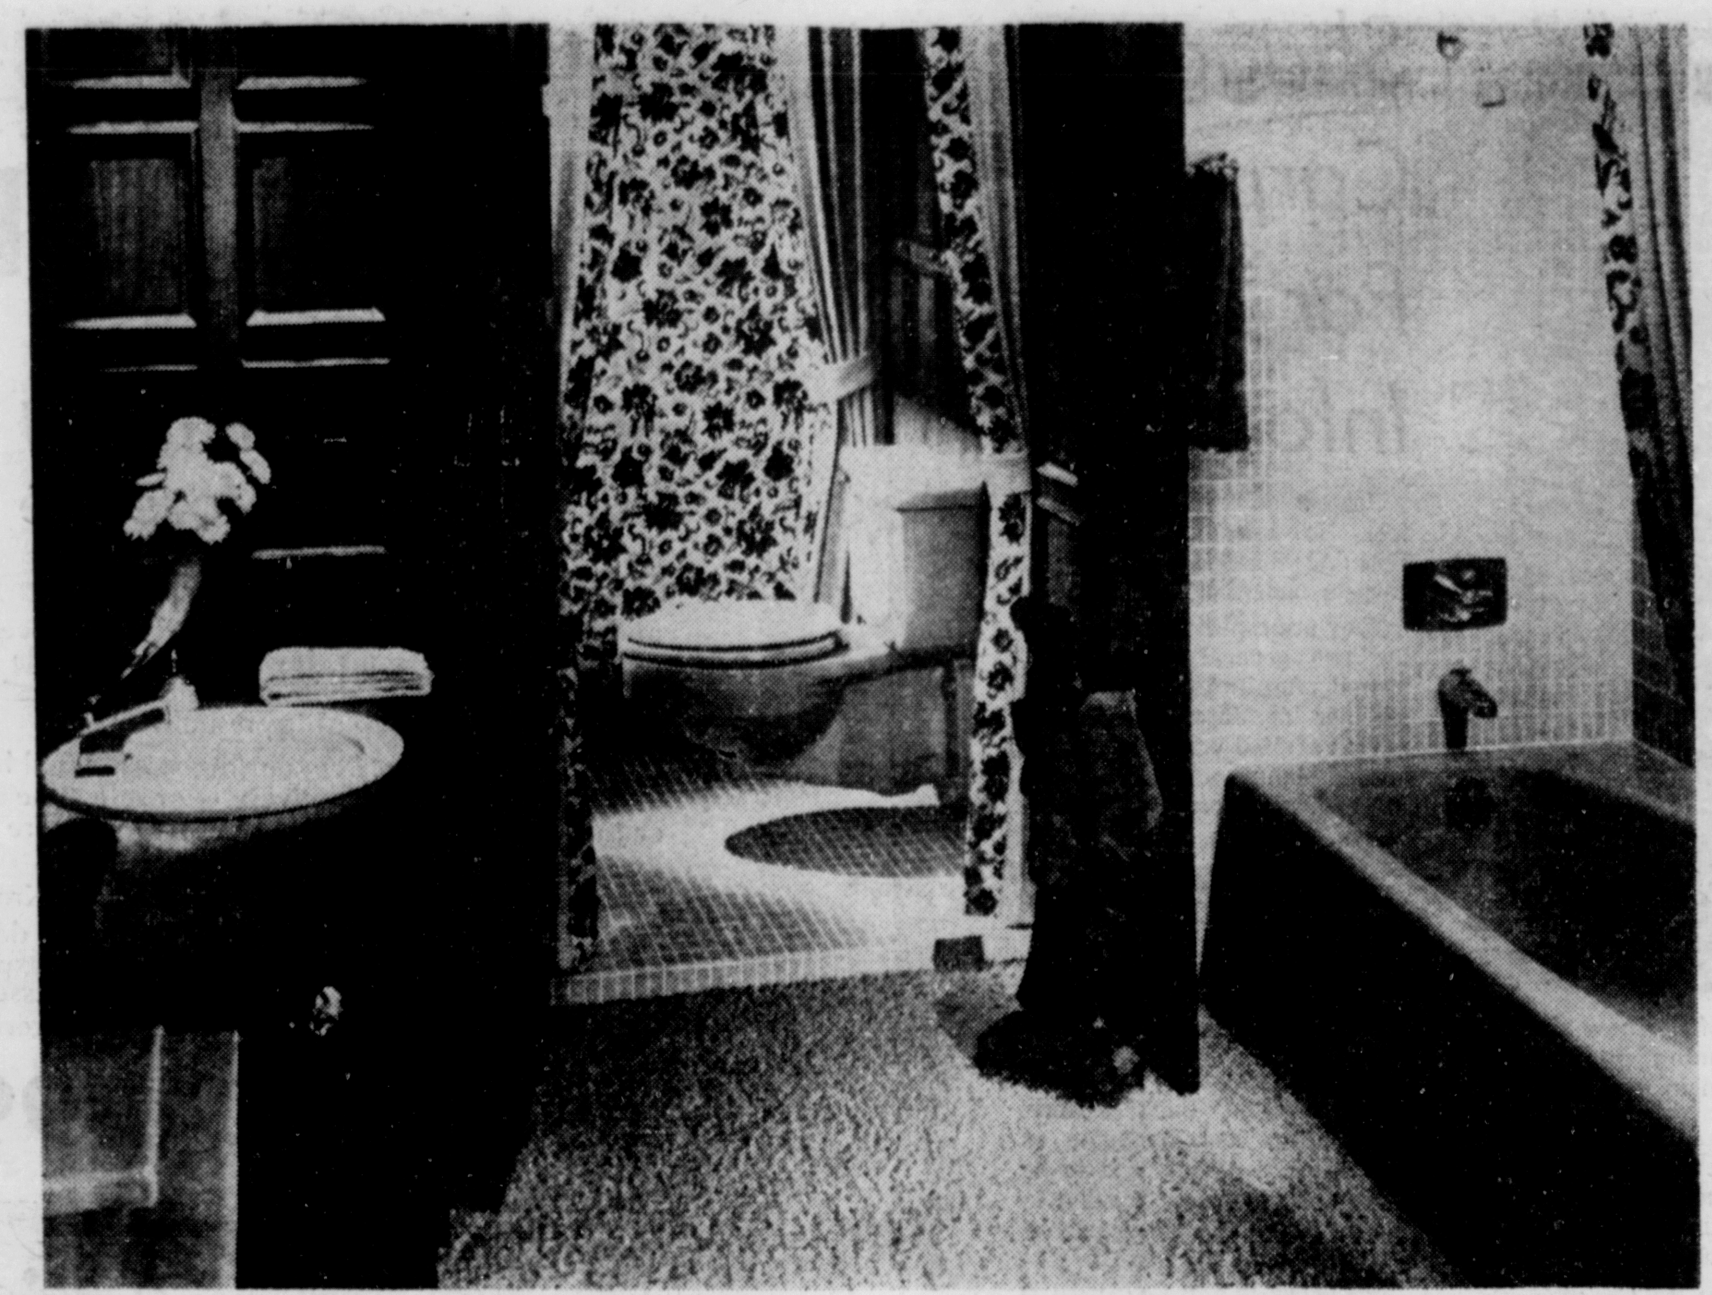
BEAUTY BEGINS on the floor, with new carpets and rugs this fall coming in handsome colors and textures. This style combines thick, shaggy pile and tight loops, made in a range of rich colors, and is not only pretty, but practical as well.

FLOWERS UNDERFOOT — In this instance, white roses on moss green — always serve to brighten a room, just as they do here in a comfortable bedroom-sitting room. The carpet is acrylic.



A FRINGED RUG in a bright pattern has helped convert an enclosed porch into a cheerful "second living room." Old wicker furniture painted white, cushions to match the rug pattern, pieces of left-over carpet tacked on director's chairs over canvas covering, and greenery complete the ingenious budget decor.



NYLON CARPETING with a twist adds the right touch of softness and texture to this bathroom, and provides underfoot safety as well. Carpet is playing an increasingly important role in the bathroom design picture which also includes contour tubs and off-the-floor fixtures that contribute to ease of maintenance.

The Wonderful World Of Carpeting

They don't make carpets like they used to — thank goodness!

The narrow range of color, the carpet that was "too good" for anything but the front parlor, especially the high prices that restricted carpets to the wealthy — all, fortunately, belong to the past.

Greater flexibility in design, use and quality mark the carpets and rugs for today's homes.

THIS FALL, for example, about the only point of agreement on carpets is that they offer a superb value in floor coverings.

Beyond that point, take your choice.

Currently, there is new design emphasis on texture — deep shags, loops arranged in precise geometric designs, multi-level textures for pattern interest.

BUT IF YOU prefer, there are also classic velvet textures, or tight, low loops for heavy-duty wear.

Don't be afraid to use your eyes and fingers when judging carpet quality. Press your fingers into the pile surface to feel the thickness and closeness of pile which indicates quality. Look for telltale gaps ("grinning") is sparse pile, a sign of poor quality.

Read carpet labels carefully when you shop and save them for future reference in cleaning or replacing your carpet. They contain valuable information, including fiber content of the pile surface, country of origin of the carpet, and usually the manufacturer's name or style name.

MANY OF THE newest colors are zingy — bright chartreuse, sizzling red, dazzling blue, for example. But there's also the punctuation of black and white, or subtle pastels and versatile greens and golds.

New patterns are clearly-defined: Oriental motifs, paisleys, floral designs, colorful Mod and Op art styles, to name just a few.

But if a more subtle approach to pattern is your choice, there are interesting combinations of color and texture, for design interest without single pattern dominace.

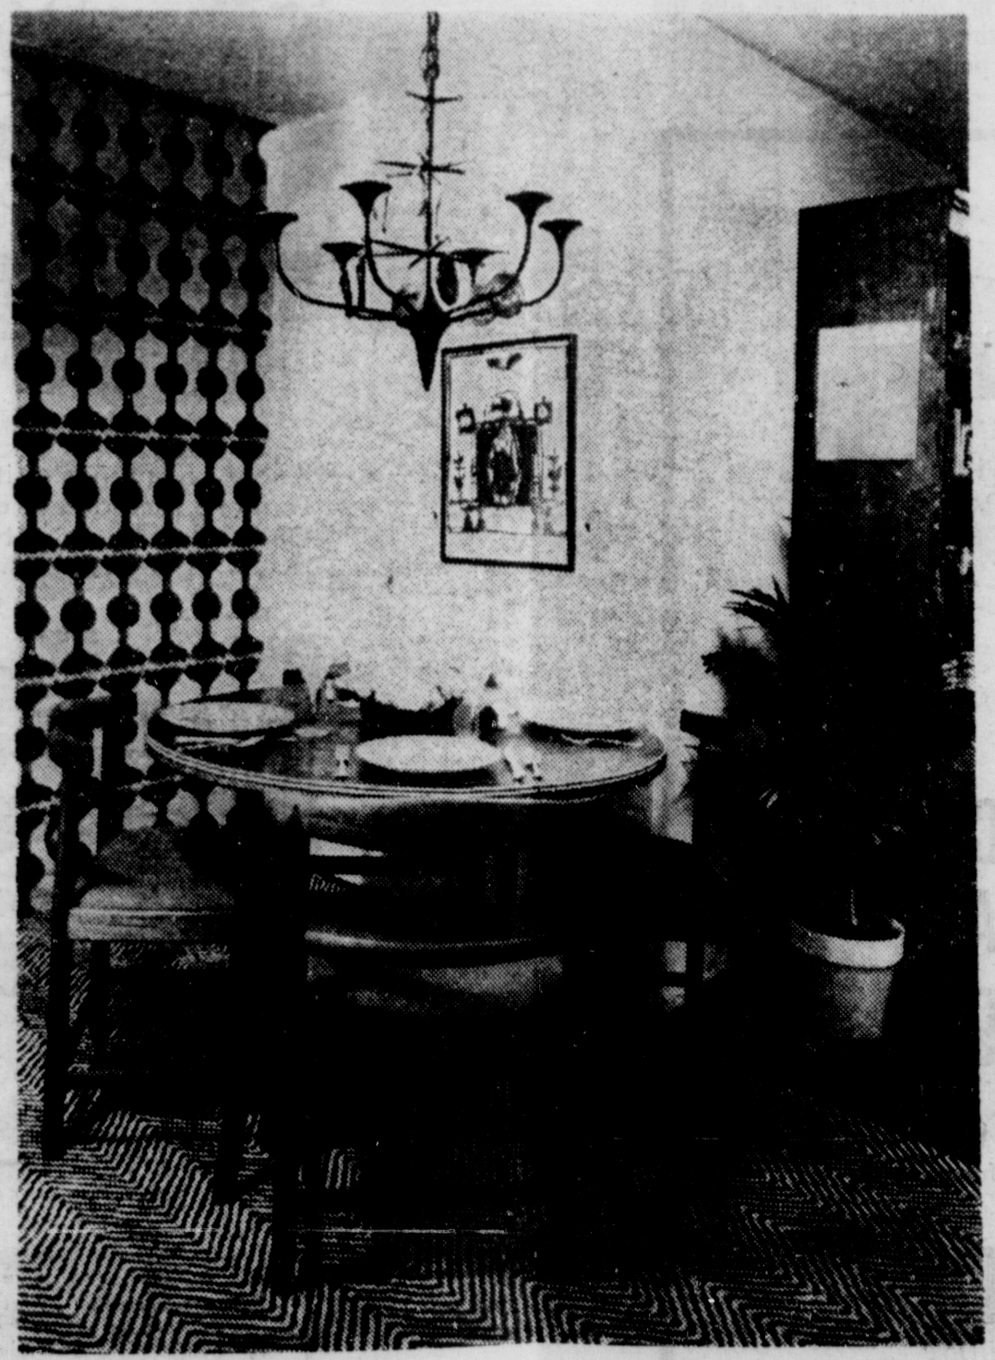
MULTICOLORED shags, textures that look like crushed velvet, multi-level textures with tone-on-tone effects offer a few examples.

The 1967 fall style trends are seen in all price and quality ranges. Appealing colors and textures are translated at several different price levels, and pattern is achieved economically by new dyeing techniques and other technological developments.

As for flexibility of use, the possibilities seem to be limited only by imagination.

The "front parlor" days of carpet are over. It's no longer unusual to see carpet on the patio, in the kitchen, the bathroom, the family room or the basement.

The good old days never had it so good!



PATTERN IS "in" in carpeting, often mixed, as seen here. Colors relate the herringbone design of the acrylic area rug to the circular pattern of the wall fabric.

YOU CAN CREATE your own custom look in carpet by using two colors of a nylon textured style, with the darker color seamed in for a "traffic lane" in the foyer.

ONE OF MANY floor-cover designs that blend with both contemporary and traditional furnishing styles is this handsome palmetto pattern interpreted in wool in both broadloom widths and rug sizes, and available fringed is you desire.

Wear tests prove that carpet is very durable. It won't last forever, but it will last quite a few years. In the meantime, it will not show scuff marks or scrapes, and it won't suffer from dents caused by high heels or chair legs. Partly though, this depends on the individual piece of carpet.

THE LATEX foam backings last the life of the carpet.

Shaggy Carpets For The Informal

DINAMEAU by Karastan is one example of the new shag-textured carpets and rugs that are winning popularity underfoot. It is an all-wool product woven in two levels.

You can achieve marvelous effects in informal rooms by selecting shag-textured rugs or carpets underfoot.

They are especially suitable to the two general styles of informal furniture. Modern, whether of Japanese, Scandinavian of Mod origin, needs the tousled texture of shag to relieve its rather severe straight-line design. Country, massive, distressed finish furniture whether from Spain, Africa or even early Colonial times, is flattered by the casual shag look.

In shopping for shag carpet there are certain cautions to be observed.

It is important to look for a deep, full and thick texture. Some shags look adequate on first inspection, but tend to be scraggy and anemic looking in use due to insufficient density of pile yarn.

Resilience of the face yarn is essential. Wool has the greatest resilience of all carpet fibers and never develops the limp, lifeless look that many synthetic shags seem to have after a while. That is not to say, however, that good shag rugs cannot be found among the synthetics. They can.

Tuft bind is important. If tufts are not securely locked into the backing, frequent vacuuming will pull them out.

dimensions of all furnishings should be noted."

2. Judge a proposed new purchase in terms of its relation to the plan. Where will it fit? Is it the right size? Are the proportions and styling right?

"A sofa or chair may look great on the showroom floor and look hideous in your living room," Niederman says. "Never judge an item of furniture in isolation, but always in relation to your particular room scheme."

3. Buy quality and make sure you're getting it. One way is to patronize a reputable dealer who will make good on any defective merchandise. Another is to read merchandise tags on the furniture. A third way is to ask questions.

Good upholstered furniture should have kiln-dried wood frames and quality springing. Other noteworthy features are fabrics treated with stain repellent, such as Scotchgard; arm caps to reduce wear on arm upholstery; and a carryover of the upholstery fabric, instead of muslin, on the deck of the sofa or chair beneath the cushions.

4. The simpler the style, the longer it will stay in favor and the easier it will be to live with. Simple furnishings fit into almost any design plan and never go out of date. The more ornate period furnishings are limited in use.

5. Buy upholstered furniture that's comfortable and well-proportioned for the people who will use it. Chairs and sofas should not be so deep that they're almost impossible to get out of without effort. Nor should they be so large and bulky that they overpower a room.

The other extreme is the starkly-styled, thinly-padded so-called contemporary sofa or chair with a Space Age look and Stone Age comfort, according to the Howard-Parlor executive.

"Furniture doesn't have to be monstrously large to be comfortable," he said. "The combination of foam rubber and Vycron polyester fiber produces a luxuriously comfortable sofa or chair without undue bulk. And the lines are pleasing to the eye."

6. Try to select furniture with upholstering materials that are related to the use the furniture will get. Natural down, for example, is very comfortable and expensive, but cushions upholstered with it have to be constantly fluffed and straightened to avoid a messy look.

Latex foam rubber retains its shape without fluffing and offers good comfort. When foam rubber is combined with a wrapping of Vycron polyester fiber, the result is a cushion that is both comfortable and shape-retaining.

7. If the sofa is especially heavy, make sure it has casters on at least the front legs.

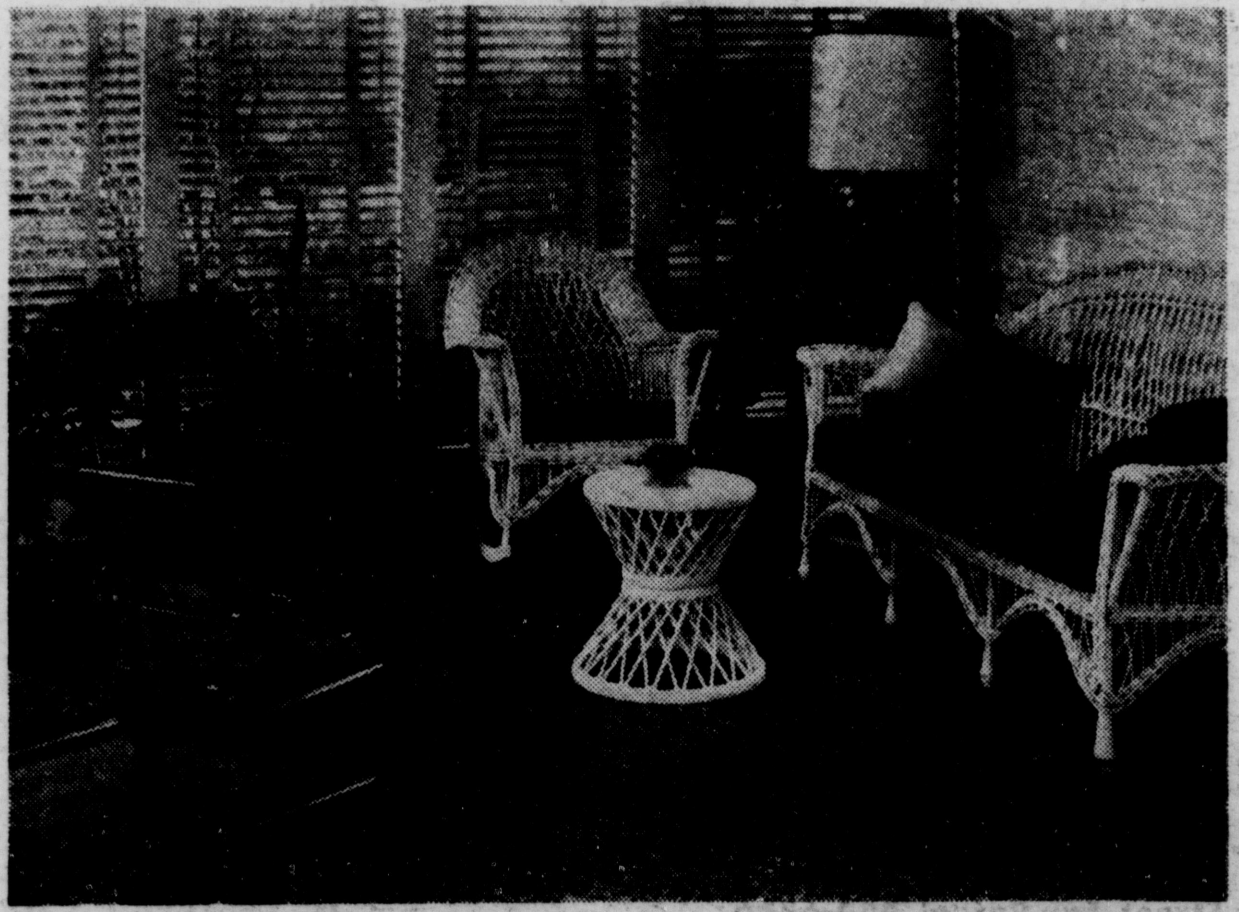
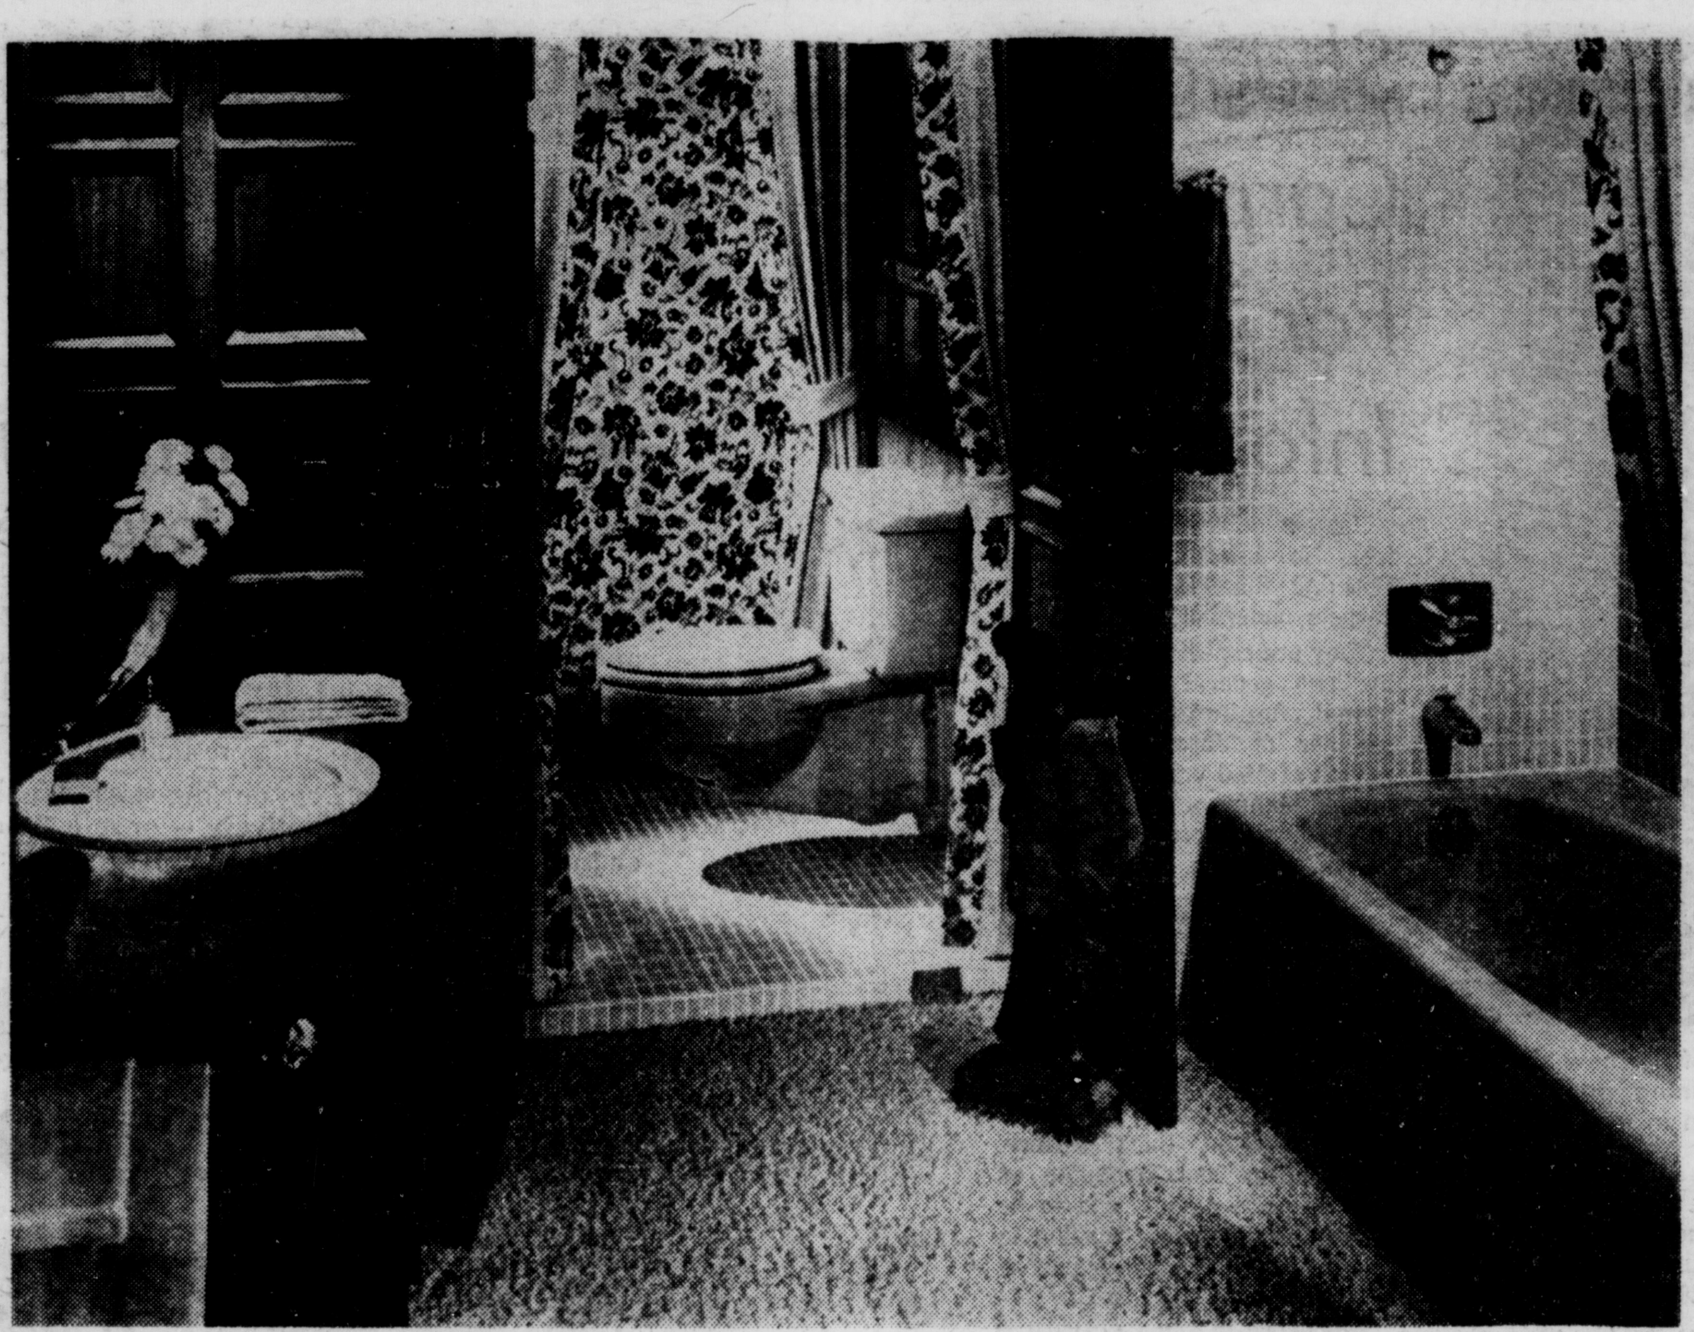
BEAUTY BEGINS on the floor, with new carpets and rugs this fall coming in handsome colors and textures. This style combines thick, shaggy pile and tight loops, made in a range of rich colors, and is not only pretty, but practical as well.

FLOWERS UNDERFOOT — In this instance, white roses on moss green — always serve to brighten a room, just as they do here in a comfortable bedroom-sitting room. The carpet is acrylic.



A FRINGED RUG in a bright pattern has helped convert an enclosed porch into a cheerful "second living room." Old wicker furniture painted white, cushions to match the rug pattern, pieces of left-over carpet tacked on director's chairs over canvas covering, and greenery complete the ingenious budget decor.



NYLON CARPETING with a twist adds the right touch of softness and texture to this bathroom, and provides underfoot safety as well. Carpet is playing an increasingly important role in the bathroom design picture which also includes contour tubs and off-the-floor fixtures that contribute to ease of maintenance.

YOU CAN CREATE your own custom look in carpet by using two colors of a nylon textured style, with the darker color seamed in for a "traffic lane" in the foyer.

The Wonderful World Of Carpeting

They don't make carpets like they used to — thank goodness!

The narrow range of color, the carpet that was "too good" for anything but the front parlor, especially the high prices that restricted carpets to the wealthy — all, fortunately, belong to the past.

Greater flexibility in design, use and quality mark the carpets and rugs for today's homes.

THIS FALL, for example, about the only point of agreement on carpets is that they offer a superb value in floor coverings.

Beyond that point, take your choice.

Currently, there is new design emphasis on texture — deep shags, loops arranged in precise geometric designs, multi-level textures for pattern interest.

BUT IF YOU prefer, there are also classic velvet textures, or tight, low loops for heavy-duty wear.

Don't be afraid to use your eyes and fingers when judging carpet quality. Press your fingers into the pile surface to feel the thickness and closeness of pile which indicates quality. Look for telltale gaps ("grinning") is sparse pile, a sign of poor quality.

Read carpet labels carefully when you shop and save them for future reference in cleaning or replacing your carpet. They contain valuable information, including fiber content of the pile surface, country of origin of the carpet, and usually the manufacturer's name or style name.

MANY OF THE newest colors are zingy — bright chartreuse, sizzling red, dazzling blue, for example. But there's also the punctuation of black and white, or subtle pastels and versatile greens and golds.

New patterns are clearly-defined: Oriental motifs, paisleys, floral designs, colorful Mod and Op art styles, to name just a few.

But if a more subtle approach to pattern is your choice, there are interesting combinations of color and texture, for design interest without single pattern dominace.

MULTICOLORED shags, textures that look like crushed velvet, multi-level textures with tone-on-tone effects offer a few examples.

The 1967 fall style trends are seen in all price and quality ranges. Appealing colors and textures are translated at several different price levels, and pattern is achieved economically by new dyeing techniques and other technological developments.

As for flexibility of use, the possibilities seem to be limited only by imagination.

The "front parlor" days of carpet are over. It's no longer unusual to see carpet on the patio, in the kitchen, the bathroom, the family room or the basement.

The good old days never had it so good!

ONE OF MANY floor-cover designs that blend with both contemporary and traditional furnishing styles is this handsome palmetto pattern interpreted in wool in both broadloom widths and rug sizes, and available fringed is you desire.

sofa, you can be sure he has more in the bank."

So be prepared for this apparent conflict when you shop for furniture, and bear in mind that "the best" might not be so good if the furniture is in for hard wear.

HERE ARE SOME things to look for in upholstered furniture:

A spring edge on a sofa or chair adds to comfort. This means the edge of the deck under the seat cushion yields under pressure, and is more relaxing, especially if you will be sitting for several hours.

Latex foam rubber cushions were the first modern seating material, replacing springs, and they are still the best. Lightweight, but heavy enough to stay in place, they never need plumping, and will not sag, lump up or lose their shape. They are also the most resilient and comfortable cushions made, and always look neat and trim. Architect Frank Lloyd Wright was the first to use latex foam for cushions in the famed Fallin Water House, completed in 1936, and the original cushions are still in use today, after more than 30 years.

Arm caps and back covers save wear and tear, and are often offered free.

Self-decking is a nice touch. This means upholstery fabric is used under the cushions, instead of inexpensive muslin.

On mobile funiture, check the casters to be sure they roll easily, even across rugs.

Colors these days reflect the Mod influence, and are apt to be bright and clear, even in traditional lines.

FOR A FIRST home, many young couples buy relatively inexpensive, basic furniture that they can later put into a family room or den when they buy a home. This is wise, because their tastes often change in a few years, and their needs can be different too, when children come along.

Sleep sofas are often a good buy. They are invaluable in many situations, and look exactly like conventional sofas.

AN UNUSUAL, very practical and already popular new service operating in Marin County is Living Furniture's furniture rentals in San Rafael. Shown is a typical living room arrangement — just one of dozens available. The service is especially in demand among apartment house dwellers, often executive personnel who are spending only a few months to a year working for their West Coast branches, or service personnel and others awaiting assignment to a more permanent residence. Careful attention is given to styles and style changes so that prospective customers have a wide choice.

Fabric And Care Are Key Factors In Choosing Drapes

Drapes on your porch and patio? Draperies instead of doors for a poolsite changing room?

These and many more novel trends have been made possible by new waterproof fabrics.

BUT STEP inside for a minute and meet a San Rafael resident whose main concern is how the warmth and beauty of draperies can make your home as bright and cheerful inside as outside — in the summer or any season.

Frank Michelfelder, 472 Bret Harte Road, knows the economics as well as the aesthetics of draperies. Michelfelder, general sales manager of Coit Drapery Cleaners, advises housewives that careful selection of fabric and proper care of draperies are two factors which will insure this long-term investment.

Soiled draperies, second only to unpolished floors and drab carpets, can cause an entire room to lose its original charm and fresh appeal, according to Michelfelder.

LOU KEARN, president of the national chain of drapery cleaners, recommends dry or wet cleaning of your draperies every 18 to 24 months, depending on the light exposure they receive. Cleaning, explains Kearn, actually lubricates yarns which have become dry and brittle from airborne dust, light and heat.

"To begin with," advises Michelfelder, "your drapes should be purchased at a reputable store."

To choose a fabric with the longest life expectancy, stick with the synthetics, such as Fiberglas, Saranspun and Dacron, or the natural-fibers, such as pure cotton and linen. Silks and lightweight acetates have the shortest lives.

THE LIST of natural and synthetic fibers is long and growing daily. Kearn's own personal preference is cotton.

"It's the best all around drapery material," he maintains. "Cotton has a good life expectancy and will last five to eight years with normal wear."

Michelfelder suggests that if you're in doubt about the life expectancy of your choice, contact a reputable cleaner and he will advise you about fiber content or take a sample for testing. Because drapery is a specialty field of constant inovations, Michelfelder explains, the outsider couldn't possibly keep abreast of the newest developments.

DRYCLEANING OF festoons, Austrian shades, valances and other specialty items is no problem to a well-trained professional installer, according to the men from Coit.

Lambrequins, which are cornice-type pieces of wood padded and covered with fabric, should also be handled by a professional drapery cleaner. According to Coit, good quality hardware, installed by a professional, eliminates stress on the fabric, and the cost difference between expensive and inexpensive hardware is really not that great.

The Coit men recommend that your drapes be lined. Linings, usually made of cotton, protect your draperies from sun and dust, and will double or triple the life of your drapes.

LININGS, SAY Coit experts, should be put on a separate track to insure both versatility and utility. This system gives you more choice of lining materials from a complete blackout material to a translucent one. In effect, you actually get two sets of drapery.

The aesthetic appeal of the double-track system becomes apparent when the back one is completely drawn closed. The true, front drape is partially opened, revealing the "lining" behind it.

LOU KEARN, president of the national chain of drapery cleaners, recommends dry or wet cleaning of your draperies every 18 to 24 months, depending on the light exposure they receive. Cleaning, explains Kearn, actually lubricates yarns which have become dry and brittle from airborne dust, light and heat.

"To begin with," advises Michelfelder, "your drapes should be purchased at a reputable store."

To choose a fabric with the longest life expectancy, stick with the synthetics, such as Fiberglas, Saranspun and Dacron, or the natural-fibers, such as pure cotton and linen. Silks and lightweight acetates have the shortest lives.

THE LIST of natural and synthetic fibers is long and growing daily. Kearn's own personal preference is cotton.

"It's the best all around drapery material," he maintains. "Cotton has a good life expectancy and will last five to eight years with normal wear."

Michelfelder suggests that if you're in doubt about the life expectancy of your choice, contact a reputable cleaner and he will advise you about fiber content or take a sample for testing. Because drapery is a specialty field of constant inovations, Michelfelder explains, the outsider couldn't possibly keep abreast of the newest developments.

DRYCLEANING OF festoons, Austrian shades, valances and other specialty items is no problem to a well-trained professional installer, according to the men from Coit.

Lambrequins, which are cornice-type pieces of wood padded and covered with fabric, should also be handled by a professional drapery cleaner. According to Coit, good quality hardware, installed by a professional, eliminates stress on the fabric, and the cost difference between expensive and inexpensive hardware is really not that great.

The Coit men recommend that your drapes be lined. Linings, usually made of cotton, protect your draperies from sun and dust, and will double or triple the life of your drapes.

LININGS, SAY Coit experts, should be put on a separate track to insure both versatility and utility. This system gives you more choice of lining materials from a complete blackout material to a translucent one. In effect, you actually get two sets of drapery.

The aesthetic appeal of the double-track system becomes apparent when the back one is completely drawn closed. The true, front drape is partially opened, revealing the "lining" behind it.

New Products To Brighten The Bath

The contemporary bathroom need no longer have that sterilized-laboratory look but can be as carefully and tastefully decorated as any room in the house.

Long overlooked in decorating plans for the home, the bathroom is one of its important areas and should be a colorful and cheerful element in the overall decor. New colors and designs in appliances, accessories and such basic materials as ceramic tile provide the decorator with an infinite range of possibilities.

BRIGHT COLORS will make a small bath seem larger, warm yellows will suggest sunshine even in a windowless room, and greens and blues will cool a room exposed to summer glare.

Ceramic tile — still waterproof, durable and easily cleaned — remains an ideal material for walls, floors and vanity tops, and now comes in hundreds of new colors and color combinations in addition to the traditional white. Decorative and sculptured tiles, new shapes and sizes help to make possible the unlimited creation of attractive patterns.

Towels, towel racks, shower curtains, wastepaper baskets, magazine holders, shades, cabinets and other accessories are available in a myriad of hues and styles that will complement any decorating scheme.

USE OF FLOWERS, real or artificial, can provide a freshness to the bathroom scene. A basket of ferns hanging from wall or ceiling will add a touch of cool greenery.

Lighting will accent both colors and design.

Luminous ceilings or recessed lights may provide just the illumination needed.

Accordion-folding doors, a strung-bead curtain or fabric-covered plywood used as a room divider can often improve spatial relationships by separating the dressing area from the rest of the room.

PIANO AGAIN SYMBOL OF GOOD LIVING

A grand piano in the living room has forged ahead of color television as a status symbol.

That's the report from the National Association of Music Merchants, the organization of U.S. music stores, which states that color television is becoming so common that the grand piano is right back where it used to be as the prime status symbol of gracious living in the American home.

Actually more grand pianos were sold last year than any time since the 1920s

Placing The New Piano

Your new piano or organ may delight the ear but if it distresses the eye there's likely to be more discord than beautiful music in the home.

More than 25 million Americans now play keyboard instruments, and the instruments they play must be worked into the home's overall decorating theme. A piano or organ should not look unwelcome. Nor, generally, should it be the dominant theme in a room.

SOME TIPS on piano and organ placement come from the Wurlitzer Co., the world's largest manufacturer of pianos and organs:

—In a long, narrow room, don't hesitate to put your piano at a right angle to the wall. They make excellent room dividers. There are models with modern cane backs, made to show, or it is easy to make a loose woven fabric to match or complement other furnishings in the room. You might prefer wood or plastic; just be sure whatever material you use is porous—to let the sound out. A decorative, folding screen the height of the piano is another possibility.

—A keyboard instrument makes a good room divider when you want to create two different living areas—dining room and living room, for instance. Or use it to add an extra wall in a room with limited wall space—too many windows, closets, doors, etc.

—If possible, Wurlitzer suggests, place your instrument against a short wall for best sound projection. (Remember how the band shell works for a park concert?) If you don't have a short wall, create an alcove. One way: turn a long wall into an intertainment center. You could have built-in bookcases on one side, stereo equipment on the other, leaving an alcove in the middle for piano or organ. The wall above the piano can be decorated with mandolin, guitar or other string instruments.

INCIDENTALLY, Wurlitzer points out, the wall you place a piano against should be well-insulated. Excessive heat or cold can affect tone. A wall facing the interior of the house may be the best choice.

—No matter where you place the piano, allow for good light. Musicians usually need to see sheet music. Again, though, be creative as well as practical.

In alcoves, try twin cone lamps on opposite walls. Mount the lamps to focus on the center of attention. For a piano in a more open spot, try recessed ceiling lights. A single large spot provides an interesting circular effect.

Two small fixtures focused on the music panel will produce an overlapping floodlight effect.

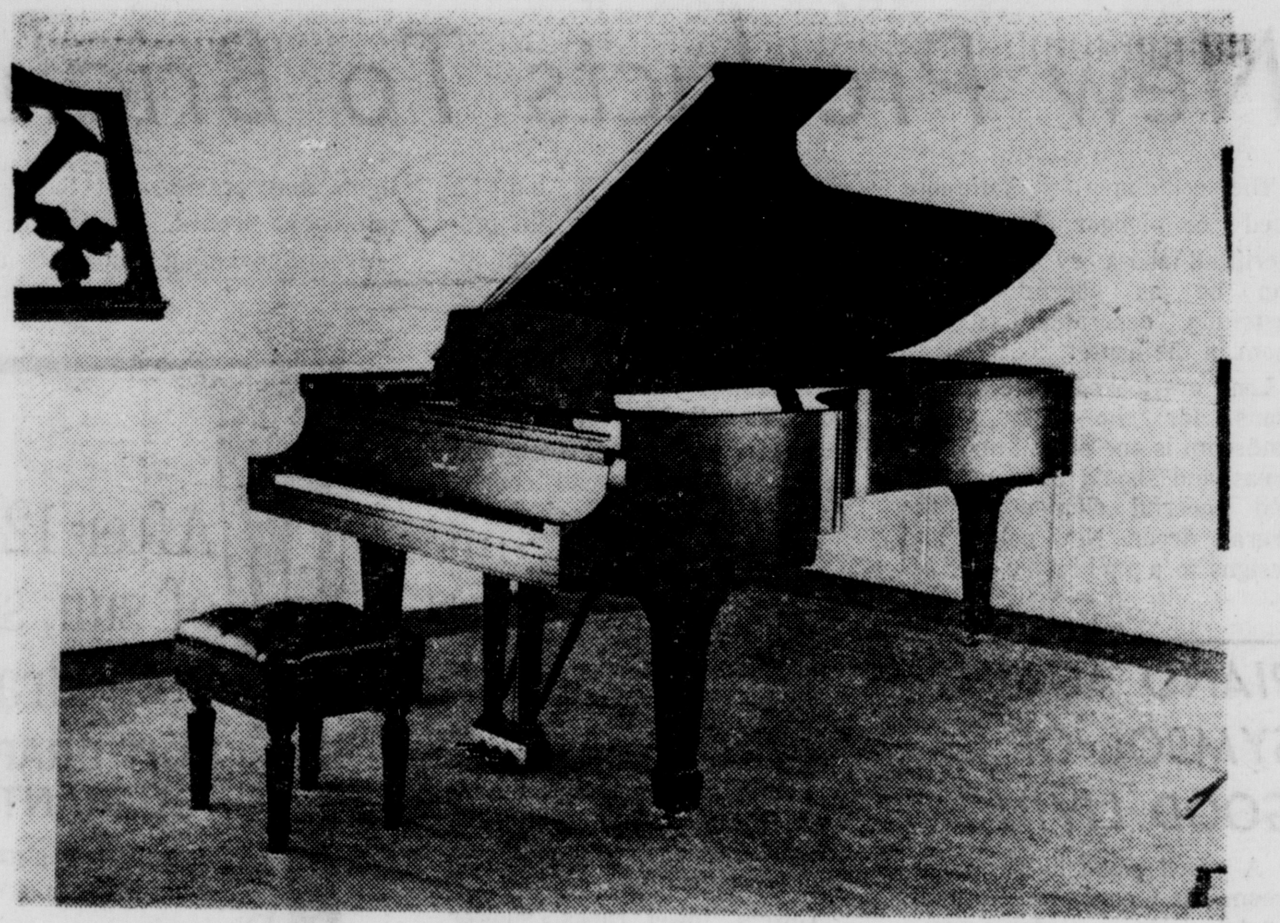
WHATEVER the arrangement, make sure you don't cast shadows over the music panel.

— Your musical furnishings, like your general decor, Wurlitzer reminds, should reflect your personality. If you have a flair for the dramatic, take a bold stand in decorating. Don't put your instrument near a wall at in the room. Leave space on all sides for guests and family to sing or join in on other instruments. This arrangement also allows the person at the keyboard to face his audience.

When you set up a free-standing piano, consider backing it with a planter-box on legs —matching the instrument in size, or course.

—Plan your music center to suit your family. A talented musician and a fine instrument could well claim the spotlight in the living room. A piano used mostly for family practice and teen-age fun fests probably would go best in a recreation room. For a family devoted to music of all kinds, a separate music room could be the answer.

—Whatever your plan, Wurlitzer engineers advise, keep furnishings in the music room light and airy. Heavy draperies and overstuffed furniture tend to mute music quality.



A CENTURY OF fine craftsmanship has made the name Steinway synonymous not only with fine instrumentation but with handsome furniture as well. Steinway's "Instrument of the Immortals," shown above, stands as a striking example of this. Sherman Clay in San Rafael, exclusive dealers for Steinway pianos in Marin, is observing Steinway Month through October.

Water Returns To Bedrooms

Fashions in home furnishings, like everything else, often run full-cycle.

Take water in the bedroom, for example. Great grandmother performed her morning toilet with the aid of a china bowl and pitcher. Then came the bathroom, and water moved out of the bedroom.

NOW WATER in the bedroom is high style once again, says the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

The vanity lavatory, with single or double bowl is especially popular with mothers and their teen-age daughters. They can primp or work on a new hairdo for hours without tying up a bathroom.

The vanity cabinets and countertops come in an endless variety of types, to fit any bedroom decor. Lavatory bowls in bold or subdued colors or decorated with flower, fruit, classical and other designs are especially popular for bedrooms.

FAUCETS ARE so handsome they're veritable decorator items. They come not only in shiny chrome but acrylic that sparkles like cut-crystal. Some are even gold plated.

Shapes vary from modern to dolphins, swans and mermaids.

Ceiling Fans Make A Comeback, But Now They Are Outdoors

Along with such old-time favorites as the ice cream freezer and porch swing, the ceiling fan, one-time traditional symbol of summer, seems to be staging a comeback.

This is not occurring in hotel rooms and barber shops where, before air conditioning, the whirling overhead coolers were a standard fixture.

The old-fashioned ceiling fan, with its big, slowly rotating paddle blades, is appearing on residential porches and protected patios where it is proving just the thing to deliver refreshing breezes and, incidentally, to help discourage insects from joining the party. The constant movement of air is not to their liking.

The Hunter Division of Robbins & Myers, Inc., Memphis, Tenn., has been manufacturing the ceiling fans since 1897, but since the advent of air conditioning its big markets have been in South America and the Caribbean. Lone exceptions in the United States, until recently, were the amusement centers of Disneyland and Six Flags Over Texas where the twirling fans are used by the hundreds.

THE ELEGANCE that a fine chandelier can lend to a room is illustrated here. Shown is one from the E-Lite Co.'s new Capella Grouping. It is of European craftsmanship, 24 inches high and 34 inches wide. It is a "grand tier" chandelier with 12 lights styled for dining rooms or large living rooms featuring French, Italian Provincial or other period decor. The fixture has a classic cast brass frame with fine detailing. There is a restrained use of hand-cut teardrop and spire prisms. The finish is antique gold. It and other Capella pieces, six in all, are being offered in this area by Marin Lights of San Rafael.

It is a "grand tier" chandelier with 12 lights styled for dining rooms or large living rooms featuring French, Italian Provincial or other period decor. The fixture has a classic cast brass frame with fine detailing. There is a restrained use of hand-cut teardrop and spire prisms. The finish is antique gold. It and other Capella pieces, six in all, are being offered in this area by Marin Lights of San Rafael.

Save Mom Steps In The Kitchen

The average mother of two children hikes about 3,000 miles a year doing her household chores.

Most of these miles are paced off in the kitchen, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. That's why proper kitchen planning to save steps and reduce fatigue is so important.

The bureau offers these seven tips to homemakers who are planning to remodel their kitchens:

1. Don't skimp on the quality of the sink. It's your work center. Double-bowl types are extremely efficient. You can get some with one bowl shallower than the other, to make leg room so you can work at the sink sitting down.

2. Make sure you have plenty of work counters by the sink, preferably on both sides. Make sure, also, that they're the right height for you. Most counters are installed at a height for the so-called average woman, who is five-feet-four-inches, and if you're taller or shorter, this should be taken into account.

3. Make sure your faucets have aerators. They introduce millions of bubbles into the water. This enables you to use less detergent and also prevent splashing.

4. Have your oven and broiler installed at eye-level.

5. Be sure to include an electric food waste disposer and dishwasher. Both save you much drudgery and help you keep your kitchen cleaner and more sanitary.

6. If possible, have the sink installed under a window and make sure the room gets plenty of natural sunlight that will help keep you in a good frame of mind as you go about your work.

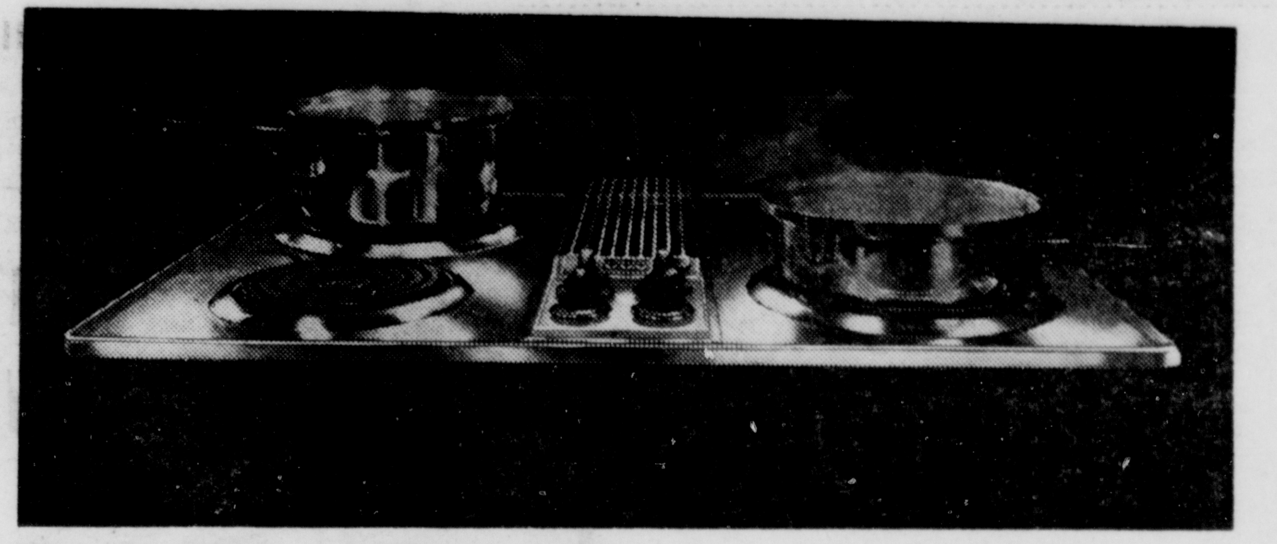
7. Choose colors you'll want to live with for a long time. The wrong ones can get awfully depressing, increasing fatigue unconsciously.

Consider having the remodeling job done by a contractor who specializes in this type of work. He'll coordinate all the trades for you and get his men in and out of your home in the fastest possible time at the least cost and with the least mess.

Here Is What You Need For Laundry Room

If you plan to set up a laundry area, you'll need more than a washer and dryer.

Building Supply News advises that for convenience and working ease you should also have countertop space for sorting and folding (the area can also serve for gift-wrapping and flower arranging), a mobile cart for trasporting clothes before and after washing cabinets or shelves for detergents, bleaches and other laundry aids, and a sit-down area for mending and ironing.



JENN-AIR'S Model No. 2300 range with four elements and built-in exhaust is a space-saving and economical countertop appliance for wholesome cooking that can be seen at Rafael Appliance Co., San Rafael. It is especially popular with the growing family, and for vacation homes and cottages. Finish is satin chrome, and all inside surfaces are porcelain-coated.

Flower Arranging Is For Everyone

It's An Absorbing Hobby, And An Outlet For Creative Instincts

By HELEN ROSSI

Flower arranging can be such an absorbing hobby that many hours may be spent to achieve a single effect.

Or, with practice and a few tricks of the trade, attractive arrangements may be completed in a matter of minutes.

Either way, claims Mrs. Hugh C. Armstrong, it is fun — a pleasant pastime. And it is open to everyone.

MRS. ARMSTRONG and Mrs. Fred Sloat are in charge of the flower arrangment entries for the Garden Society of Marin's Fall Flower Festival to be held next Saturday and Oct. 29 in the Northgate area of the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

MRS. HUGH C. Armstrong works on a floral arrangement of dried Aspidistra leaves, topaz slag chunks and yellow chrysanthemums in a wooden bowl. She will be co-chairman of the floral arrangement section of the annual Fall Flower Festival to be conducted by the Garden Society of Marin at the Marin Art and Garden Society in Ross next weekend.

The show will be open from noon to 6 p.m. on Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Stella Armstrong is a graduate of San Francisco State, where she majored in art, and has been a resident of Marin County for 14 years.

SHE HAS ALSO studied at California College of Arts and Crafts and the Rudolph Schaefer School of Interior Design, and has taken special instruction in flower arranging from Mrs. Curtis Knowles and Mrs. Robert Tuckey.

She is a member of the Decorations Guild at the Art and Garden Center, as well as the Garden Society.

For those who might be considering a first attempt at flower arranging, she has this advice:

"YOUR FIRST decision is the selection of material and a container that harmonize. And be sure to fasten the frog in the container firmly before you add water. This is most important, as nothing can be more frustrating than to have a nearly completed arrangement topple over.

Line and balance she says, are all important in flower arranging, "and practice and observation are the best helps here."

"In general," she advises, "keep a graceful or natural look and avoid crossing or conflicting lines. If the plant is naturally drooping, try a cascading arrangement; if you wish vertical lines use something with an upright growth. Gnarled or twisted stems or stalks are often more interesting than perfectly straight ones.

"HEAVY PRUNING is sometimes required, and a sharp tool of adequate size and weight for your material is indispensable.

"And when using several leaves of a simple shape such as Aspidistra, if you find you need smaller ones, these may be cut to size with no ill effects. Simply follow the outline of the leaf and remove an equal amount all the way around the edges, tapering at the stem."

Rules on the use of color are more flexible than they used to be, she says.

"IN GENERAL," she says on the subject, "it is more desirable to limit the number of colors utilized in an arrangement to two or three.

Aerosol cans of paint are invaluable here.

"Dried material and containers are easily sprayed any color to achieve the desired effect, whether contrasting or monochromatic. Some fresh material, for example Echeveria or Hen and Chickens, may be sprayed also, and will hold up about the same length of time as if left in their natural state."

Mrs. Armstrong points out that a field trip to gather material for arrangments can be combined with a family picnic and thus become a doubly enjoyable outing.

"ALMOST EVERYONE likes to gather driftwood, stones and shells," she notes, "and these can provide striking accents."

Some of the most common roadside weeds also make interesting arrangment materials, she says, and cites as an example the dill weed.

"It has a light and airy effect when used in bloom," she says, "but if you find a clump that has been sprayed with a weed killer, you have a special find, for the stalks take on graceful curves as they droop and dry."

SPRAYED WITH black paint, these are particularly effective as the basic lines of an arrangement, she says.

Among other materials suitable for setting the dominant line for arrangements Mrs. Armstrong lists New Zealand Flax, Agapanthus flower stalks with seed pods removed, sugar cane (available at some markets), willow and broom.

"But much other material can also be dried and used," she advises.

She describes the process for preparing the willow as follows:

SELECT THIN, young branches, mash the stems and put in water for two or three days. Then remove the leaves and cut to desired length. Gather in bundles of six to eight and wrap a spiral of wire around each bundle, then shape with your hands to the desired curve. The wire should be heavy enough in weight to hold the set position.

Let them dry naturally or place in a slow oven for 45 minutes. Do not remove wire until thoroughly dry.

Vines such as wisteria can also be formed into graceful shapes by following this same method, Mrs. Armstrong notes.

ONE OF THE traditional time-savers of the art, she says, is the use of dried material to establish the line or framework. This can then be utilized to achieve entirely different effects by changing only a few fresh flowers, leaves or fruit at the base.

She adds this caution: When combining dried and fresh material in the same arrangement, the stems of the dry material should be protected from moisture by the use of floral tape or some other means.

Flower arranging, Mrs. Armstrong stresses, is not a hobby restricted to women alone. "Many shows have categories for juniors and for men."

A GOOD introduction to the art form can be obtained, she says, from books available in the bookstores or the libraries.

Or you can visit next weekend's flower festival and see for yourself the creative ideas of some of Marin's most gifted arrangers.

And once you have mastered the western approach, there is still the very different and fascinating Japanese style arranging with a history centuries old as a further challenge.

Bringing Great Music To The Schools

Marin Children Take Part In Standard Oil Program

Many classrooms of fourth, fifth and sixth graders throughout Marin County are listening to a unique educational radio program every Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

They are part of an audience of three million youngsters in 8,750 schools in the Western states.

The half-hour program is the oldest continuous program on the air, having begun in 1928. Now completing four decades of programs of educational and cultural merit and artistic value, the Standard School Broadcast is the longest established public relations project of Standard Oil of California, which is headquartered in San Francisco.

THE MANAGEMENT and production of the program is entirely in the hands of Standard Oil, and the program has no commerical announcements beyond mention of the sponsor's name. It is carried on 130 radio stations.

Although begun as a simple music appreciation program, with lectures on music voiced by a single announcer and performed by a string trio, the Standard School Broadcast now combines the dramatic stage and concert hall in a purely aural presentation that demonstrates potentials of radio largely ignored in today's television-conscious world. Only on the Standard School Braodcast may one hear today programs of cultural and educational value that feature a symphony orchestra directed by a famous conductor, outstanding soloists, a talented dramatic cast, and the imaginative use of sound effects as a stimulus to the imagination.

The wide appeal of the broadcast attracts many adult listeners in addition to the in-school-listening youngsters.

MORE THAN 50 awards for merit and three generations of a constantly increasing audience attest to the program's success. Many young people now listening in each week are the grandchildren of those who heard the first broadcasts in the late 1920s.

Classroom teachers are given, free of charge, visual aids to make the most effective use of the programs.

Most important is the "Teacher's Manual," which introduces each of the 26 programs and suggests classroom projects to tie in with them. One of the most comprehensive visual aids provided to date is this season's "Chronological Wall Chart" which colorfully relate in time important landmarks in U. S. history, U. S. music, world history, and world music, in addition to the lifelines of important composers, from the discovery of America through 1967.

THE CURRENT series of the Standard School Broadcast is titled "The World's Great Music Through America's History." It correlates dramatic moments in America's past with the history and performance of musical masterpieces from Palestrina to Stockhausen, even including a taste of folk, jazz and rock music.

On each program, reporters simulate on-the-spot news coverage of events, using today's broadcast techniques to recreate historical happenings realistically for young listeners.

An example of Marin County teachers using the Standard School Broadcast is Beatrice Hanks, who teaches fourth grade at Homestead School in Mill Valley.

MISS HANKS says "The World's Great Music Through America's History'' is particularly appropriate to her social studies and music instruction in that it will assist her in developing her students' awareness of the history and great music of other countries and their relationship, in time, to the growth of our country.

She praises the chronological arrangements of the programs and looks forward to using this year's new wall chart, especially prepared for class reference.

Miss Hanks is something of a world traveler, and plans to utilize the new series of programs in conjunction with her own color slides and experiences. She will use the Standard broadcasts to help her students identify many types of music and the composers and countries with which the are associated.

THE MEMBERS of the Standard School Broadcast staff, part of the public relations department of Standard Oil of California, keep in close touch with teachers and educators such as Miss Hanks and with students, primarily through voluminous correspondence and annual surveys of the reactions to each series of broadcasts.

Don Jones is the program manager; Edward Franklin is in charge of writing and production. John Sunier, columnist under "The Stereo Scene'' heading in the Independent-

"WHY DID MY HUSBAND'S IMPORTED SUIT FLATTEN OUT?"

This problem has come to our attention occasionally in suits imported from the Orient. The fabric appears to be a seersucker because of its crinkled appearance. In this particular instance, the dark colored yarns were nylon, the light blue yarns, Dacron. While the suit drycleans perfectly, the crinkle can come out in the pressing. This can happen while the garment is being tailored, altered or pressed at home.

What happens is that the iron heat is set above the rayon setting. That causes the Dacron yarns to shrink. Because of this shrinkage, the crinkled effect is lost and the fabric appears smooth. This results in more black nylon yarns being visible on the surface of the fabric. The smoothness becomes especially noticeable on the lapel roll, the seams and trouser cuffs.

Be extremely careful when pressing any fabric containing Dacron that the heat is NOT above the rayon setting.

The Mission Story

The Buildings Vanished, But Spirit Lingered On

(Editor's Note: This is the second installment of Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly's history of the Mission San Rafael Arcangel, the 150th anniversary of which is being celebrated this week.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

Under the vigorous new leadership of Fr. Juan Amoros, the Mission San Rafael Arcangel enjoyed prosperous days.

Crops were good, and the vineyards and orchards produced bountifully.

University of California horticulturist Edward J. Wickson in his book on California fruits has recorded the observation of John Bidwell that "the mission of San Rafael had the best grapes . . . these were better than elsewhere."

Bidwell praised the grapes for their sweetness, and also made special mention of the flourishing apple and pear orchards.

THERE WAS, however, one shortage that plagued Father Amoros — sheep. He reported that lack to his superior, Fr. Prefecto Mariano Payeras.

The latter, in turn, wrote to the mission fathers on June 5, 1821:

"In order to clothe them (the neophytes at San Rafael), they can count only 1,200 sheep. From this, your reverences will infer that those poor Rafaelites are men and women in such a state of nakedness which disgraces our respect and the sight of which makes the 'genus hominum' to blush.

"I WOULD not consider asking for clothing for them, as I take it for granted that they are already prepared to manufacture it themselves. But certainly I do beg of you for my sake, as well as for that of their minister, Fr. Juan Amoros, 2,000 sheep, including lambs and grown sheep . . ."

The father perfect then set quotas of sheep to be supplied by each of the missions to the south.

Continued Father Payeras: "If some of your reverences may be more generous in giving than I am in asking, he is free to add as many more as he likes—also he may withhold from the quota as many as he does have the courage to separate himself from even that small amount, being well aware that this is a gift, unstinted charity, but very well directed."

FATHER PAYERAS added that he had the approval of the governor who had assigned a Cpl. Tiburcio Tapia to drive the donated sheep northward as far as Soledad with the help of mission neophytes.

Fr. Ramon Avella was then to make the arrangements for transporting the sheep on northward toward San Rafael.

In this way, one problem of the small and fledgling mission was alleviated. But there were to be others.

The life of the missionary at San Rafael was a particularly lonely one.

THE LARGER establishments had two or more friars. But in San Rafael, there was only one.

Visitors, thus, were especially welcomed, as they provided the friar with an opportunity to converse and to learn what was happening in the world.

NATIONAL, state, religious and local dignitaries were present in 1949 when dedication ceremonies were held for the rebuilt San Rafael Mission Arcangel. The original building had disappeared entirely, but the new structure was erected with painstaking authenticity.

In 1822, Father Amoros had a distinguished guest in the person of Rev. Augustin Fernandez de Vicente, sent by the regency of Mexico to ascertain the sentiments of colonists and missionaries in California toward the new administration, to administer an oath of allegiance to them, and to help establish a new provincial constitutional government.

WITH HIM to San Rafael came Father Perfecto Payeras.

They received from Father Amoros a detailed report on the mission's population, livestock, crops, boundaries (as established by Fr. Luis Gil in his earlier survey), defense needs and other data.

The visitors then continued on to Fort Ross to learn what threat, if any, to Californians the Russian colonists there might pose.

But Father Amoros had worries closer to home. Constant and heavy demands were being made upon the missions by the military for food and other supplies.

THE FATHER prefect had urged the missions to do their utmost for the troops so that "we may serve those who serve us and are obliged to defend us in all difficulties and dangers."

He concluded with this proverb: "One cannot close the mouth of the ox that is plowing."

The little San Rafael mission, however, was sometimes hard-pressed to meet its quotas, particularly of leather.

In 1823, Father Amoros had an even greater worry. Writing Don Luis Arguello on May 17 of that year, he told the captain and judge: "A few days ago I learned as a certainty, it is claimed by the priests of the mission of San Francisco, that the most excellent deputation has decreed to abolish the aforesaid mission and also that of San Rafael in favor of a new establishment in the Suisun . . .

DON CAYETANO Juarez, one of California's early land grantees and a prominent pioneer figure, was a young army officer out of the San Francisco Presidio when hostile Indians attacked the Mission San Rafael Arcangel in 1829. Juarez led a small detachment of troops to the mission and to the aid of its endangered padre, Fr. Juan Amoros.

"AS YOUR Honor knows, in this locality of San Rafael the natives are very different from those in that other location. They were baptized with the condition that they would remain permanently in San Rafael, where they enjoy peace, health and abundance of food . . . besides other products which the land continues to increase in producing . . .

"If your honor could see, this year, the corn fields, you would observe the great blessing from God . . . Rev. Prefect Mariano Payeras had decreed on his visit of the 10th of October, 1822, that this should remain in all respects independent of the Mission of Saint Francis . . . From that hour we have not received any assistance from San Francisco, but with our limited income, help from the other missions, and with the permission of the father prefect himself and with the aid of other factors . . . we have put all of our current affairs in good condition, and if God grants us health and peace, we shall continue to increase.

"Your Honor well knows that everything cannot be accomplished within a short time.

"IN CONSIDERATION of my position as minister of these neophytes—only God knows how difficult it has been to gather them from among the woods even as far as the vicinity of the Russians—, and being assured of the reluctance they feel to being moved to a different locality, I, therefore, feel obliged to remind Your Honor of their outcries and objections, begging Your Honor to do everything possible so that these neophytes may remain in the peaceful possession which they are enjoying . . ."

Father Amoros closed with a plea to Don Arguello to serve as "sponsor and protector" of his flock.

Apparently, Father Amoros' appeal had its effect, for it was decided to keep the Mission San Rafael Arcangel as an independent and separate entity, and not to move the neophytes to Suisun.

THERE WERE, however, other factors behind that decision. Honoria Twomey, in her history of Sonoma County, tells how Padre Jose Altimira, who had been one of the ministers at San Francisco for three years, had advocated the moving of the San Francisco and San Rafael missions to a new site in the north.

He wrote the padre prefect: "San Francisco is on its last legs and San Rafael cannot subsist alone."

DON CAYETANO Juarez, one of California's early land grantees and a prominent pioneer figure, was a young army officer out of the San Francisco Presidio when hostile Indians attacked the Mission San Rafael Arcangel in 1829. Juarez led a small detachment of troops to the mission and to the aid of its endangered padre, Fr. Juan Amoros.

establishment in the Suisun . . .

"AS YOUR Honor knows, in this locality of San Rafael the natives are very different from those in that other location. They were baptized with the condition that they would remain permanently in San Rafael, where they enjoy peace, health and abundance of food . . . besides other products which the land continues to increase in producing . . .

"If your honor could see, this year, the corn fields, you would observe the great blessing from God . . . Rev. Prefect Mariano Payeras had decreed on his visit of the 10th of October, 1822, that this should remain in all respects independent of the Mission of Saint Francis . . . From that hour we have not received any assistance from San Francisco, but with our limited income, help from the other missions, and with the permission of the father prefect himself and with the aid of other factors . . . we have put all of our current affairs in good condition, and if God grants us health and peace, we shall continue to increase.

"Your Honor well knows that everything cannot be accomplished within a short time.

"IN CONSIDERATION of my position as minister of these neophytes—only God knows how difficult it has been to gather them from among the woods even as far as the vicinity of the Russians—, and being assured of the reluctance they feel to being moved to a different locality, I, therefore, feel obliged to remind Your Honor of their outcries and objections, begging Your Honor to do everything possible so that these neophytes may remain in the peaceful possession which they are enjoying . . ."

Father Amoros closed with a plea to Don Arguello to serve as "sponsor and protector" of his flock.

Apparently, Father Amoros' appeal had its effect, for it was decided to keep the Mission San Rafael Arcangel as an independent and separate entity, and not to move the neophytes to Suisun.

THERE WERE, however, other factors behind that decision. Honoria Twomey, in her history of Sonoma County, tells how Padre Jose Altimira, who had been one of the ministers at San Francisco for three years, had advocated the moving of the San Francisco and San Rafael missions to a new site in the north.

He wrote the padre prefect: "San Francisco is on its last legs and San Rafael cannot subsist alone."

STEREO HI-FI

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

HOME FURNISHINGS CAN BE BEAUTIFUL—BUT! they can add more atmosphere to the home than beauty. Take the new SCOTT STEREO CONSOLES for instance, there you have lovely furniture with some of the finest and most natural stereo sound you may have ever heard. Your guests will undoubtedly fall in love with the furniture when they see it; but, when they hear the sound they will be spellbound.

For many years, the only way to achieve natural vibrant sound was by using components in separate cabinets or built into a wall. The serious obstacle was acoustic feedback, caused by low frequency vibrations from the speakers vibrating the turntable and the phonograph arm, causing an uncontrollable howl. The usual cure in the console business was to reduce the bass response, generally by eliminating proper speaker baffling and by using cheap speakers with a stiff suspension. SCOTT engineers have developed and patented a method to overcome this problem, called Isomount. This feature renders the turntable immune to high level low-frequency bass tones emanating from the loudspeakers in the same cabinet, thus providing the world's most nearly perfect stereo console, capable of faithfully reproducing every tone from the softest whisper to the cathedral organ's deepest fortissimo.

The Scott consoles are a component system mounted in exquisitely designed furniture. Each item in the console is a gem in itself. The FM and AM tuner sections are designed with the latest Field Effect transistors (another Scott innovation). Integrated space-age circuitry is used. Low distortion, low hum, full range transistorized amplifiers are incorporated into each console to match the speaker systems. The finest record changers are used, Garrards and Duals.

And to make each console a superb musical instrument, Scott speaker systems are built on the "air-suspension" principle, necessary for full reproduction of deep bass.

The consoles themselves are available in Mediterranean, English, Venetian, Classic, Far East, and Contemporary. Visit us for a demonstration.

POET'S CORNER

ARE YOU TELLING ME?

That red ball;
That star,
That tree . . .
Where are they taking me?
I hope, not too far . . .
Just enough so I can be free.
    And that light . . .
    Yes, that eternal light
    That helps my eyes to see
    In the day or night . . .
What are they doing?
Where am I going?
Are you my fate . . .
Are you my fate . . .
        Or . . . or,
Is it already too late . . .
Are you trying
To tell me I have no longer to wait?
        Clouds . . .
Are you crying . . .
Crying because, for me, it is too late?

SAN ANSELMO — DAN KEENER

The 150-Year History Of The Mission San Rafael Arcangel

tled more extensively to check any Russian advance into the interior or south. So he ordered Padre Altimira to proceed with the founding of a new Mission San Francisco de Asis.

BUT BY THE time the new mission in Sonoma County was established, the historian wrote, agreat deal of correspondence had taken place among Governor Arguello, Acting Padre Prefect Sarria and Padre Altimira. The result was a compromise in which the new Mission San Francisco Solano became a mission of regular standing with Padre Altimira as its minister, but the missions in San Francisco and San Rafael were not surpressed.

The new mission to the north was dedicated July 4, 1823.

Having survived this close call, the Mission San Rafael Arcangel enjoyed a period of prosperity. While the mission population in 1828 as 1,140, there were many other Christianized Indians on the rancherias around San Rafael, the valleys to the west, along San Pablo Bay and at Olompali.

NO LONGER an asistencia, it was now entirely independent of the mission on Dolores Creek across the bay.

Harvests were plentiful. The adobe homes in which the neophytes lived stretched from the mission east to what is now Lincoln Avenue and across what is now the courthouse property.

The mission and surrounding countryside of 1824 were described by visiting Russian navigator, scientist and trader Otto von Kotezebue in his book:

"THE LANDING place is a good nautical mile distant from the mission of San Rafael. A number of horses belonging to it were grazing in a beautiful pasture near the shore, in perfect harmony with a herd of small deer, which are very numerous in this country. Our dragoons, not wishing to walk to the mission, took their lassoes and soon caught as many horses as they needed. Saddles we had brought with us, and away we galloped over the level ground, between the oaks, to the mission, where we were received by the only ecclesiastic, under whose management it is.

"The site of the mission seems to be much better chosen than the so much vaunted Santa Clara. A range of lofty hills protect from the bleak north winds; but beyond this bulwark dwell, as the monk informed us, the Indian braves who had already once surprised the mission and burned the building belonging to it, and against whom he was obliged to be continually on his guard.

"San Rafael appears, in fact, like an advance post of the other missions.

"THE SIX dragoons were ready for action at the slightest alarm. In the night, I found two sentinels fully equipped, posted in the direction of the hills. Each of them had made a fire and every 10 minutes they rang a bell, suspended between two posts, probably as proof of their vigilance. And they were answered every time by the bark of the small foxlike wolves, which prowl about the mission.

"That there is not much to be feared from other enemies is evident from the small number of the military and the total neglect of all other means of defense, for the mission is absolutely unenclosed. . . .

"The first rays of the sun found us on horseback and soon after we left the mission. Our guide took a northwest direction, which led us farther inland.

"WE WERE struck by the even ground, studded with umbrageous trees (evidently the California laurels which cast a dense shade). They look like plantations, made and carefully kept in order by some tasteful gardener. How easily might this land be brought into tillage for it contains no stones, and how fertile it must be, as it produces such luxuriant herbiage!"

The long-feared major Indian attack came finally in 1829.

On a February night, members of a surveying party and a few accompanying soldiers were staying at the mission. Weary from tramping over rough terrain, they were sleeping soundly. Asleep, too, was Father Amoros in his cell-like room.

OUT OF THE darkness crept lithe figures. Suddenly arrows whizzed at the heads of sentries. Shouting war cries, the Indians swarmed in. The sleep-fogged soldiers opened fire with their muzzle-loaders, but the flashes from their guns only made them easy targets for the Indians.

The raiders rushed into the buildings hunting for Father Amoros whom they wanted to kill. They hated him because he had bravely visited outlying rancherias to make friends with less hostile Indians.

The mission neophytes now formed a human wall around their beloved padre and guided him to the marsh where they hid him in the tules.

THIS ACCOUNT came from the late Roy L. Juarez, who had a summer home in Inverness and who was the grandson of Don Cayetano Juarez, a native Californian of Spanish descent who was in 1829 an army officer at the San Francisco Presidio.

When an Indian runner, near exhaustion, reached Sonoma with word of the attack on Mission San Rafael and the desperate plight of the missionary there, Don Juarez was there with a patrol party of five soldiers.

Immediately Juarez and his men mounted horses and galloped to San Rafael. They found the mission buildings deserted and destruction everywhere. Crops had been ruined, grain stolen, sacred vessels in the simple chapel broken. Horses had been taken, too.

TWO TERRIFIED neophytes came out of hiding to tell Juarez that a number of their people had been taken by the invaders, as well. Then they led the don to Father Amoros' hiding place. The friar was suffering from exposure and cold, but otherwise unharmed. He was taken to Saucelito and from there by Indian balsa to San Francisco.

Told that the hostile Indians had headed north with their captives, Juarez and his soldiers, joined by a handful from San Rafael and a couple of Indian scouts, took up the pursuit. A scout sighted the foe at the lagoon southwest of where Petaluma now stands, but he was seen as well. The angry Indians rushed toward the scout, who wheeled his horse to flee, only to have the animal become mired in the mud.

On foot, the scout managed to make it back to the Juarez camp.

WHEN THE enemy took shelter in the willows, Juarez ordered them to surrender. The hostile Indians sent back word they would not emerge from the willows until the sun had risen. Juarez suspected trickery. He set up camp some 1,000 yards away and sent men out to patrol the area.

When the new day dawned, Juarez and his men entered the willow thickets. But the Indians had slipped way. Again Juarez and his party took up the trail.

It was mid-day when they saw the hostile band going to a rancheria. The Juarez party fired on the enemy, who scrambled for shelter. The captured neophytes from the Mission San Rafael ran to their rescuers, bringing with them much of their captors' plunder.

JUAREZ CONTINUED the hot pursuit, and another skirmish occurred in thick underbrush. In the fighting an Indian arrow struck Juarez in the chest. Only his vest of seven thicknesses of rawhide prevented the arrow from piercing his heart. As it was, he suffered a deep chest wound, while another arrow hit him in the leg. He was dragged back to a clearing where the friendly Indians dressed his wounds and treated him with medicinal herbs.

With their leader out of the fight, most of the soldiers returned to San Rafael and helped the mission Indians in repairing the damage done by the invaders. Juarez had sent one of his men to the Presidio in San Francisco to report the situation, then he went on to Sonoma with a few of his soldiers.

A small band of soldiers set out from the Presidio to resume the battle with the hostile Indians. Again they were unsuccessful. Heavy losses forced them ultimately to admit defeat.

ROY JUAREZ spent much of his boyhood with his grandfather, who was the grantee of Tulcany Rancho in the Napa Valley where he died in 1883. There the boy Roy Juarez used to listen to the true adventure stories of his grandfather. And later these were all to be verified by the historian Hubert Howe Bancroft.

With calm restored in San Rafael, Father Amoros returned to his work and labored until he became seriously ill. His long-time friend, Fr. Buenaventura Fortuni, came from Mission San Jose to care for him.

Miss Twomey wrote: "Padre Fortuni . . . laid him (Father Amoros) to rest in the church of San Rafael July 16, 1832. Only good was ever spoken of Padre Amoros, from highest to lowest, says Bancroft, and at his burial his sorrowing friend declared to the assemblage that here was a real saint gone to his reward."

FATHER AMOROS, thus, was spared the sorrow of witnessing the decline of the Franciscan mission chain in California.

Mexico had achieved her independence from Spain and imposed a decree of secularization.

In his book, Fr. Francis F. McCarthy discusses another aspect of the mission crisis: "Fr. Narciso Duran was re-elected president of the missions in California in 1831. At that time the College of San Fernando in Mexico was in a dying condition, due to the fact that the Spanish seminarians and priests no longer crossed the seas to enroll in it. . . . It now found itself unable to supply California with a sufficient number of missionaries . . . to staff the 21 Franciscan missions."

THE MEXICAN government arranged for the Mexican Franciscan fathers of the College of Nuestra Senora de Guadalupe near Zacateccas to share the responsibility for the California missionary field with the Fathers of the College of San Fernando. The agreement provided for the new missionaries, the Zacateccans, to take over the pastorate of the 10 northern missions from Soledad to Sonoma.

Fr. Jose Quijas, a Zacateccan, was placed in charge of the Mission San Rafael Arcangel and the Mission San Francisco Solano in 1834.

Miss Twomey wrote: "Gen. Mariano G. Vallejo and his friar (Father Quijas) were at odds for years . . . Vallejo's chief quarrel with Padre Quijas was that while the prosperous mission at Sonoma paid the munificent salary of $1,500 to the padre, that minister preferred to live at the mission of San Rafael.

"IT SEEMS Padre Quijas quarreled at Sonoma with the majordomo, Sgt. Antonio Ortega, and also with Vallejo for refusing him supplies, and wrote of this matter to the governor. He also declared Ortega to be an unworthy sort generally and said in his letter he would not return to Sonoma unless Ortega was removed."

When the governor wrote Vallejo about the matter, the latter replied that Father Quijas' $1,500 salary was excessive and could be used to purchase supplies.

Bancroft tells us that while Padre Quijas might not have been as saintly as his two predecessors, he was nevertheless a man of "resolute and fearless" character, as well as great physical strength:

Bancroft quotes Governor Alvarado as describing the padre thusly:

"HE EXCELLED in oratorical power, and being no hypocrite, did not hestitate to inveigh from the pulpit what seemed to him immoral, whether the offender was grandee or churl.

"Kind-hearted as well as strong-minded, he was often found on the side of the weak. . .

In taking the habit of his order there clung to him characteristics of his youth when he had earned his living as a muleteer.

"He had five trains of pack mules and carried goods to Santa Fe, bringing back to Mexico beeves and sheep. He fell in love with a girl in Santa Fe who jilted him, and he became a friar."

PADRE QUIJAS retired in 1844 and returned to Mexico where he died.

The buildings in San Rafael were already in a state of decay. Eugene Duflot de Mofras in an 1841 visit noted their sad condition.

In 1846 John C. Fremont and his men encamped at the mission. After that it served as secular headquarters for the occupying United States forces, until California was admitted to the Union in 1850 with Marin among the original 27 counties.

For a time the mission buildings were occupied by county officials, but they moved to an adobe built by Don Timoteo Murphy.

THE MISSION buildings, grounds and orchards continued to deterioriate. In 1861, James Byers, a carpenter, bought the ruins of the mission. The late Mrs. George Boyd wrote: "At that time lumber was extremely dear, costing $200 a thousand, and Byers tore down what remained of the building for the sound, old hand-hewn timbers in the roof and foundation."

Still, the mission site retained much of the atmosphere of earlier times.

A writer after a visit in 1915 noted that "in the midst of a garden of magnolias and palms, apricots and orange trees, fragrant beds of roses, lilies and violets, and glowing banks of geraniums, a Catholic Church lifts its cross-tipped spire, and holds an open door to the devout."

THE VISITOR, obviously a non-Catholic, concluded: "Although my worshiping of God is after the way which Rome calls heresy, I hoped it was not an intrusion to step inside and bow my spirit for a moment in silent prayer."

The continuation of this same feeling for the site which had played such a major role in Marin County history was one of the important factors in the determination to rebuild the mission.

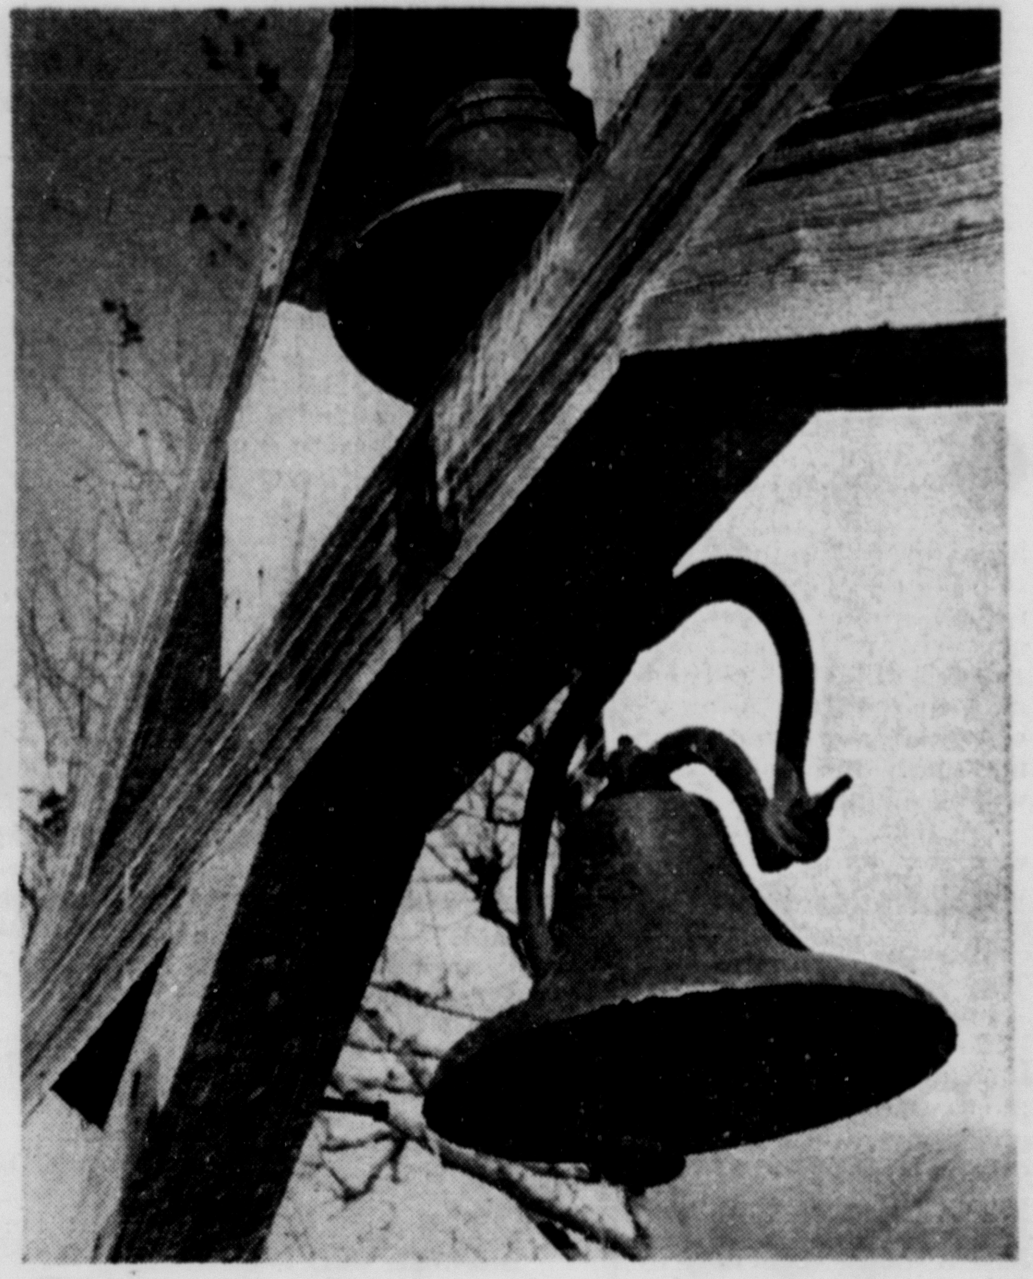
It was at the instigation of the Marin County Historical Society that San Rafael Mayor William S. Nock in March of 1945 named a committee headed by the late George H. Harlan Sr. to spearhead the project.

WITH CITY AID and financial assistance from the Hearst Foundation, the mission building reappeared on the site, drawn by architect Arnold Constable of Sausalito exactly as it had appeared in the early 19th Century.

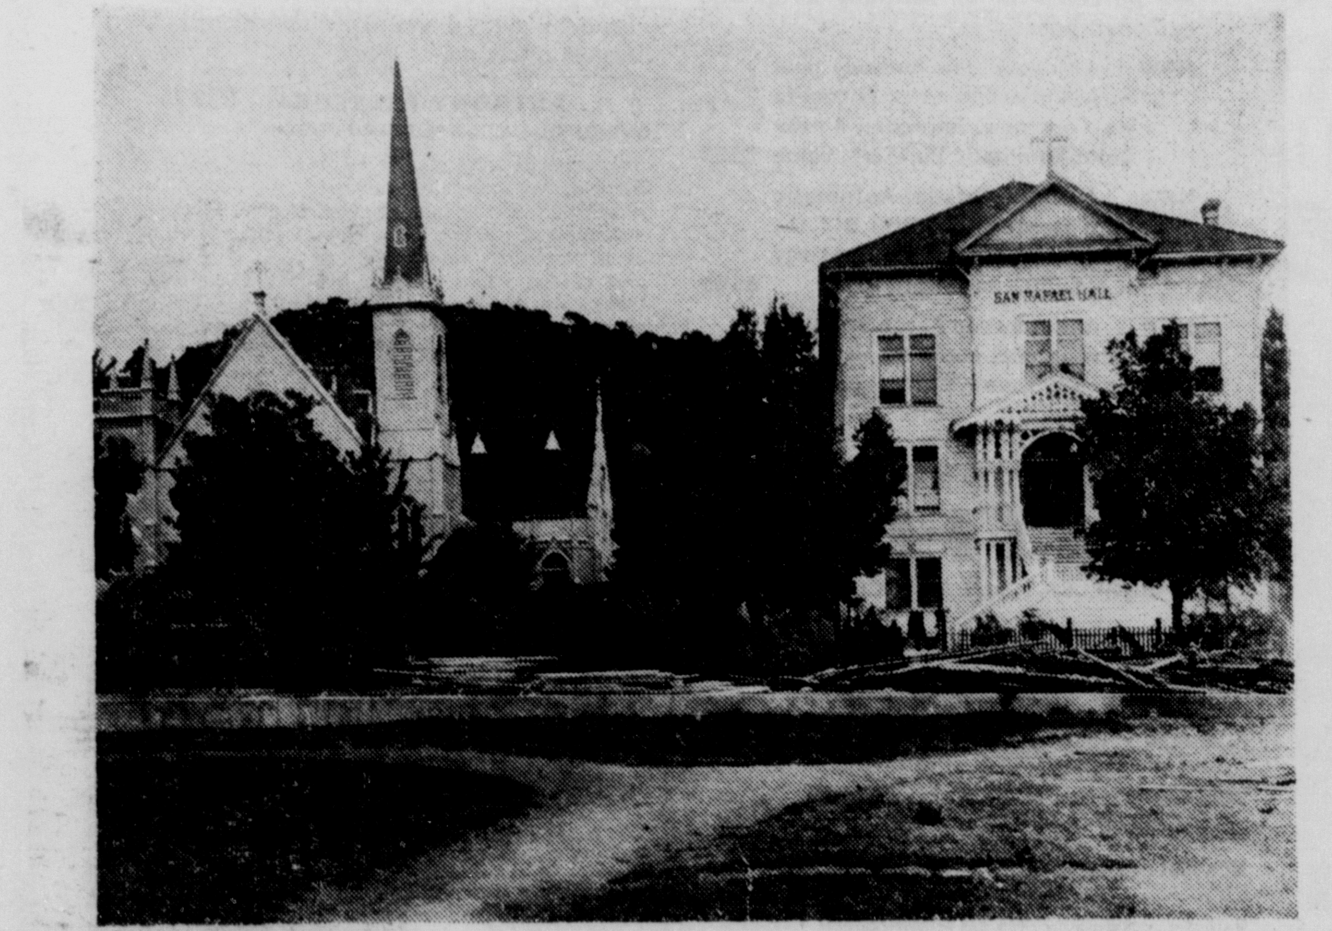
It was dedicated in 1949, and the Independent-Journal noted editorially that the resurrected mission would stand not only as a prime tourist attraction, but as a source of inspiration and of courage for the many Marinites who would pass it daily.

"For," said the editorial, "in the re-erection of the mission, something more than an historic building is recalled. An historic spirit is brought into our lives, and this, in the end, may be the greater achievement."

It is in recognition of that spirit that Marin County and its guests have this week been observing the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Mission San Rafael Arcangel.



HELPING TO tie the rebuilt Mission San Rafael Arcangel building to the original edifice that played such an important role in Marin County history is this set of bells that were sounded by the Franciscan fathers to summon their Indian neophytes. The bells hang on a rack in front of the restored mission.



IN THE EARLY 1900s, the Mission San Rafael Arcangel had vanished. But the original St. Raphael's Catholic Church and the parish hall stood on the grounds. The church was destroyed by fire and the hall was later razed. St. Raphael's Parochial School now occupies the site.

THE REBUILT MISSION San Rafael Arcangel is more than just a shell of a building. Inside, is this chapel designed in mission style. The mission thus continues to perform its historic role as a place of worship for the community. Fr. Edward I. Kennedy, pastor, discusses with a nun and four children from St. Raphael's Parochial School the history of the landmark.

On The Stereo Scene

The Happy Sound Of The Spoons

By JOHN SUNIER

The Lovin' Spoonful are (is?) among the leaders of the big beat music scene in this country today.

Their unique "sound" is based on a foundation of country blues, hillbilly, jug band and genuine folk music, but its wonderful good-time flavor is directly attributable to the warm and wacky personalities of its four members.

John Sebastian, the leader and originator of the group, is the son of the famous classical harmonica virtuoso of the same name. Younger John got his amazing skill on the mouth harp at his dad's knee and played with several jug band groups before forming the Spoonful.

A handful of five LPs by the Spoonful have so far been released and they're all excellent; full of an infectious good fun and sense of humor. First was "Do You Believe in Magic?" (Kama Sutra Stereo KLPS-8050), which launched not only the title tune into the Top 30 but also "Did You Ever Have to Make Up Your Mind?" on the same disc.

The group was sort of hunting for its own individual sound and on this record hadn't quite found it yet.

Next came "Daydream" (Kama Sutra Stereo KLPS-8051), which is this writer's personal favorite of all five LPs. The relaxed, swinging nostalgia of the title tune is too much!

Most of the tunes are written by John Sebastian and on this disc he has nothing but winners. "It's Not Time Now," "Warm Baby," and the tongue-in-cheek "Let the Boy Rock and Roll" are the best of the best. Guitarist Zal Yanovsky plays quite well here, and bass guitarist Steve Boone sometimes solos on piano.

The Woody Allen movie, "What's Up, Tiger Lily?," which played in this area, boasts a Spoonful sound track on Kama Sutra Stereo KLPS-8053.

Allen took a Japanese James Bondish thriller and threw out the entire soundtrack, replacing it with zany cracks and repartee in English plus a finger-snappin' sound track by John, Joe, Steve and Zal. A variety of instruments and special effects are used. The swingin' result sounds like few movie albums you've ever heard.

Best tunes seem to be "Respoken," and an encore from their first LP, "Fishin' Blues." The Spoonful, by the way, appear in person during some segments of the Woody Allen flick.

"Hums of the Lovin' Spoonful" (Kama Sutra Stereo KLPS-8054) was the group's fourth album and presented such new hits as "Summer in the City," "Rain on the Roof," and "Nashville Cats."

The sound seems to be getting a bit more country and westernish, but with a very definite difference which is hard to pin down. The arrangements are getting more complex and varied, similar to the development of the Beatles. Clarinet and banjo are added on some tunes, and even a juice harp played by San Francisco's Larry Hankin of The Committee.

The fifth Spoonful LP, "Best of . . . ," contains hits from all their previous albums, and offers a good introduction to the group.

This Southern California-based group is way, way out.

Taking a cue from Bob Dylan, they have assembled a two-disc album, on which some tracks run as long as 12 minutes, 17 seconds. Unfortunately, the five men making up The Mothers of Invention lack the artistry and taste of Dylan, though they may be out to deflate the same sacred cows and to point out that the same emperors are unclothed.

The first two sides are fairly interesting and rocking beat music, some with lyrics which cause a little trouble on the radio waves. A whole crowd of hangers-on evidently perform with the MOI, or at least get pictures in the album.

A long list of "people who have contributed to make our music what it is" is included in the notes. They range all the way from Molly Bee to Edgar Varese. The latter French avant-garde composer is imitated quite cleverly in "Help I'm a Rock," but the other two sections of this long track have zero inspiration. The final "Return of the Son of Monster Magnet" is a much too long percussion free-for-all.

This writer's impression is that the MOI try a little too hard to be freaky. But listen (if you dare!) and decide for yourself.

RECORDING stars The Lovin' Spoonful with fivealbums behind them continue to rate right at the top among the current crop of rock 'n' roll groups, with a lighthearted approach and a distinctive sound all their own. John Sebastian, their leader, is the son of the harmonica virtuoso of the same name, and has a solid classical background of his own.

HOME FURNISHINGS CAN BE BEAUTIFUL.—BUT! they can add more atmosphere to the home than beauty. Take the new SCOTT STEREO CONSOLES for instance, there you have lovely furniture with some of the finest and most natural stereo sound you may have ever heard. Your guests will undoubtedly fall in love with the furniture when they see it; but, when they hear the sound they will be spellbound.

For many years, the only way to achieve natural vibrant sound was by using components in separate cabinets or built into a wall. The serious obstacle was acoustic feedback, caused by low frequency vibrations from the speakers vibrating the turntable and the phonograph arm, causing an uncontrollable howl. The usual cure in the console business was to reduce the bass response, generally by eliminating proper speaker baffling and by using cheap speakers with a stiff suspension. SCOTT engineers have developed and patented a method to overcome this problem, called Isomount. This feature renders the turntable immune to high level low-frequency bass tones emanating from the loudspeakers in the same cabinet, thus providing the world's most nearly perfect stereo console, capable of faithfully reproducing every tone from the softest whisper to the cathedral organ's deepest fortissimo.

The Scott consoles are a component system mounted in exquisitely designed furniture. Each item in the console is a gem in itself. The FM and AM tuner sections are designed with the latest Field Effect transistors (another Scott innovation). Integrated space-age circuitry is used. Low distortion, low hum, full range transistorized amplifiers are incorporated into each console to match the speaker systems. The finest record changers are used, Garrards and Duals.

And to make each console a superb musical instrument, Scott speaker systems are built on the "air-suspension" principle, necessary for full reproduction of deep bass.

The consoles themselves are available in Mediterranean, English, Venetian, Classic, Far East, and Contemporary. Visit us for a demonstration.

POET'S CORNER

ARE YOU TELLING ME?

That red ball;
That star,
That tree . . .
Where are they taking me?
I hope, not too far . . .
Just enough so I can be free.
And that light . . .
Yes, that eternal light
That helps my eyes to see
In the day or night . . .
What are they doing?
Where am I going?
Are you my fate . . .
Are you my fate . . .
Or . . . or,
Is it already too late . . .
Are you trying
To tell me I have no longer to wait?
Clouds . . .
Are you crying . . .
Crying because, for me, it is too late?

SAN ANSELMO — DAN KEENER

tled more extensively to check any Russian advance into the interior or south. So he ordered Padre Altimira to proceed with the founding of a new Mission San Francisco de Asis.

BUT BY THE time the new mission in Sonoma County was established, the historian wrote, agreat deal of correspondence had taken place among Governor Arguello, Acting Padre Prefect Sarria and Padre Altimira. The result was a compromise in which the new Mission San Francisco Solano became a mission of regular standing with Padre Altimira as its minister, but the missions in San Francisco and San Rafael were not surpressed.

The new mission to the north was dedicated July 4, 1823.

Having survived this close call, the Mission San Rafael Arcangel enjoyed a period of prosperity. While the mission population in 1828 as 1,140, there were many other Christianized Indians on the rancherias around San Rafael, the valleys to the west, along San Pablo Bay and at Olompali.

NO LONGER an asistencia, it was now entirely independent of the mission on Dolores Creek across the bay.

Harvests were plentiful. The adobe homes in which the neophytes lived stretched from the mission east to what is now Lincoln Avenue and across what is now the courthouse property.

The mission and surrounding countryside of 1824 were described by visiting Russian navigator, scientist and trader Otto von Kotezebue in his book:

"THE LANDING place is a good nautical mile distant from the mission of San Rafael. A number of horses belonging to it were grazing in a beautiful pasture near the shore, in perfect harmony with a herd of small deer, which are very numerous in this country. Our dragoons, not wishing to walk to the mission, took their lassoes and soon caught as many horses as they needed. Saddles we had brought with us, and away we galloped over the level ground, between the oaks, to the mission, where we were received by the only ecclesiastic, under whose management it is.

"The site of the mission seems to be much better chosen than the so much vaunted Santa Clara. A range of lofty hills protect from the bleak north winds; but beyond this bulwark dwell, as the monk informed us, the Indian braves who had already once surprised the mission and burned the building belonging to it, and against whom he was obliged to be continually on his guard.

"San Rafael appears, in fact, like an advance post of the other missions.

"THE SIX dragoons were ready for action at the slightest alarm. In the night, I found two sentinels fully equipped, posted in the direction of the hills. Each of them had made a fire and every 10 minutes they rang a bell, suspended between two posts, probably as proof of their vigilance. And they were answered every time by the bark of the small foxlike wolves, which prowl about the mission.

"That there is not much to be feared from other enemies is evident from the small number of the military and the total neglect of all other means of defense, for the mission is absolutely unenclosed. . . .

"The first rays of the sun found us on horseback and soon after we left the mission. Our guide took a northwest direction, which led us farther inland.

"WE WERE struck by the even ground, studded with umbrageous trees (evidently the California laurels which cast a dense shade). They look like plantations, made and carefully kept in order by some tasteful gardener. How easily might this land be brought into tillage for it contains no stones, and how fertile it must be, as it produces such luxuriant herbiage!"

The long-feared major Indian attack came finally in 1829.

On a February night, members of a surveying party and a few accompanying soldiers were staying at the mission. Weary from tramping over rough terrain, they were sleeping soundly. Asleep, too, was Father Amoros in his cell-like room.

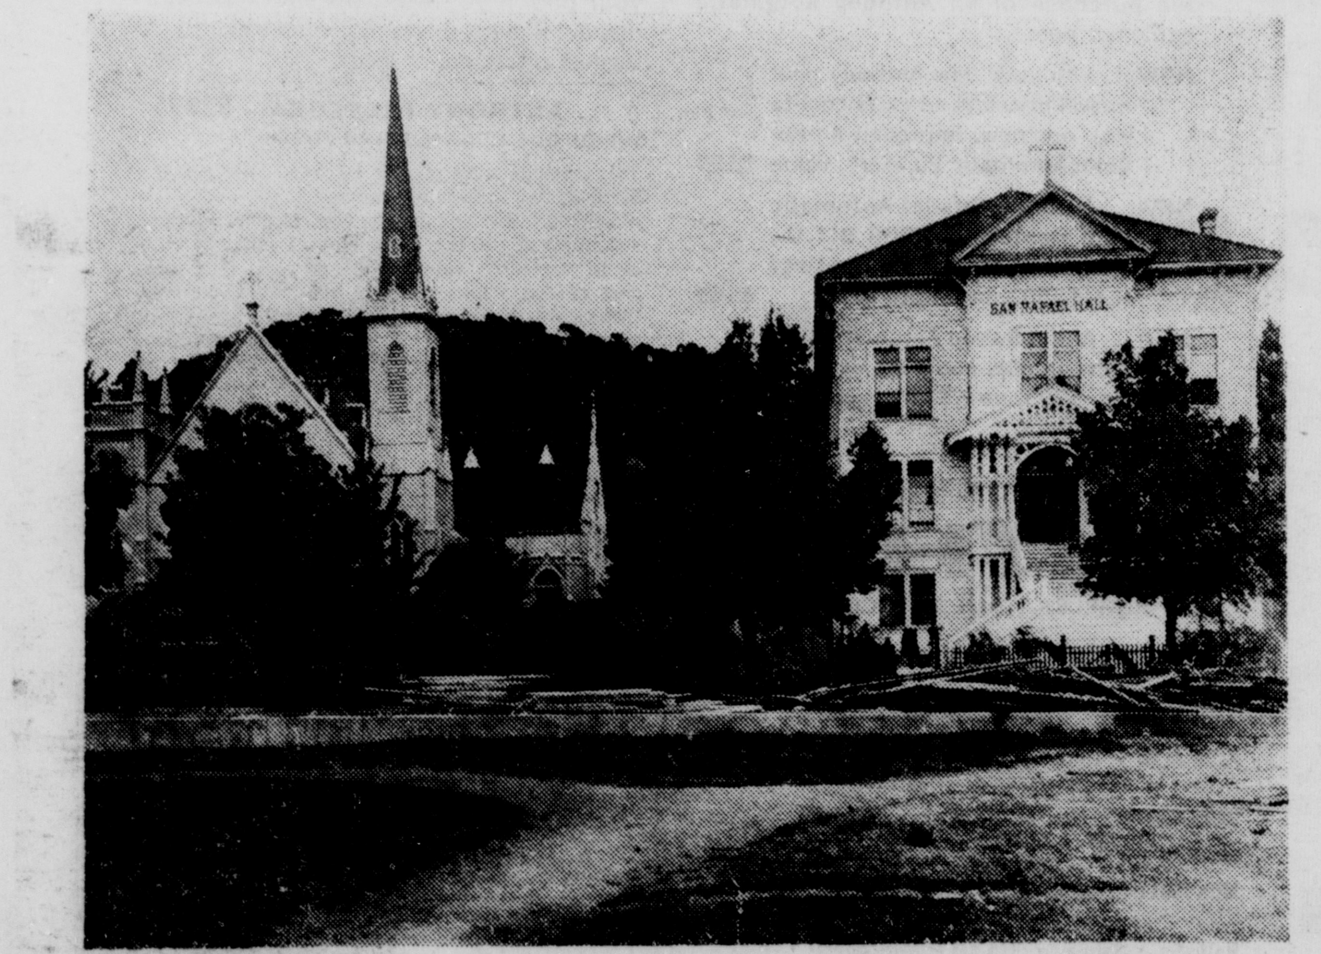
OUT OF THE darkness crept lithe figures. Suddenly arrows whizzed at the heads of sentries. Shouting war cries, the Indians swarmed in. The sleep-fogged soldiers opened fire with their muzzle-loaders, but the flashes from their guns only made them easy targets for the Indians.

The raiders rushed into the buildings hunting for Father Amoros whom they wanted to kill. They hated him because he had bravely visited outlying rancherias to make friends with less hostile Indians.

The mission neophytes now formed a human wall around their beloved padre and guided him to the marsh where they hid him in the tules.

THIS ACCOUNT came from the late Roy L. Juarez, who had a summer home in Inverness and who was the grandson of Don Cayetano Juarez, a native Californian of Spanish descent who was in 1829 an army officer at the San Francisco Presidio.

When an Indian runner, near exhaustion, reached Sonoma with word of the attack on Mission San Rafael and the desperate plight of the missionary there, Don Juarez was there with a patrol party of five soldiers.



IN THE EARLY 1900s, the Mission San Rafael Arcangel had vanished. But the original St. Raphael's Catholic Church and the parish hall stood on the grounds. The church was destroyed by fire and the hall was later razed. St. Raphael's Parochial School now occupies the site.

Immediately Juarez and his men mounted horses and galloped to San Rafael. They found the mission buildings deserted and destruction everywhere. Crops had been ruined, grain stolen, sacred vessels in the simple chapel broken. Horses had been taken, too.

TWO TERRIFIED neophytes came out of hiding to tell Juarez that a number of their people had been taken by the invaders, as well. Then they led the don to Father Amoros' hiding place. The friar was suffering from exposure and cold, but otherwise unharmed. He was taken to Saucelito and from there by Indian balsa to San Francisco.

Told that the hostile Indians had headed north with their captives, Juarez and his soldiers, joined by a handful from San Rafael and a couple of Indian scouts, took up the pursuit. A scout sighted the foe at the lagoon southwest of where Petaluma now stands, but he was seen as well. The angry Indians rushed toward the scout, who wheeled his horse to flee, only to have the animal become mired in the mud.

On foot, the scout managed to make it back to the Juarez camp.

WHEN THE enemy took shelter in the willows, Juarez ordered them to surrender. The hostile Indians sent back word they would not emerge from the willows until the sun had risen. Juarez suspected trickery. He set up camp some 1,000 yards away and sent men out to patrol the area.

When the new day dawned, Juarez and his men entered the willow thickets. But the Indians had slipped way. Again Juarez and his party took up the trail.

It was mid-day when they saw the hostile band going to a rancheria. The Juarez party fired on the enemy, who scrambled for shelter. The captured neophytes from the Mission San Rafael ran to their rescuers, bringing with them much of their captors' plunder.

JUAREZ CONTINUED the hot pursuit, and another skirmish occurred in thick underbrush. In the fighting an Indian arrow struck Juarez in the chest. Only his vest of seven thicknesses of rawhide prevented the arrow from piercing his heart. As it was, he suffered a deep chest wound, while another arrow hit him in the leg. He was dragged back to a clearing where the friendly Indians dressed his wounds and treated him with medicinal herbs.

With their leader out of the fight, most of the soldiers returned to San Rafael and helped the mission Indians in repairing the damage done by the invaders. Juarez had sent one of his men to the Presidio in San Francisco to report the situation, then he went on to Sonoma with a few of his soldiers.

A small band of soldiers set out from the Presidio to resume the battle with the hostile Indians. Again they were unsuccessful. Heavy losses forced them ultimately to admit defeat.

ROY JUAREZ spent much of his boyhood with his grandfather, who was the grantee of Tulcany Rancho in the Napa Valley where he died in 1883. There the boy Roy Juarez used to listen to the true adventure stories of his grandfather. And later these were all to be verified by the historian Hubert Howe Bancroft.

With calm restored in San Rafael, Father Amoros returned to his work and labored until he became seriously ill. His longtime friend, Fr. Buenaventura Fortuni, came from Mission San Jose to care for him.

Miss Twomey wrote: "Padre Fortuni . . . laid him (Father Amoros) to rest in the church of San Rafael July 16, 1832. Only good was ever spoken of Padre Amoros, from highest to lowest, says Bancroft, and at his burial his sorrowing friend declared to the assemblage that here was a real saint gone to his reward."

FATHER AMOROS, thus, was spared the sorrow of witnessing the decline of the Franciscan mission chain in California.

In his book, Fr. Francis F. McCarthy discusses another aspect of the mission crisis: "Fr. Narciso Duran was reelected president of the missions in California in 1831. At that time the College of San Fernando in Mexico was in a dying condition, due to the fact that the Spanish seminarians and priests no longer crossed the seas to enroll in it. . . . It now found itself unable to supply California with a sufficient number of missionaries . . . to staff the 21 Franciscan missions."

THE MEXICAN government arranged for the Mexican Franciscan fathers of the College of Nuestra Senora de Guadalupe near Zacateccas to share the responsibility for the California missionary field with the Fathers of the College of San Fernando. The agreement provided for the new missionaries, the Zacateccans, to take over the pastorate of the 10 northern missions from Soledad to Sonoma.

Fr. Jose Quijas, a Zacateccan, was placed in charge of the Mission San Rafael Arcangel and the Mission San Francisco Solano in 1834.

Miss Twomey wrote: "Gen. Mariano G. Vallejo and his friar (Father Quijas) were at odds for years . . . Vallejo's chief quarrel with Padre Quijas was that while the prosperous mission at Sonoma paid the munificent salary of $1,500 to the padre, that minister preferred to live at the mission of San Rafael.

"IT SEEMS Padre Quijas quarreled at Sonoma with the majordomo, Sgt. Antonio Ortega, and also with Vallejo for refusing him supplies, and wrote of this matter to the governor. He also declared Ortega to be an unworthy sort generally and said in his letter he would not return to Sonoma unless Ortega was removed."

When the governor wrote Vallejo about the matter, the latter replied that Father Quijas' $1,500 salary was excessive and could be used to purchase supplies.

Bancroft tells us that while Padre Quijas might not have been as saintly as his two predecessors, he was nevertheless a man of "resolute and fearless" character, as well as great physical strength:

Bancroft quotes Governor Alvarado as describing the padre thusly:

"HE EXCELLED in oratorical power, and being no hypocrite, did not hestitate to inveigh from the pulpit what seemed to him immoral, whether the offender was grandee or churl.

"Kind-hearted as well as strong-minded, he was often found on the side of the weak. . . In taking the habit of his order there clung to him characteristics of his youth when he had earned his living as a muleteer.

"He had five trains of pack mules and carried goods to Santa Fe, bringing back to Mexico beeves and sheep. He fell in love with a girl in Santa Fe who jilted him, and he became a friar."

PADRE QUIJAS retired in 1844 and returned to Mexico where he died.

The buildings in San Rafael were already in a state of decay. Eugene Duflot de Mofras in an 1841 visit noted their sad condition.

In 1846 John C. Fremont and his men encamped at the mission. After that it served as secular headquarters for the occupying United States forces, until California was admitted to the Union in 1850 with Marin among the original 27 counties.

For a time the mission buildings were occupied by county officials, but they moved to an adobe built by Don Timoteo Murphy.

THE MISSION buildings, grounds and orchards continued to deterioriate. In 1861, James Byers, a carpenter, bought the ruins of the mission. The late Mrs. George Boyd wrote: "At that time lumber was extremely dear, costing $200 a thousand, and Byers tore down what remained of the building for the sound, old hand-hewn timbers in the roof and foundation."

Still, the mission site retained much of the atmosphere of earlier times.

A writer after a visit in 1915 noted that "in the midst of a garden of magnolias and palms, apricots and orange trees, fragrant beds of roses, lilies and violets, and glowing banks of geraniums, a Catholic Church lifts its cross-tipped spire, and holds an open door to the devout."

THE VISITOR, obviously a non-Catholic, concluded: "Although my worshiping of God is after the way which Rome calls heresy, I hoped it was not an intrusion to step inside and bow my spirit for a moment in silent prayer."

The continuation of this same feeling for the site which had played such a major role in Marin County history was one of the important factors in the determination to rebuild the mission.

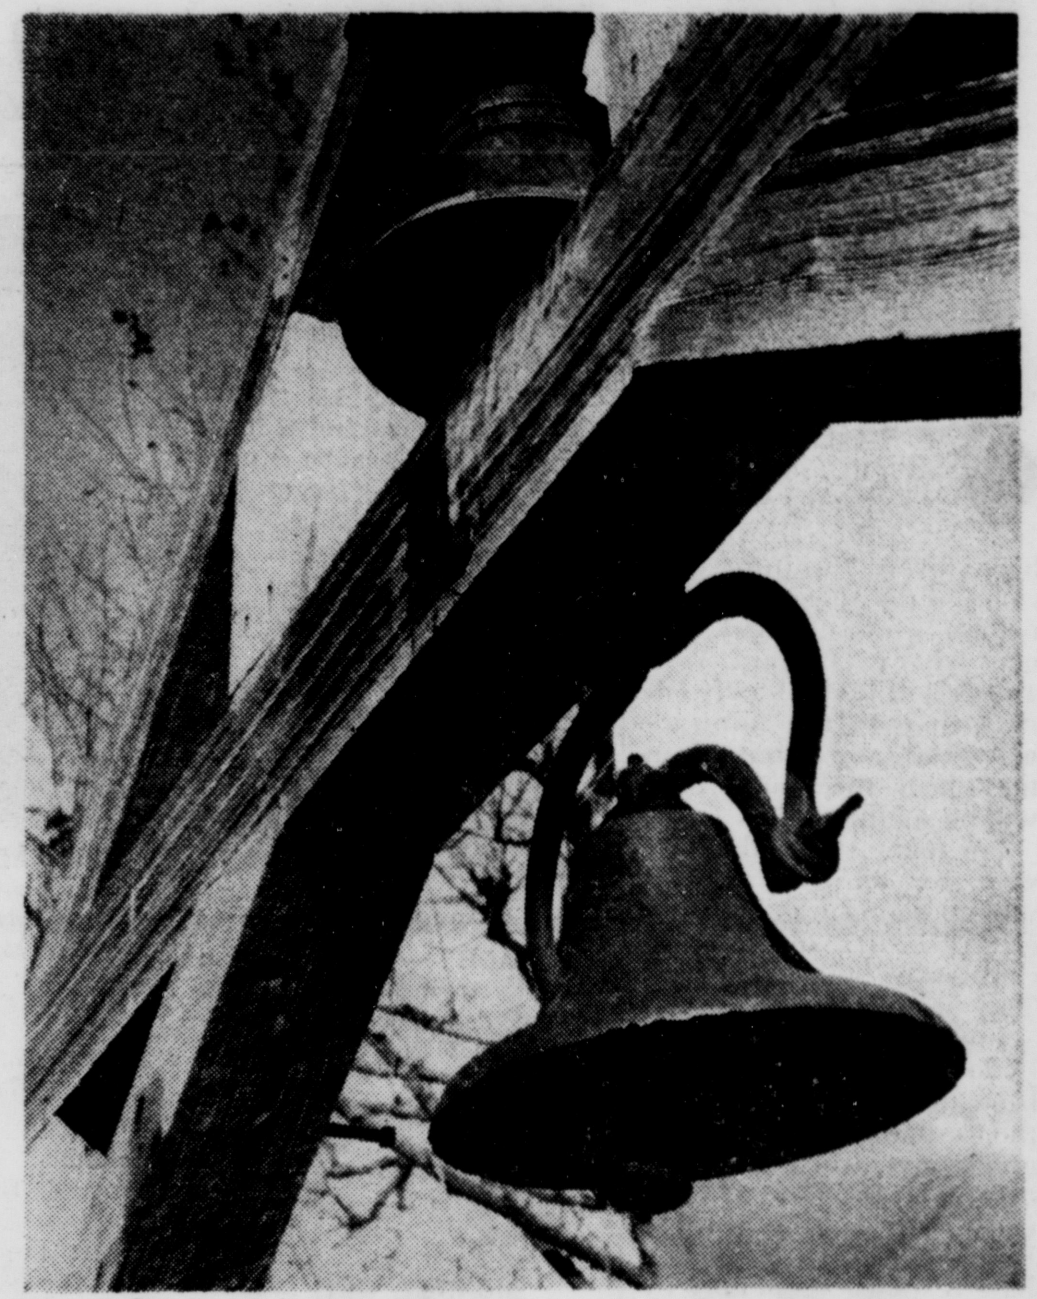
It was at the instigation of the Marin County Historical Society that San Rafael Mayor William S. Nock in March of 1945 named a committee headed by the late George H. Harlan Sr. to spearhead the project.

WITH CITY AID and financial assistance from the Hearst Foundation, the mission building reappeared on the site, drawn by architect Arnold Constable of Sausalito exactly as it had appeared in the early 19th Century.

It was dedicated in 1949, and the Independent-Journal noted editorially that the resurrected mission would stand not only as a prime tourist attraction, but as a source of inspiration and of courage for the many Marinites who would pass it daily.

"For," said the editorial, "in the re-erection of the mission, something more than an historic building is recalled. An historic spirit is brought into our lives, and this, in the end, may be the greater achievement."

It is in recognition of that spirit that Marin County and its guests have this week been observing the 150th anniversary of the founding of the Mission San Rafael Arcangel.



HELPING TO tie the rebuilt Mission San Rafael Arcangel building to the original edifice that played such an important role in Marin County history is this set of bells that were sounded by the Franciscan fathers to summon their Indian neophytes. The bells hang on a rack in front of the restored mission.

THE REBUILT MISSION San Rafael Arcangel is more than just a shell of a building. Inside, is this chapel designed in mission style. The mission thus continues to perform its historic role as a place of worship for the community. Fr. Edward I. Kennedy, pastor, discusses with a nun and four children from St. Raphael's Parochial School the history of the landmark.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

RECORDING stars The Lovin' Spoonful with fiveal-bums behind them continue to rate right at the top among the current crop of rock 'n' roll groups, with a lighthearted approach and a distinctive sound all their own. John Sebastian, their leader, is the son of the harmonica virtuoso of the same name, and has a solid classical background of his own.

The Lovin' Spoonful are (is?) among the leaders of the big beat music scene in this country today.

Their unique "sound" is based on a foundation of country blues, hillbilly, jug band and genuine folk music, but its wonderful good-time flavor is directly attributable to the warm and wacky personalities of its four members.

John Sebastian, the leader and originator of the group, is the son of the famous classical harmonica virtuoso of the same name. Younger John got his amazing skill on the mouth harp at his dad's knee and played with several jug band groups before forming the Spoonful.

A handful of five LPs by the Spoonful have so far been released and they're all excellent; full of an infectious good fun and sense of humor. First was "Do You Believe in Magic?" (Kama Sutra Stereo KLPS-8050), which launched not only the title tune into the Top 30 but also "Did You Ever Have to Make Up Your Mind?" on the same disc.

The group was sort of hunting for its own individual sound and on this record hadn't quite found it yet.

Next came "Daydream" (Kama Sutra Stereo KLPS-8051), which is this writer's personal favorite of all five LPs. The relaxed, swinging nostalgia of the title tune is too much!

Most of the tunes are written by John Sebastian and on this disc he has nothing but winners. "It's Not Time Now," "Warm Baby," and the tongue-in-cheek "Let the Boy Rock and Roll" are the best of the best. Guitarist Zal Yanovsky plays quite well here, and bass guitarist Steve Boone sometimes solos on piano.

The Woody Allen movie, "What's Up, Tiger Lily?," which played in this area, boasts a Spoonful sound track on Kama Sutra Stereo KLPS-8053.

Allen took a Japanese James Bondish thriller and threw out the entire soundtrack, replacing it with zany cracks and repartee in English plus a finger-snappin' sound track by John, Joe, Steve and Zal. A variety of instruments and special effects are used. The swingin' result sounds like few movie albums you've ever heard.

Best tunes seem to be "Respoken," and an encore from their first LP, "Fishin' Blues." The Spoonful, by the way, appear in person during some segments of the Woody Allen flick.

"Hums of the Lovin' Spoonful" (Kama Sutra Stereo KLPS-8054) was the group's fourth album and presented such new hits as "Summer in the City," "Rain on the Roof," and "Nashville Cats."

The sound seems to be getting a bit more country and westernish, but with a very definite difference which is hard to pin down. The arrangements are getting more complex and varied, similar to the development of the Beatles. Clarinet and banjo are added on some tunes, and even a juice harp played by San Francisco's Larry Hankin of The Committee.

The fifth Spoonful LP, "Best of . . . ," contains hits from all their previous albums, and offers a good introduction to the group.

This Southern California-based group is way, way out.

Taking a cue from Bob Dylan, they have assembled a two-disc album, on which some tracks run as long as 12 minutes, 17 seconds. Unfortunately, the five men making up The Mothers of Invention lack the artistry and taste of Dylan, though they may be out to deflate the same sacred cows and to point out that the same emperors are unclothed.

The first two sides are fairly interesting and rocking beat music, some with lyrics which cause a little trouble on the radio waves. A whole crowd of hangers-on evidently perform with the MOI, or at least get pictures in the album.

A long list of "people who have contributed to make our music what it is" is included in the notes. They range all the way from Molly Bee to Edgar Varese. The latter French avant-garde composer is imitated quite cleverly in "Help I'm a Rock," but the other two sections of this long track have zero inspiration. The final "Return of the Son of Monster Magnet" is a much too long percussion free-for-all.

This writer's impression is that the MOI try a little too hard to be freaky. But listen (if you dare!) and decide for yourself.

An Intimate Look At America's Controversial Man Of Letters

By DON KEOWN

ENTHUSIASM MAKES THE DIFFERENCE by Norman Vincent Peale, Prentice-Hall, 244 pages, $4.95.

NOWHERE MAN by Thomas Curley, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 347 pages, $5.95.

Into a small book, Michael Reck has packed a wealth of meaningful material about America's most controversial man of letters.

His "Ezra Pound: A Close-Up" offers:

1. A condensed and rather cursory biography of its subject.

2. Fascinating insight into Pound's complex character.

3. And an expert evaluation of the late poet's work.

Reck writes from two vantage points. He is a poet of considerable repute himself. And he has enjoyed an acquaintanceship of some intimacy with Pound in the latter's closing years, first at St. Elizabeth's Hospital where the poet was incarcerated as insane and under indictment for treason, and then in Rapallo, Italy, to which the failing Pound returned after his release.

The biography is brief, yet it underscores the stature Pound achieved among his literary peers. William Butler Yeats, Ernest Hemingway, T. S. Eliot, e. e. Cummings, William Carlos Williams, Archibald MacLeish, Richard Aldington, W. H. Auden, Ford Madox Ford, Robert Frost, Edith Hamilton, Marianne Moore, James Joyce, Wyndham Lewis, H. L. Mencken, Robert Lowell, George Bernard Shaw, George Santayana and Louis Zukofsky are among those encountered, and almost without exception, they admired Pound's work.

Underscored, too, sometimes angrily, is yet another example of how society sometimes mistreats its geniuses in the arts, in Pound's case, first with impoverishment, and finally with humiliation.

Pound's character has baffled many. He was an idealist who distrusted democracy and embraced fascism. He was an egotist who nevertheless devoted much of his energy to promoting the talents of others, particularly the young. He was capable of deep friendships, and of irrational hatreds. His verse spoke great truths, but his economic and political beliefs were immature and sometimes foolish.

Reck's analysis of Pound's poetry and particularly "The Cantos" is both provocative and persuasive. "The Cantos," he says, are not difficult because of style, there is no obscure symbolism, but rather because of their scope. Pound ranged widely and bothered not with points of reference for his readers.

Despite Pound's disavowal, Reck accepts Yeats' description of "The Cantos" as "a fugue." There is a musical, rather than oratorical, quality to the poetry, he points out, that enhances them when read aloud. Yet, Pound insisted, too, upon a precision and an economy of language. It was a virtuso combination few other writers have been able to achieve.

Reck discusses at some length, too, Pound's remarkable adaptations of Ernest Fenollosa's translations of Chinese poetry.

Reck's verdict is that America has treated Pound badly. Even now, pro-fascism and anti-Semitism seem ugly things, indeed. But, says Reck, Pound's brilliant poetry will be remembered and cherished by man long after his ill-considered political theorizing is forgotten. "The Cantos," not the ranting World War II broadcasts from Mussolini's police state, were the true measure of Ezra Pound's mind.

IN PERSON, Norman Vincent Peale must be insufferable.

In print, he is bearable — just barely.

In reading his books, one can at least take him in small doses. And you can sort of skip over a few of his seemingly endless citations of examples of those who have been saved from failure by turning to Norman Peale and/or Jesus Christ.

(Peale does not really confuse the two, although it sometimes seems so. Actually, there are distinct differences. In his books, for instance, Peale disdains pacifists, while Christ had some rather nice things to say about peacelovers and peacemakers. In fairness to Peale, however, he seems more bothered by the untidy beards that pacifists sometimes sport than by their opposition to war.)

Even after adopting defensive precautions in reading Peale, one seems inevitably to arrive at the conclusion that the high priest of positive thinking and upper middle class conformity dispenses more baloney than a North Beach sausage factory. Still if one chews carefully and exercises the taste buds, one discerns in his latest, "Enthusiasm Makes the Difference," that there are pieces of genuine red meat among all that gristle and fat.

This "enthusiasm," it develops, is a euphonism for Peale's old panacea, positive thinking. Having produced a shelf of books on the latter topic, he apparently felt some change was due, if only a different name for more of the same.

But he is undoubtedly right in his argument that enthusiasm, positive thinking, self-confidence, call it what you may, is the best path, excepting inheritance, to the kind of success he espouses with its financil security and social prestige.

Credit Dr. Peale then with a truism, although one he has made before. It is too bad, though, that he has to be so obnoxious while making it.

THOMAS CURLEY
A theme of despair

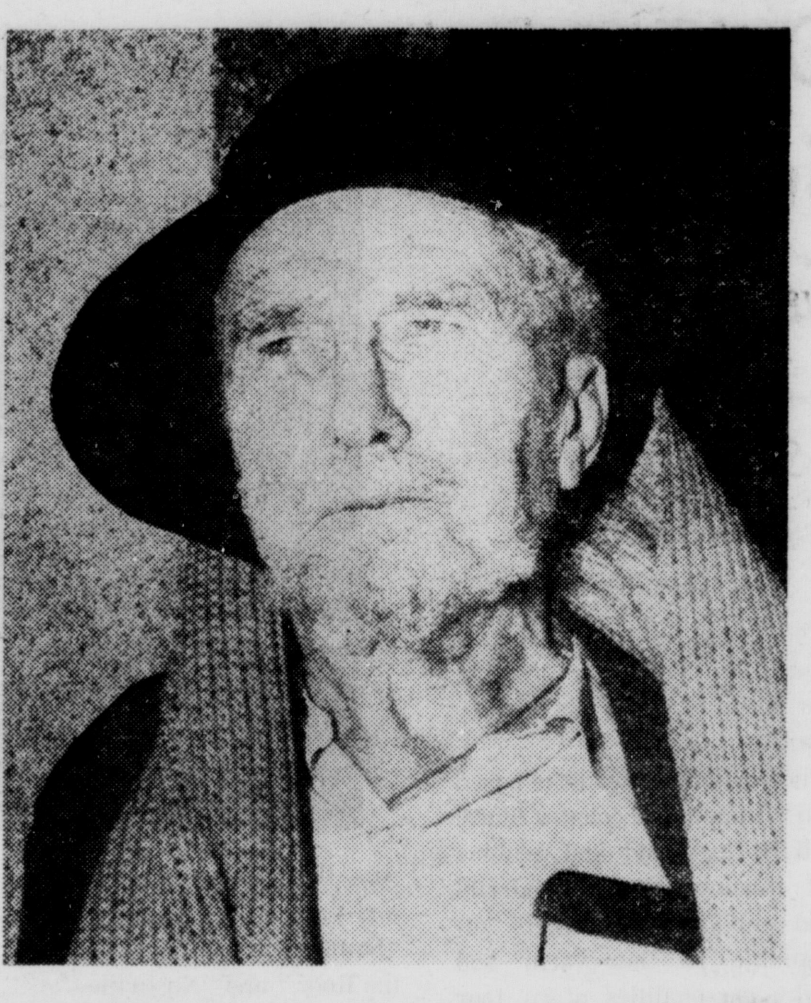
THE CHARACTERS in Thomas Curley's new novel, "Nowhere Man," are a curiously bloodless lot.

Since the theme of the novel is one of despair not hope, the inescapable restraints and frustrations that gnaw at one segment of American society, it could make acceptable reading even if the characters were distasteful or pitiable. But more than anything else, they are uninteresting. And that is fatal for the novel.

The social stratum about which Curley writes is one cross-section of New York's middle class, a group on the fringe of intellectualism.

It deals with the affair between Hamilton Norris, poet, teacher and widower, and Mary Monroe, restless school principal's wife pregnant by Norris. A complicating factor is Frank Harrington, novelist, roughneck, lecher, close friend to Norris but nursing an overpowering yen for Monroe. The Bohemian Harrington might have given the story an interesting and saving rebel personality, but he is more obnoxious than compelling. And like all the other characters in the story, he behaves like a jackass.

Perhaps Curley, whose earlier novels were well received, makes a point in underlining the tedium in the lives of these struggling pretenders to sophistication. But the chronicle of their love affairs, their fights, their rapes, their superficial philosophizing, their failures, turned us off early in the book. And there was nothing in the later going to rekindle our interest. The fault was not with Curley's writing, but with the listless story he chose to tell.



THE AGING POET Ezra Pound is the subject of a book, "Ezra Pound: A Close-Up," by Michael Reck, a close acquaintance, that is both biographical and analytical.

THE PAPERBACK booklet "Peace in the Middle East" ($1.50, New World Press) by M. T. Mehdi is offered as an Arab reply to Theodore Herzl's 1896 pamphlet, "The Jewish State," that foreshadowed the founding of Israel.

Mehdi advances the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations proposal of 1965, based upon the assumption that most Israeli Jews would welcome repatriation to other lands, if offered compensation for their land by the Arab governments. It is a highly debatable assumption.

Mehdi claims that Moslems, Christians and the remaining Jews could then make of Palestine something of a world religious center with all co-existing and cooperating peacefully. This, too, sounds unlikely in view of recent events.

Mehdi decries both "anti-Semitism" and "anti-Gentileism." His tone is more moderate than that of many Arab spokesmen and propagandists, but it is doubtful if the determined people of Israel are going to oblige him and leave the land for which they have toiled and fought so hard.

DODD, MEAD has added to its Great Illustrated Classics series John Bunyan's "The Pilgrim's Progress" with drawings by William Blake and biographical material by A. K. Adams, and William Shakespeare's "Henry VI, Parts I, II and III" with introduction by John Masefield and 16 pages of illustrations.

"OPPORTUNITIES in VISTA" is a fact booklet, available for 35 cents from the B'nai B'rith Vocational Service at 1640 Rhode Island Avenue, Northwest, Washington D.C., 20036. It covers the domestic volunteer program in much the same way an earlier B'nai B'rith work did the Peace Corps.

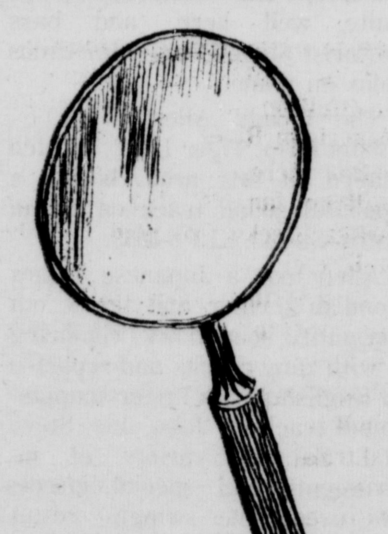
Author John Creasey turns out many, many stories, and many, many good ones, and this is no exception. This two-continent mystery shows he knows both his London and his Boston, something about old manor houses, and has his same steady grip on story-telling.

An old manor house soon to be demolished because it is in the way of progress is purchased by John Mannering, the baron, owner of a famous antique shop in London. He wants to move the house to Boston and open a branch in it. Eventually he does, but when he's in the process the owner disappears, a builder is found dead with a crushed skull, and there's talk Mannering is on to a secret cache of jewels.



Tragedy and misfortune plague Mannering until he is arrested for the murder of two women in Boston. And it's up to him to solve the mystery of missing gems, persons and ghosts. Creasey gives him the right touch and just the correct amount of help.

Citizen Pulitzer Follows Hearst

PULITZER by W. A. Swanberg, Charles Scribner's Sons, 462 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by James E. Williams.

Joseph Pulitzer was one of the greatest figures in American journalism. There is no doubt about that.

Thousands of words have recorded his feats as publisher of two great U.S. dailies — the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the New York World, both the morning and evening editions.

But now comes a deeper probe into this astonishing man by W. A. Swanberg, who has already recorded one of Pulitzer's bitterest enemies in his twilight — William Randolph Hearst in "Citizen Hearst."

By the time Pulitzer was 40 he had created his empire. Up to that point he had been able to conquer to some extent many of his minor ailments. But then he was struck with near total blindness. From then until his death he would travel thousands of miles and spend countless thousands to find a cure.

And along with blindness his nerves began to shatter. He could not tolerate noise. The slightest clanking of a glass could send him into a rage. Only on his floating palace, the Liberty, could he find the stillness he searched for so long.

Another quirk in his personality was that he could lavish love on his family, but in return could not receive it. Hence his children lived in a constant fear of him. In their youth as well as in their later years, their father controlled them with an almost iron-like grip.

These many facets of Pulitzer's life probably added to his complete rule of the World, the paper he foisted most of his love upon.

To read of his many wars with the nation's industrial barons, pinpointing of his deep-seated psychosis, introduction of the sensational element into journalism, his many feuds with the politicos of his day including all-out war on President Theodore Roosevelt makes for fascinating reading.

Swanberg has done his job well.

In "Citizen Hearst" the author faced a serious problem. The book was nominated for a prize by the Pulitzer Advisory Board as the top biography of 1961. But the Columbia University board of trustees denied the honor because Hearst did not qualify as a great enough public servant of the people.

The question now? Will Swanberg suffer the same from this biography?

JAMES MARSHALL

The Man Who Triggered California's Gold Rush

JAMES W. MARSHALL: The Discoverer of California Gold, by Theressa Gay, Talisman Press, 435 pages, $10. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Accident placed James Wilson Marshall's name in history.

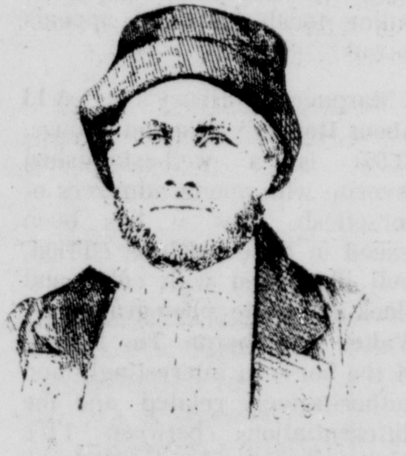
Like many other California pioneers of the period, he was employed by John Sutter. And with Marshall, Sutter entered into one of his many partnerships — to build and operate a sawmill on the south fork of the American River.

But there, while building the mill on Jan. 24, 1848, Marshall found flecks of gold in the millrace.

It was this chance discovery that led to the California gold rush — as (apologies to Macawlay) every schoolboy knows.

Strangely enough, although almost every event connected with discovery of gold in California has been enshrined between covers many times over, nobody ever wrote a biography of James Marshall until Theressa Gay of Palo Alto undertook the task.

Her resultant volume, published by Talisman Press, may hint why nobody else did the job. For Marshall was neither an heroic figure nor an especially colorful one. Before and after his chance discovery, his life was not the stuff of which great biographies are made.



JAMES W. MARSHALL
As drawn by A. Nahl

Author Gay has done a tremendous research job. There is not really enough about James Marshall to make a fat volume; but there is plenty about California history before, during and after the gold rush. She has included enough of it to round out the story. And no fact concerning Marshall, no matter how small, has been omitted.

Her volume will undoubtedly prove a valuable source book for historians to follow. But as a biography, it is the mainly dull story of a mainly dull man — whom chance gave a place in history.

The Ugly Side Of Society

NO PLACE FOR AN ANGEL by Elizabeth Spencer, McGraw-Hill, 305 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Elizabeth Rogers.

"Well-balanced" is the word which best describes this book. Perceptive readers will recognize the modern novel in the hands of a craftswoman who understand her job.

The theme is implied in the title — there is "no place for an angel" in today's world. And although the symbol is a projected work of art by one of the characters, there is no mistaking its application to the characters themselves.

So we have the incorruptible Catherine driven mildly insane by the corruptions which beset her husband. Then there is the artist, Barry, who is incapable of accomplishment until he is able to compromise with a hostile world. And again, there is Irene of the good intentions, who must take a lover to fill the void created by her husband's inadequacies.

Through these befogged halos, we see the world as the author sees it — the underside of the tapestry with its ugly knots and loose threads which, once shown, can never be disguised.

What Miss Spencer gives her readers is a sense of being part of this reverse pattern.

"Yes," they will say, "That's the way it is." And again, "We are not alone."

Sympathetic Study Of Troubled States

STORM OVER THE STATES by Terry Sanford, McGraw-Hill, 212 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Terry Sanford's "Storm Over the States" is both a criticism and a defense of state governments.

He admits to serious flaws in both their structure and their performance. But, he claims, their condition is neither as dismal nor as hopeless as painted by such critics as Frank Trippett in his "The States — United They Fall."

Furthermore, Sanford contends, such shortcomings are not restricted to the states, nor entirely their own fault. A major slice of blame is allocated the federal government for increasing encroachment into fields once the dominion of the states, and for repeated by-passing of the states to deal directly with local governments.

Sanford is not entirely the unbiased observer. As a former governor of North Carolina, albeit a progressive one, he is a member of "the club" that has been more concerned with state rights than state action.

But behind Sanford's book is the two-year "A Study of the American States" conducted at Duke University under his direction with Ford Foundation and Carnegie Corp. funds.

And Sanford does offer specific programs on how the states can strengthen both their legislative and administrative machinery, and how the federal government can encourage that trend.

The states, he contends, have a vital role in the American system of government that must be preserved.

States are urged to give long overdue priority to urban problems, to revise antequated constitutions, to make bolder use of their tax resources, to work more closely with local governments, to eliminate independent commissions and administrators so that the governor is truly the state executive.

The federal government, he says, should adopt as a matter of national purpose the designing of its programs so as to promote new vigor in state governments. Congress is urged to set up a "mechanism of government" to work toward better coordination of intergovernment relations. States would be accorded a stronger voice and hand in the administration of grants and similar U.S. programs.

Sanford advocates the crediting of a substantial percentage of a citizen's state income tax payment toward his federal income tax bill to encourage more states to exploit this form of revenue.

These are but a sampling of the proposals advanced by Sanford in his book, many of them subject to serious controversy, but all worthy of study and discussion.

Stanford's book, however, would seem to overlook a major point made by Trippett in his more muckraking approach to the subject — the disappointing caliber overall of American political leadership. The finest procedures and tools in the world will not function efficiently in the hands of hacks, demagogues or toadies of special interests. It is no consolation to be told that such can be found in Washington D.C. and local governments, as well as in state capitols. Nor is it any less distressing to realize that the hapless people who suffer at their fumbling hands are the very ones who elected them to office — often again and again.

A Savage Racket Of The Sleazy

As indicated by a recent story in the Independent-Journal, the gory spectacle of cock fighting is still carried on in this land.

So too is the equally savage racket of dog fighting, as graphically depicted by Geller.

This is not a book for the squeamish, nor will it appeal to an authentic sportsman.

Geller approaches the story from the only legitimate angle that it can be approached, tough, hard-boiled and realistic. This makes it less palatable as entertainment, but more honest.

The characters are sleazy, and their machinations rancid enough to turn one's stomach, but then again dog fighting isn't a field that would attract noble persons with noble motives.

If Geller's novel helps to bring the eradication of pit fighting, then it will serve a noble purpose.

Joseph Pulitzer was one of the greatest figures in American journalism. There is no doubt about that.

Thousands of words have recorded his feats as publisher of two great U.S. dailies — the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the New York World, both the morning and evening editions.

But now comes a deeper probe into this astonishing man by W. A. Swanberg, who has already recorded one of Pulitzer's bitterest enemies in his twilight — William Randolph Hearst in "Citizen Hearst."

By the time Pulitzer was 40 he had created his empire. Up to that point he had been able to conquer to some extent many of his minor ailments. But then he was struck with near total blindness. From then until his death he would travel thousands of miles and spend countless thousands to find a cure.

And along with blindness his nerves began to shatter. He could not tolerate noise. The slightest clanking of a glass could send him into a rage. Only on his floating palace, the Liberty, could he find the stillness he searched for so long.

Another quirk in his personality was that he could lavish love on his family, but in return could not receive it. Hence his children lived in a constant fear of him. In their youth as well as in their later years, their father controlled them with an almost iron-like grip.

Nineteen years after his death in 1912, this hold probably played a major factor in the closing chapter in ownership of the World by the Pulitzer family.

These many facets of Pulitzer's life probably added to his complete rule of the World, the paper he foisted most of his love upon.

To read of his many wars with the nation's industrial barons, pinpointing of his deep-seated psychosis, introduction of the sensational element into journalism, his many feuds with the politicos of his day including all-out war on President Theodore Roosevelt makes for fascinating reading.

Swanberg has done his job well.

In "Citizen Hearst" the author faced a serious problem. The book was nominated for a prize by the Pulitzer Advisory Board as the top biography of 1961. But the Columbia University board of trustees denied the honor because Hearst did not qualify as a great enough public servant of the people.

The question now? Will Swanberg suffer the same from this biography?

The Ugly Side Of Society

NO PLACE FOR AN ANGEL by Elizabeth Spencer, McGraw-Hill, 305 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Elizabeth Rogers.

"Well-balanced" is the word which best describes this book. Perceptive readers will recognize the modern novel in the hands of a craftswoman who understand her job.

The theme is implied in the title — there is "no place for an angel" in today's world. And although the symbol is a projected work of art by one of the characters, there is no mistaking its application to the characters themselves.

So we have the incorruptible Catherine driven mildly insane by the corruptions which beset her husband. Then there is the artist, Barry, who is incapable of accomplishment until he is able to compromise with a hostile world. And again, there is Irene of the good intentions, who must take a lover to fill the void created by her husband's inadequacies.

Through these befogged halos, we see the world as the author sees it — the underside of the tapestry with its ugly knots and loose threads which, once shown, can never be disguised.

What Miss Spencer gives her readers is a sense of being part of this reverse pattern.

"Yes," they will say, "That's the way it is." And again, "We are not alone."

JAMES MARSHALL

The Man Who Triggered California's Gold Rush

JAMES W. MARSHALL: The Discoverer of California Gold, by Theressa Gay, Talisman Press, 435 pages, $10. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Accident placed James Wilson Marshall's name in history.

Like many other California pioneers of the period, he was employed by John Sutter. And with Marshall, Sutter entered into one of his many partnerships — to build and operate a sawmill on the south fork of the American River.

But there, while building the mill on Jan. 24, 1848, Marshall found flecks of gold in the millrace.

It was this chance discovery that led to the California gold rush — as (apologies to Macawlay) every schoolboy knows.

Strangely enough, although almost every event connected with discovery of gold in California has been enshrined between covers many times over, nobody ever wrote a biography of James Marshall until Theressa Gay of Palo Alto undertook the task.

Her resultant volume, published by Talisman Press, may hint why nobody else did the job. For Marshall was neither an heroic figure nor an especially colorful one. Before and after his chance discovery, his life was not the stuff of which great biographies are made.

Author Gay has done a tremendous research job. There is not really enough about James Marshall to make a fat volume; but there is plenty about California history before, during and after the gold rush. She has included enough of it to round out the story. And no fact concerning Marshall, no matter how small, has been omitted.

Her volume will undoubtedly prove a valuable source book for historians to follow. But as a biography, it is the mainly dull story of a mainly dull man — whom chance gave a place in history.

Sympathetic Study Of Troubled States

Terry Sanford's "Storm Over the States" is both a criticism and a defense of state governments.

He admits to serious flaws in both their structure and their performance. But, he claims, their condition is neither as dismal nor as hopeless as painted by such critics as Frank Trippett in his "The States — United They Fall."

Furthermore, Sanford contends, such shortcomings are not restricted to the states, nor entirely their own fault. A major slice of blame is allocated the federal government for increasing encroachment into fields once the dominion of the states, and for repeated by-passing of the states to deal directly with local governments.

Sanford is not entirely the unbiased observer. As a former governor of North Carolina, albeit a progressive one, he is a member of "the club" that has been more concerned with state rights than state action.

But behind Sanford's book is the two-year "A Study of the American States" conducted at Duke University under his direction with Ford Foundation and Carnegie Corp. funds.

And Sanford does offer specific programs on how the states can strengthen both their legislative and administrative machinery, and how the federal government can encourage that trend.

The states, he contends, have a vital role in the American system of government that must be preserved.

States are urged to give long overdue priority to urban problems, to revise antequated constitutions, to make bolder use of their tax resources, to work more closely with local governments, to eliminate independent commissions and administrators so that the governor is truly the state executive.

The federal government, he says, should adopt as a matter of national purpose the designing of its programs so as to promote new vigor in state governments. Congress is urged to set up a "mechanism of government" to work toward better coordination of intergovernment relations. States would be accorded a stronger voice and hand in the administration of grants and similar U.S. programs.

Sanford advocates the crediting of a substantial percentage of a citizen's state income tax payment toward his federal income tax bill to encourage more states to exploit this form of revenue.

These are but a sampling of the proposals advanced by Sanford in his book, many of them subject to serious controversy, but all worthy of study and discussion.

Stanford's book, however, would seem to overlook a major point made by Trippett in his more muckraking approach to the subject — the disappointing caliber overall of American political leadership. The finest procedures and tools in the world will not function efficiently in the hands of hacks, demagogues or toadies of special interests. It is no consolation to be told that such can be found in Washington D.C. and local governments, as well as in state capitols. Nor is it any less distressing to realize that the hapless people who suffer at their fumbling hands are the very ones who elected them to office — often again and again.

A Savage Racket Of The Sleazy

As indicated by a recent story in the Independent-Journal, the gory spectacle of cock fighting is still carried on in this land.

So too is the equally savage racket of dog fighting, as graphically depicted by Geller.

This is not a book for the squeamish, nor will it appeal to an authentic sportsman.

Geller approaches the story from the only legitimate angle that it can be approached, tough, hard-boiled and realistic. This makes it less palatable as entertainment, but more honest.

The characters are sleazy, and their machinations rancid enough to turn one's stomach, but then again dog fighting isn't a field that would attract noble persons with noble motives.

If Geller's novel helps to bring the eradication of pit fighting, then it will serve a noble purpose.

Books For The Juniors

Nearly a million copies of the official Boy Scouts of America "Fieldbook" have found their way into the hands of outdoor-minded boys and their adult leaders.

Now McGraw-Hill has published a dressy new second edition that streamlines the guide, bringing it up to date while retaining the more popular and timeless features.

It is a handsome, well-organized and edited book, as well as a useful one. And it sells reasonably — for $4.95.

The instruction covers all the traditional subjects — fire-building, outdoor cooking, knot-tying, ropework, hiking, swimming, nature study, camping, conservation, first aid, packing, map and compass reading, fishing and hunting, tree-felling, etc. It's nice to know that some boys are still doing these things.

The book is profusely illustrated, with more than 1,700 photographs and drawings.

Whether your son be a Scout or not, if he is not fixed to the easy chair and the television set, he should find a great deal of helpful information in this book. And you may catch dad, as well, sneaking a look or two before his next fishing trip.

Some other new books for the junior readers:

"Crossroad Puzzles" (Natural History Press, $3.50) is a collection by David Webster of 144 photographs taken on and along the highways that pose mysteries over which young travelers can puzzle—Which are the electric wires and which are the telephone wires? How does a cattle crossing work? What does that arrow painted in the roadway mean? Webster, the creator of the mystery photograph feature in Nature and Science Magazine, also provides the answers, and some bonanza busy-makers for the children such as setting up of their own mobile weather station, the building of a bug-catcher and the outline for a "scavenger hunt" game to be played while on the move.

Biographer Edith Patterson Meyer has selected a worthy subject for her latest book, "That Remarkable Man: Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes" (Little, Brown, $4.75). These are the kind of heroes that deserve the immortality that books aimed for the young who did not know their age can help insure. Mrs. Meyer, a careful historian and discerning writer, tells Holmes' story simply and interestingly.

The title of George Barr's "Young Scientist and the Police Department" McGraw-Hill, $3.95) makes it sound like one book in an adventure fiction series for boys. It is, instead, one of a non-fiction series written by Barr for scicnce-minded juniors. This time he details the role played by science in modern law enforcement — fingerprinting, voiceprints, the electron miscroscope, ultraviolet light, the spectroscope, thermal analysis, blood grouping, radar, tests for intoxication, ballistics, lie detectors, handwriting comparison, etc. And, of course, the ever-increasing use of computers. It's a fascinating look at what is behind the policeman on the beat or in the patrol car.

Nursery rhymes are nursery rhymes, unchanged through the centuries, and who would want it differently? So the success of any one collection depends largely upon the illustrations, and how attractively the verse has been packaged. Oscar Weigle has made the selections for "A Treasury of Mother Goose" (Grosset & Dunlap, $1.95), and Harold Berson has done the artwork. Berson's sketches, especially those in color, are in keeping with the merry spirit that accompanies the rhymes, no matter how grim their subject matter. And the publisher has provided a happy design and dust jacket that add to the fun.

A fun book for both the Halloween and Christmas seasons is "Isabel's Noel" (Funk & Wagnalls, $2.95) by Jane Yolen with illustrations by Arnold Roth. It's about a little witch and her Christmas Eve experiences that are climaxed by a meeting with Santa Claus. It is an imaginative little story with illustrations that are appropriately good humored.

Science teacher and writer John Gabriel Navarra tells the story of time and its measurement from ancient eras to the present in his "Clocks, Calendars and Carrousels" Doubleday, $3.95), an informative book for inquisitive youngsters up to 12. It is condensed, yet it is serious history and authoritative. Instead of the usual sketches or photographs found in junior books, the illustrations are diagramatic, done by Al Nagy, who also designed the book attractively.

Holiday season books usually focus on Christmas. But "The Plymouth Thanksgiving" (Doubleday, $3.95), written and illustrated by Leonard Weisgard, pays tribute to our great November festival. For children up to 9, Weisgard tells simply and faithfully the story of the first harvests and Thanksgiving of the Pilgrims. His artwork is bold and gives his subjects the dignity they deserve as historical figures.

Like many another child, young Arthur found himself bored and restless one day. In "Arthur's World" (Doubleday, $2.95) by artist-cartoonist Mischa Richter, he finds excitement and travel in his own backyard. A simple little book with appeal for the kindergarten, first and second grade set.

Scholastic Books' latest batch of Starline paperbacks includes a reprint of the Mark Twain classic 'The Prince and the Pauper" (50 cents). For the more contemporary-minded youngsters, there is a biography of one of professional football's greats, Green Bay's "Bart Starr" (also 50 cents) While for the small readers, "The Green Thumb Story," Jean Fielder's warm little tale about a lad looking for a real green thumb so that he can grow a flower garden, has been republished to sell for 35 cents. StarLine continues to do for the juveniles what the quality paperback houses do for the adults.

That special, very tender relationship that exists between grandmother and grandchild is explored with fine sensitivity by Lois Lenski in her "Debbie and Her Grandma" (Walck, $2.50) for the pre-schoolers and kindergarteners. With simple text and pictures it tells about one little girl's joy from a visit to her grandmother.

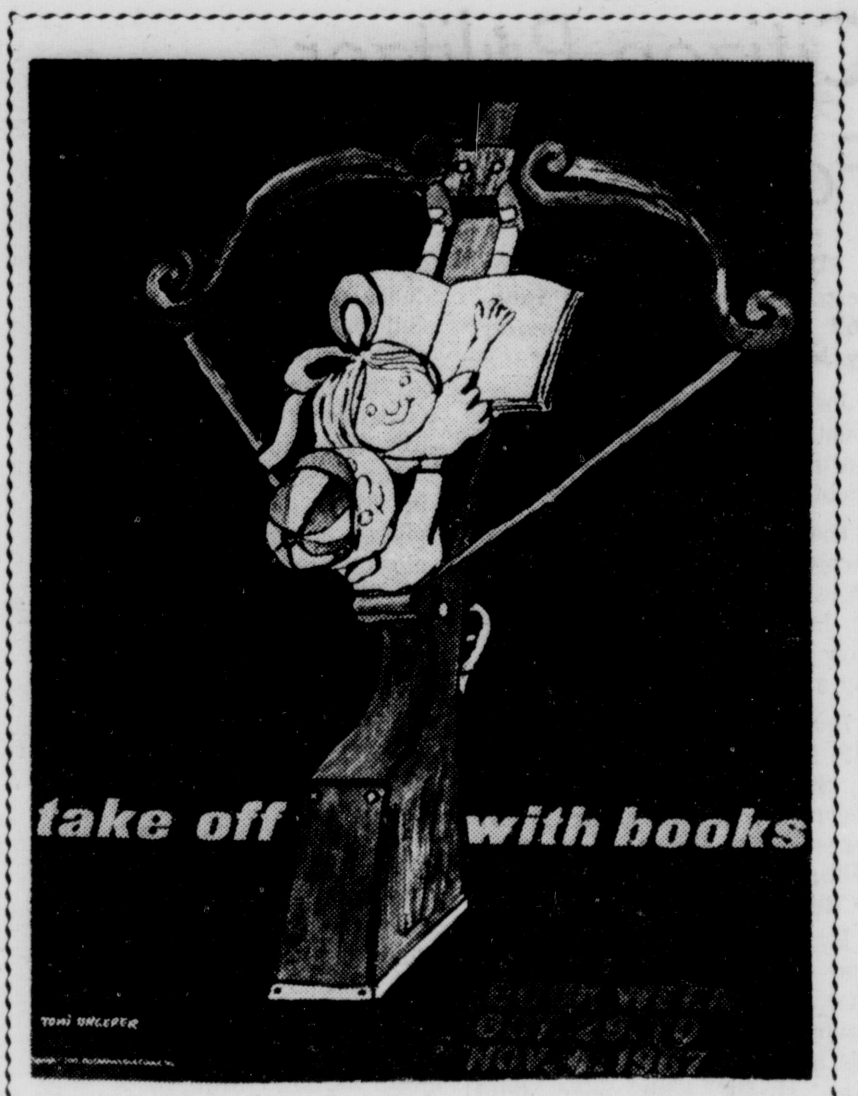
"Dippy Dos & Don'ts" (Viking, $1) by Michael Sage and Arnold Spilka is a rollicking play on words in the form of some highly improbable situations to tickle the funnybones of 2 to 5-year-olds. Adding to the fun are black and white drawings that capture the lighthearted humor of the catchy verses.

"The Cat in the Hat Song Book" (Random House, $2.95) offers 19 Seuss-written songs for beginning singers with accompanying piano scores and guitar chords by composer Eugene Poddany. There are all kinds of songs, but most of the pattern that delights youngsters. The lyrics demonstrate once again that Dr. Seuss has an unfailing touch for what appeals to tots.

Marguerite Henry's "All About Horses" (Random House, $3.95) is a well-established favorite with young admirers of horseflesh. Now it has been issued in a new deluxe edition, well illustrated with color and black-and-white photographs by Walter D. Osborne. The history of the horse in interestingly and authoritatively related, and the differentiations between the various breeds clearly made. A good gift for the young equestrian.

Frances Hodgson Burnett's little heroine, Sara Crewe, of her children's classic, "A Little Princess," first delighted small readers in 1907. Now it has been republished in handsome format by Platt & Munk ($2.95). It is, of course, the charming story of the child who grows up in India surrounded by luxury and attention, and then suddenly finds herself in greatly reduced circumstances.

"The Bird Tree" (Harcourt, Brace & World, $3.50) is the product of a Dutch team, writer Frans van Anrooy and illustrator Jaap Tol, and a very delightful one. The author tells a charming little Christmas tale about a boy, his grandmother and their problem of no decorations for their tree. The woodland animals figure in the solution. Talented artist Tol's colorful pictures have a richness and brilliance that will bedazzle 3 through 7-year-olds.



CHILDREN'S Book Week will be observed nationally Oct. 29 through Nov. 4. The above poster was designed by Tomi Ungerer for The Children's Book Council, 175 Fifth Avenue, New York, sponsors of the observance.

LITTLE WIDE-AWAKE edited by Leonard De Vries, World, 240 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

From the vast private collection of Victorian children's books and periodicals owned by F. G. and Anne Renier of England, writer and raconteur Leonard De Vries has assembled a fascinating anthology, "Little Wide-Awake."

It is, of course, not so much a children's book as it is a scholar's book.

De Vries has chosen some 60 stories, 150 poems and nearly 350 illustrations that reflect well an era that produced some of the most creative as well as some of the sorriest reading for the little ones. The mood ranges from the gay to the sentimental, from rollicking to grim.

There is "The Misfortunes of Toby Ticklepitcher" from the penny fare, as well as the religious-oriented "The History of the Fairchild Family" aimed at the more affluent.

M. F. Thwaite has written an excellent introduction that discusses the wide range of children's literature of the period.

The publisher, World Publishing Co., has hit upon a most suitable period typographical and design format that compliments beautifully the Victorian contents.

November In Mexico

Busy Time Ahead For Visitors South Of Border

What's in store for vacationers in Mexico this November?

Sugar skulls and bone-shaped bread, graveyard songs for the "Day of the Dead!" — Also, new flowers, old locomotives, lit-up pyramids, and quality-controlled "pulque."

"Pulque lovers have cause to rejoice," reports Mrs. Fausto Zapata, Mexicana Airlines correspondent in Mexico City.

"Henceforth," she says, "quality control will be used in making the beverage, a milky fermented cactus juice with about the same kick as beer. A new half-million quart receiving station for the pulque. which arrives in goat or pig skin containers, is being built near Mexico City.

"HERE, HEALTH department chemists will supervise the analysis, storage and distribution of the rich-tasting drink."

"This may take the adventure out of pulque," adds Mrs. Zapata, "but it will make some of those country fiestas and backwater cantinas safer to frequent."

More than 100,000 rose bushes and shrubs and the same number of trees have been planted in Mexico City recently. Cedars, ashes, eucalyptus, poplars and willows now add to the beauty of the ancient ahuehuetas that have graced famed Paseo de la Reforma in the heart of the capital for so many centuries.

RECENTLY RETIRED after 65 years of service was famous old Locomotive 144, replaced by a diesel on the scenic run from Mexico City to Cuautla. But National Railways has announced that a project has been approved for construction of a narrow gauge track for steam locomotives which will draw old-fashioned coaches from the capital to Xochimilco (the famed floating gardens) and to other nearby attractions.

Spectacular is the word for the "Saga of the Gods," the new sound and light show currently offered at the pyramids of Teotihuacan. The famed pyramids, exceeded in size only by Egypt's largest, are an easy drive (33 miles) from Mexico City.

Two years of work, miles of wiring, 2,800 colored spotlights and 46 loudspeakers have gone into the 45-minute sound and light performance, written by poet-playwright Salvador Novo.

NEW HOTELS going up all over the capital (for the '68 Olympics) reportedly will be dwarfed by a 1,232-room hotel with a 400-room annex and bungalows being planned by Manual Suarez, Mexican industrialist who reports that the resort will house the world's largest mural now being completed by the famed painter Siquieros.

You can save quite a bit of money if you wing your way to Mexico before Nov. 30. That's the cut-off date for Mexicana Airlines' "magic carpet" plan which offers a bargain rate of $98 for a full month of air travel to 20 different cities south of the border.

The plan is open to Mexicana passengers who have arrived in Mexico City via the airline's U. S. gateways in Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas, San Antonio, Corpus Christi or Miami.

A RUNDOWN of major events in November follows:

Nov. 1-2, fiestas celebrating All Saints and All Souls days throughout the country. Bullfights, rodeos and dances add to this unique Mexican festival with its sugar skulls and other ghostly confections, feats in graveyards and general merrymaking for the "Day of the Dead."

Nov. 11, St. Martin's Day, is celebrated with music, folk dances and fireworks near the famed Teotihuacan pyramids, and at Texmelucan, Puebla State, with parades and a rodeo.

Nov. 19, a three-day gala with horseraces, serenades at Tlalnepantla, Puebla State.

Nov. 20, day of the revolution celebrated nationally. Big parade in Mexico City.

Nov. 25, fiesta (annual since 1542!) honoring the Virgin of Solitude, includes regattas on the lake at Patzcuaro, Michoacan State.

Nov. 30, a fiesta lasting well into December at Atotonilco, Jalisco State, famous for its citrus groves.

November In Mexico

Busy Time Ahead For Visitors South Of Border

What's in store for vacationers in Mexico this November?

Sugar skulls and bone-shaped bread, graveyard songs for the "Day of the Dead!" — Also, new flowers, old locomotives, lit-up pyramids, and quality-controlled "pulque."

"Pulque lovers have cause to rejoice," reports Mrs. Fausto Zapata, Mexicana Airlines correspondent in Mexico City.

"Henceforth," she says, "quality control will be used in making the beverage, a milky fermented cactus juice with about the same kick as beer. A new half-million quart receiving station for the pulque. which arrives in goat or pig skin containers, is being built near Mexico City.

"HERE, HEALTH department chemists will supervise the analysis, storage and distribution of the rich-tasting drink."

"This may take the adventure out of pulque," adds Mrs. Zapata, "but it will make some of those country fiestas and backwater cantinas safer to frequent."

More than 100,000 rose bushes and shrubs and the same number of trees have been planted in Mexico City recently. Cedars, ashes, eucalyptus, poplars and willows now add to the beauty of the ancient ahuehuetas that have graced famed Paseo de la Reforma in the heart of the capital for so many centuries.

RECENTLY RETIRED after 65 years of service was famous old Locomotive 144, replaced by a diesel on the scenic run from Mexico City to Cuautla. But National Railways has announced that a project has been approved for construction of a narrow gauge track for steam locomotives which will draw old-fashioned coaches from the capital to Xochimilco (the famed floating gardens) and to other nearby attractions.

Spectacular is the word for the "Saga of the Gods," the new sound and light show currently offered at the pyramids of Teotihuacan. The famed pyramids, exceeded in size only by Egypt's largest, are an easy drive (33 miles) from Mexico City.

Two years of work, miles of wiring, 2,800 colored spotlights and 46 loudspeakers have gone into the 45-minute sound and light performance, written by poet-playwright Salvador Novo.

NEW HOTELS going up all over the capital (for the '68 Olympics) reportedly will be dwarfed by a 1,232-room hotel with a 400-room annex and bungalows being planned by Manual Suarez, Mexican industrialist who reports that the resort will house the world's largest mural now being completed by the famed painter Siquieros.

You can save quite a bit of money if you wing your way to Mexico before Nov. 30. That's the cut-off date for Mexicana Airlines' "magic carpet" plan which offers a bargain rate of $98 for a full month of air travel to 20 different cities south of the border.

The plan is open to Mexicana passengers who have arrived in Mexico City via the airline's U. S. gateways in Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas, San Antonio, Corpus Christi or Miami.

A RUNDOWN of major events in November follows:

Nov. 1-2, fiestas celebrating All Saints and All Souls days throughout the country. Bullfights, rodeos and dances add to this unique Mexican festival with its sugar skulls and other ghostly confections, feats in graveyards and general merrymaking for the "Day of the Dead."

Nov. 11, St. Martin's Day, is celebrated with music, folk dances and fireworks near the famed Teotihuacan pyramids, and at Texmelucan, Puebla State, with parades and a rodeo.

Nov. 19, a three-day gala with horseraces, serenades at Tlalnepantla, Puebla State.

Nov. 20, day of the revolution celebrated nationally. Big parade in Mexico City.

Nov. 25, fiesta (annual since 1542!) honoring the Virgin of Solitude, includes regattas on the lake at Patzcuaro, Michoacan State.

Nov. 30, a fiesta lasting well into December at Atotonilco, Jalisco State, famous for its citrus groves.

The Travel Page

TO MANY A traveler, autumn means New England and scenes such as this one — of picturesque buildings and colorful, contrasting foliage, before the snows blanket it all in white.

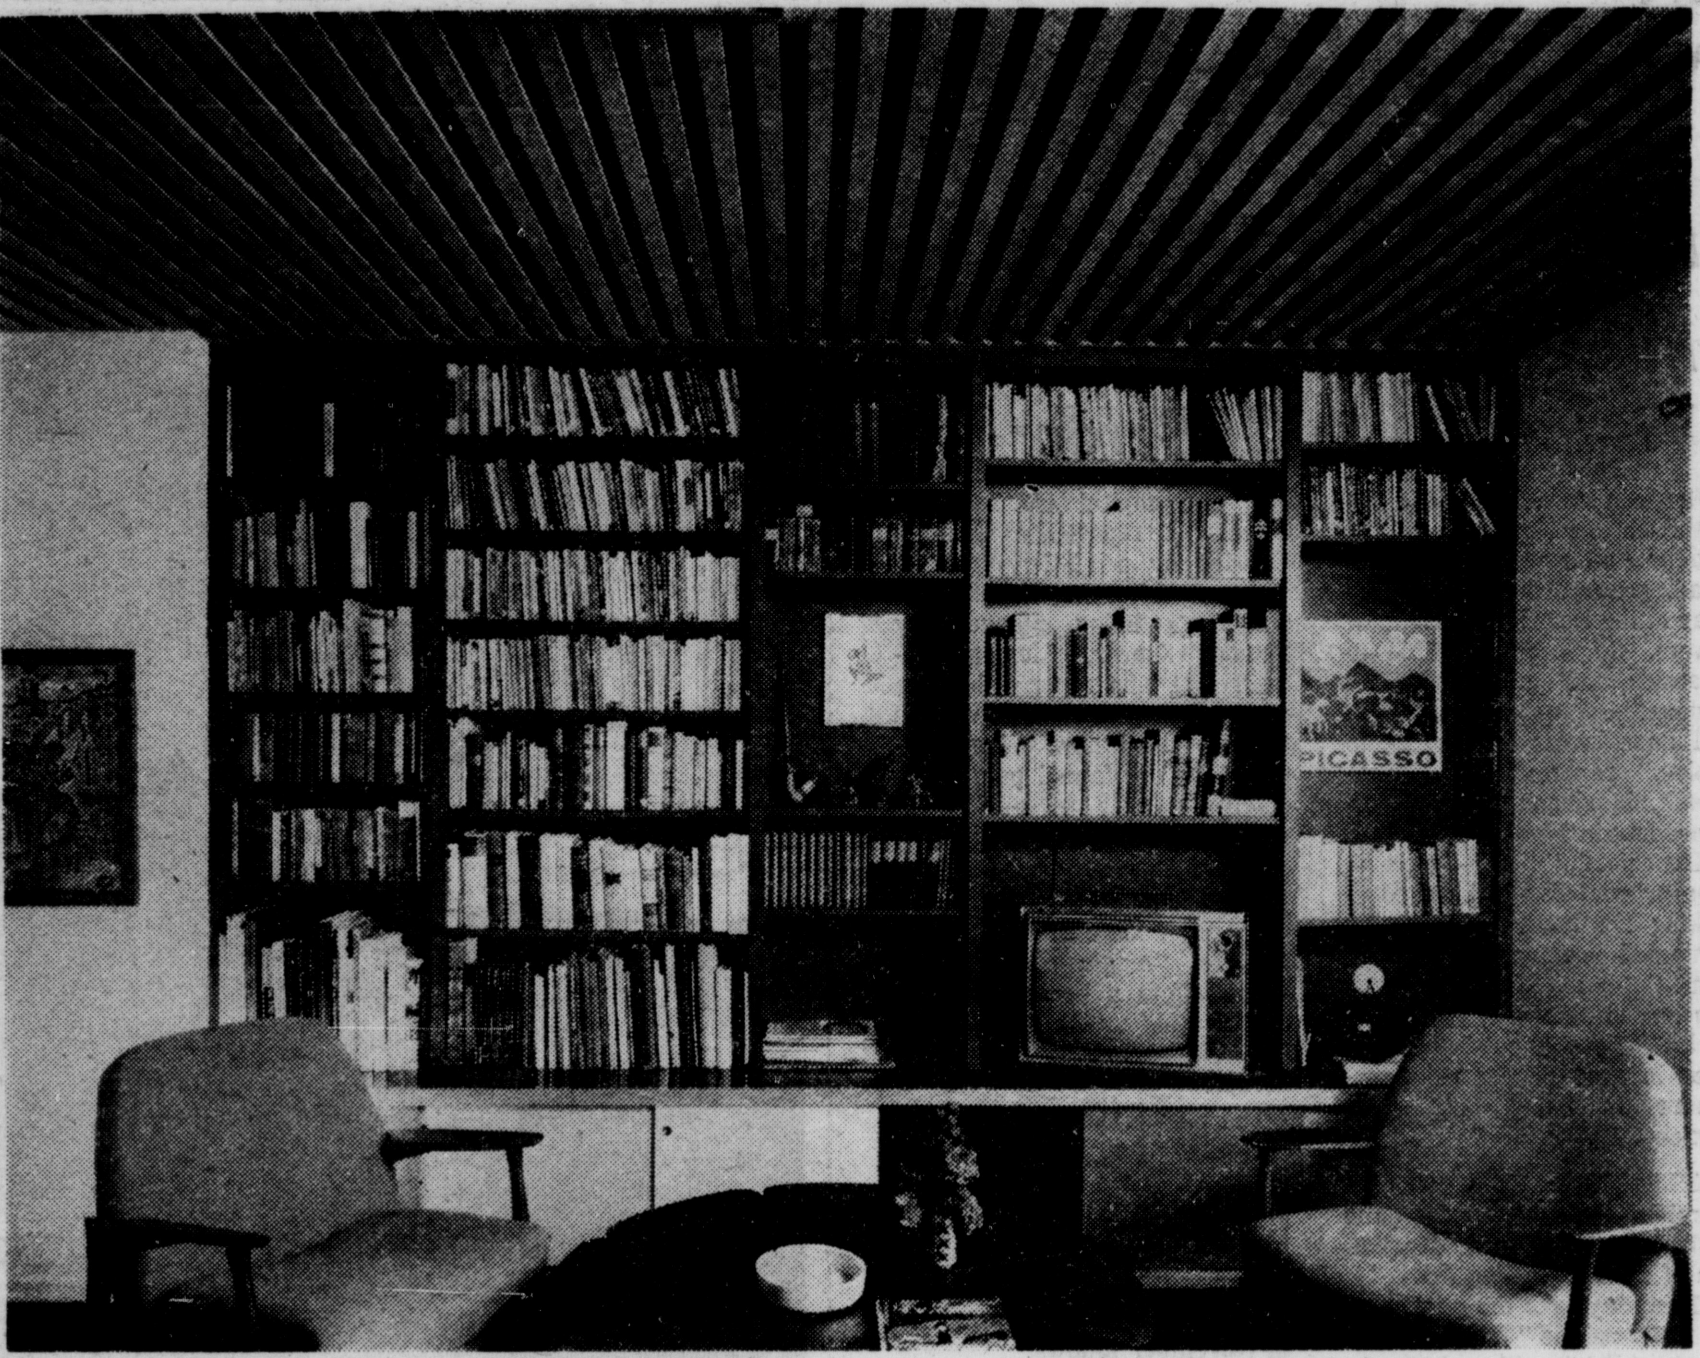
A Place For The Parents



A TINY DEN sparkles with the addition of a book wall and an intriguing ceiling treatment. Cream colored western hemlock one-by-twos have been nailed on edge across olive-painted ceiling to develop the rich pattern. Shelves are 10 inches deep while base cabinet is 14 inches deep.

Do parents overlook their own need for privacy and an adult atmosphere in planning the family home?

It sometimes seems so, for, other than the master suite, where can the average parent find the quiet and "awayness" to enjoy a good book, write a letter, listen to a favorite sonata, paint a picture or even pay the monthly bills?

PARENTS NEED to stake a claim to more territory in the house. Call it a den, study or studio, but make that space off-limits to the youngsters.

Size of the den doesn't matter half as much as its layout. Above all, it mustn't be a cubicle furnished with tattered castoffs, for such a space is neither inviting nor restful. Instead, try your decorating ingenuity here — and make it fun.

The ceiling is a good place to put a little oomph because pattern and texture on the top side won't make the room feel cluttered.

Try a three-dimensional effect, for example, by nailing western hemlock one-by-twos across the ceiling, edge down. Leave a spacing of one or two inches between boards to get a deep shadow line. Then, for needed contrast, finish the hemlock one-by-twos clear and paint the ceiling a mid-tone, like olive.

A WALL OF built-in shelving is another way to put zip into the den with little effort. Shelves can be designed for books, art objects, craft materials, or a combination of things. Generally, shelving is 12 inches deep, but if space is tight, 10-inch shelves will handle the library nicely.

Shelving can be floor-to-ceiling, or it can be set on a base cabinet built at knee or hip height. In a small den, the lower base cabinet makes the room appear larger.

For shelving, use Douglas fir, hemlock or ponderosa pine one-by-12s or one-by-10s. Base cabinet doors can be plain or fancy. Lightweight sliding doors painted many colors can be delightful.

PUT COLORFUL carpeting on the floor and watch how quickly the room warms up and quiets down.

For furniture, comfort is the word. Old easy chairs in fresh, new slipcovers can be fine — or treat yourself to something entirely new and wonderful.

On Painting The Woodwork

Painting interior woodwork is considered by most persons to be more of a nuisance than painting the much larger surfaces of the rest of a room.

Inevitably, woodwork painting involves the coverage of small, uneven and irregular portions of trim, as well as such things as doors and window frames and sashes. This usually means a different kind and color of paint, smaller brushes and considerably more care and attention to what you're doing to avoid splashing adjoining surfaces.

THE EASIEST way to paint woodwork is to use the same paint as you are using for the rest of the room. But very often, especially in rooms other than the kitchen and bathroom, the paint is of the flat type, which means it isn't as washable as enamel.

However, where it is desired to make a small room look large, painting the woodwork the same color as the walls and ceilings is recommended. This can be done either by using the same flat paint—and trying to avoid fingerprints and dirt marks as much as possible—or using an enamel the same color as that of the walls and ceilings.

As with all painting, the result will depend to a large degree on how much care has been taken to prepare the surface for the new coating. Most woodwork can be painted over without the necessity of removing the old paint or varnish, provided attention is given to the removal of dirt and grease and the filling of cracks and holes.

ALSO, ANY gloss left from the previous finish must be sanded, steel-wooled or covered with one of the liquids made especially for dulling shiny wood.

If the woodwork is in especially bad condition, then paint remover will have to be used, carefully following the instructions on the container.

It is best to do small areas at one time. In such cases — or on new woodwork — a primer or enamel undercoater must be used so that the finish coats do not sink into the wood unevenly.

WE RECENTLY saw a contractor use an unusual method of removing paint from woodwork. Noting that, in this very old house, there were many, many coats of paint on the woodwork and realizing that it would be an enormous job to remove all of it by the usual methods, he combined a paint remover with a wallpaper steamer to accomplish the task.

A water-rinsable paint remover was brushed to the woodwork. After waiting about two minutes, steam was applied to the area for two minutes more. This softened the paint sufficiently so that it could be scraped off with a large putty knife in much faster time than would have been possible without the assistance of the steamer.

THERE ARE those who swear by wallpaper on their walls, and others who would rather fight than switch from painted walls. But why not both? Here the two have been integrated on one wall, creating an air of elegance and formality that neither alone could have accomplished. Choose the paper first. Its dominant color determines the paint color. Roll on quick-drying, non-drip paint, then apply paper, spacing it at intervals the width of the paper roll to create stripes.

The Natives Are Hardy

For hardy plantings, it is a wise rule of thumb to "turn to the natives."

For these are the plants that have survived through the centuries in the very soil and climatic conditions in which you will now plant them. And they have survived on only the attention given them by Mother Nature.

Marinites are particularly fortunate in this respect, for California offers them what has to be the world's finest array of native plants.

AN EARLY English botanist referred to California as "that wonderful land of flowers."

He was not referring alone to the herbaceous beauties that carpet our hills with gold, scarlet and lavender, but to the wealth of native trees and shrubs as well.

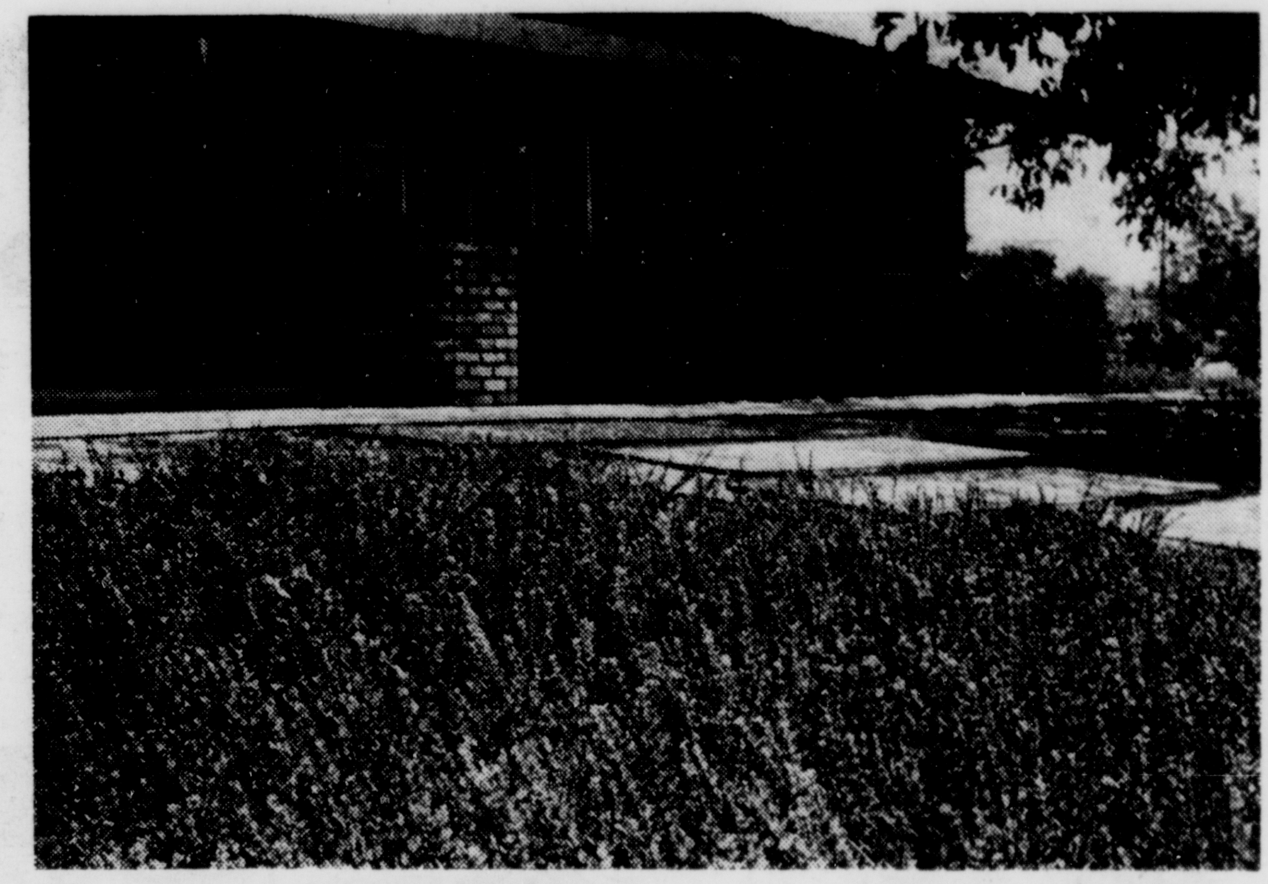
Chief among these is probably the ceanothus clan, the lovely group of "wild lilacs" used as borders and groundcovers, and ideal for that hard-to-care-for embankment. While nature is hard to improve upon in the case of the ceanothus, there are some improved forms of the native species.

Two improvements that have been introduced in recent years by the Saratoga Horticultural Foundation are the Louis Edmond ceanothus and the Hurricane Point ceanothus.

THE LATTER is a low, spreading beauty with deep, shiny-green leaves and spring clusters of light blue flowers. The perfect selection for covering that dry bank if ever there was one.

The Louis Edmonds variety is also spreading, but taller, somewhat resembling the more familiar Carmel Creeper in leaf and flower.

The Toyon, or California Holly, is another hard-to-improve-on native for Marin gardens. Its spring clusters of white flowers are a show and worth planting for their own sake. But the real reward come in fall when the red berries ripen. These are a real show indoors or out during the holiday season.



ONE OF OUR most useful native plants is the ground-hugging ceanothus, which provides an attractive and easy-to-care-for cover for sunny banks or level yards. Deep green leaves and light blue spring flowers are its main features. Planting time is now. (Photo courtesy of the California Association of Nurserymen)

Gardening Page

ANOTHER NATIVE of note is the Oregon Grape. Its holly-like leaves and brilliant yellow blooms are features in spring, but its new leaves provide competition. These are a striking red-bronze, and again in fall there's another show when the foliage turns decidedly red.

Many more California natives await the inquisitive gardener. And if you plant them now, the winter rains will get them off to a good start.

Support Your Shade Trees

Shade trees frequently need the support and strength that can be provided by guy wires, cables, and braces.

In transplanting, young trees are guyed to prevent wind-whipping until the roots become established; in older trees, cables and braces are used to prevent or reduce storm damage.

Methods used to guy young trees vary.

A RELATIVELY small tree may be adequately supported by one or more short section of rubber hose looped around the trunk and attached to a single upright stake driven firmly into the ground. For larger trees, two or more stakes may be used, or guy wires may be fastened to ground anchors and attached to the trunk with lag screw hooks.

Valuable shade trees should be inspected each autumn for weaknesses that make them especially susceptible to damage in winter storms. These storms often are a composite of strong wind and heavy rain that subjects the entire tree structure to abnormal strain and stresses. Structurally weak trees may be severely damaged.

Occasionally a few branches of a tree grow to extreme length without increasing proportionately in stem diameter. Such branches are weak; they whip excessively in wind storms and may break under any sudden strain or heavy burden.

DEPENDING upon their size, location and importance to the shape of the tree, unduly long branches should be supported by cables, pruned back to a vigorous lateral twig, or removed.

Sometimes branches are joined to the trunk of a tree by narrow, V-shaped crotches. These crotches are weak and may split under any strain. In severe splitting the tree may be mutilated beyond satisfactory repair. When major branches have developed from such crotches, treatment usually consists of installation of brace rods at the crotch and supporting cables in the upper part of the tree.

In providing mechanical support, selection of materials and methods of installation are based on the size of the tree, its branch structure and other factors.

More information on this phase of tree care is given in a pamphlet titled "Bracing, Cabling and Guying Standards For Shade Trees." The pamphlet may be obtained by writing the National Arborist Association, 616 Southern Building, Washington, D. C., 20005.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

The Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Most gladiolus are ready to lift by now, even the late blooming ones. When the tops brown, lift them and cut the stalks about an inch above the corm. Store corms in cool, dry place until next year.

✓Before storing gladiolus corms for the winter, it is a good idea to dust them with soil-and-bulb dust for both insects and fungus.

✓Stop watering tuberous begonias gradually and let the tops die back. They'll separate from the tubers easily in a few weeks.

✓New lawns should be kept moist at all times. Don't count on fall rains.

✓An autumn application of organic fertilizer to your shade tree will pay off next spring with earlier foliage, more leaves and general better health for the tree.

Perpetual Motion Kaye Ballard Adjusts To Life In Hollywood

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Kaye Ballard, a New Yorker for 20 years, has moved to Hollywood to co-star with Eve Arden in the new situation comedy, "The Mothers-in-Law." But she can't break her apartment house style of living.

Instead of buying a home in Beverly Hills or Bel-Air, as do most stars moving westward, Kaye has moved into the penthouse of a new apartment building with a view of her new domain.

STILL SINGLE, and cheerfully admitting to 40 summers, Kaye lives alone with a pair of tiny poodles, Carmela and Lena.

Her apartment is spacious with two bedrooms, three baths and a den. Kaye has decorated her quarters in green, gold and off-white. She has been collecting paintings for years and is particularly proud of a Robert Vickery and Werner Groshans hanging in her living room.

A dabbler in art herself, Kaye has saved some of her own sketches and pen and ink drawings for decorative highlights.

KAYE SLEEPS only five or six hours a night, allowing her time to sketch early in the morning. Then she fixes breakfast and is off to Desilu studios for her new role.

Rehearsals begin at 10 a.m. and the work day is over by 6:30 in the evening three nights a week. The program is filmed by three cameras with a live audience on Thursday nights, giving Kaye three-day weekends which she packs with activity.

KAYE BALLARD
An apartment dweller

Since moving to Southern California earlier this year she has learned to drive "a sports car, but in this traffic I need a Sherman tank," and started tennis lessons. She's also learning to swim.

ON THOSE long weekends she frequently drives to Palm Springs.

Three nights a week Kaye's housekeeper prepares dinner and at least once a week the actress entertains at dinner parties for as many as 14 friends at a time.

Kaye plays a blowsy housewife on the new NBC-TV show with wardrobe to match. Offscreen she is elegantly gowned. Almost all her clothes are made for her by one of Hollywood's Oscar-winning designers.

"I DON'T LIKE the short skirts that are in fashion now," says Kaye. "And unless a woman has legs like Betty Grable she shouldn't wear them."

Kaye becomes coy when talking about her dates. She sidesteps the subject neatly:

"I've been close to marriage four or five times, but I've been saved by the bell at the last minute every time. I may be on the verge again now, but I'm not talking about it."

THE TALKATIVE, energetic performer is a perpetual motion machine. She says she's just learning to live a new way of life in California, although most of her close friends are those who also moved here from New York City.

If "The Mothers-In-Law" is a hit, Kaye may buy a home after all — but it will be in Palm Springs.

RCA INCREASES PRICES ON COLOR TV
BUT NOT AT YOUNG BROS.

Radio Corp. of America announced yesterday factory price increases for 1968 model color television sets effective September 1.

"The increases were made necessary by steadily rising labor and material costs," said Raymond W. Saxon, Vice President and General Manager of RCA Victor Home Instruments Division.

Saxon said indications are that industry color set sales this year will run substantially ahead of the record 4.7 million sold in 1966.
